Republicans Must Name Roosevelt or Risk Defeat Again, Says Prof. Hart

Harvard Professor, Who Leads Colonel's Disciples in Massachusetts, Says Progressives Will Join With Rival Party, but Will Not Swallow Standpatism or the "Wreckers of 1912."

Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard University, who calls Theodore Roosevelt "The Man for the Hour," and advocates in the following articles his nomination by the Republican National Convention, is one of the active leaders of the Progressive party in Massachusetts and a stanch supporter of the ex-President and his policies. Prof. Hart holds the chair of government at Harvard.

By ALBERT BUSHNELL HART,
Professor of Government in Harvard University.

MORE!" Col. Roosevelt is teeing up and the gallery composed of millions of his fellow countrymen, are watching anxiously for his first drive. He has shown some skill in the game; took the championshop in 1904 by a score of 18 up and 17 holes to play against Alton B. Parker. If there is a fitter man for the championship of 1916, let him show himself now. Let nobody hide in the woods till the game begins, unwilling to sign his name to the book of contestants. Col. Roosevelt leaves no guess as to where he stands. He plays a onesome. The caddies of the Chicago links are trying to smooth down the putting green at the eighteenth hole. "Fore!"—let's see the length of Roosevelt's drive. This is the hour. Is he the man for the hour?

> IF Roosevelt had been President of the United States during the last two years, there would have been no rumors of war with us, because nobody would have thought it safe to provoke us. There would have been no Lusitania case to adjust. The Germans did not know Wilson; they could try his nerve and take a year's time. They did know Theodore Roosevelt and would never have taken the lives of 113 Americans on the Lusitania if he had been in the White House. There would have been no Villa raid across the border, because Villa would have expected immediate, not ultimate, punishment.
> —PROF. HART.

The American public reads discussions and inventions of a variety of Roosevelts. The stalwart Republican leaders in New York, for instance, express distressing doubts about his capacity, character and availability. Wall Street seems inclined to take him, lest a worse evil befall them. Many Republican voters shake their heads at the notion of a candidate in 1916 who was a bolter in 1913. A great host including nearly all the 4,000,000 Progressives of 1912, look upon Roosevelt as the one man who best expresses what they want to see come to pass in public life and in the national administration. They honor him as a friend. They hail him as a chief.

The writer has no private wire from Oyster Bay and is not deputed from that source or any other to express the opinions of Republicans or Progressives. He is only one of the many who firmly, roundly and persistently believe, that for the best interests of the country, present and future, Theodore Roosevelt of New York ought to be nominated by both the Republican and Progressive conventions; in which case he will infallibly be elected.

The Political Hour.

AT the outset, what are the political conditions, as the meetings of the two conventions at Chicago draw near? The Democratic party is in power, brought in by a plurality of popular votes in 1912, maintained by a diminished plurality in the congressional votes of 1914. The party shows serious strains and flaws. President Wilson masters the Democratic majority in Congress by iron will, not by that geyser of personal enthusiasm which made Roosevelt the leader of Congress in his time. President Wilson sits alone; his only effective counsellor, that great commoner, Col. House. Another great commoner, the foundation stone of Wilson in the Baltimore convention, stands gloriously aloof. The President owns, too, and in fact, cultivates a "single-track mind" and is backed up by a Cabinet which, notwithstanding several able men, as a whole, has not the confidence of the country. President Wilson is the one large figure in the administration and also the one leader whom Wilson trusts. The office is visibly too much for the President. It breaks up his standards and darkens his vision. A life-long civil service reformer, he cultivates Tammany Hall by dropping out of the New York postoffice the best postmaster in its history. In foreign relations the President is his own Secretary of State, makes the serious decisions and prepares the critical notes. When Congress attempts, in a clumsy fashion, to share in that responsibility, the President forces it back to heel.

In a great national crisis when the country is nerving itself up to a proper defensive organization, the President disagrees with a very able Secretary of War and appoints to succeed him—whom? A statesman intimately acquainted with the army and its needs? No. A man of affairs, of great power, and sagacity in dealing with men? Not at all. He appoints an ex-Mayor of Cleveland, whose special military qualification is his presumed ability to lead into the fray a Democratic majority in Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati. This military expert is reinforced by an ex-Mayor of Portland, whose technical fitness is measured by his hopes of making Maine Democratic. President Wilson has not been the man for the hours that have passed and will not be the man for the hour that is just coming.

Why the Progressives?

THE Progressive party was founded in a straightforward attempt to shift the balance of power from the old-line stand-pat Republican leaders to the fresh, vigorous, youthful and enthusiastic majority of the party. It achieved a marvelous result in the presidential election of 1912, casting 4,130,000 votes as against 3,485,000 for Taft. Roosevelt was not elected, notwithstanding this magnificent personal tribute; and the Progressives secured only a small number of state officers, Congressmen and Senators. Two years later 1,700,000 voters still adhered to the organization; and nobody knows how much of that vote would be cast this year for a straightout Progressive candidate who was not taken up by the Republicans. Probably enough to turn the election.

The principal reason for the lack of success in building up a majority party under the name of the Progressives is simply that the movements and its antecedents have so powerfully stirred up both the Republicans and Democrats that much of the Progressive platform has been accepted by those parties. The Progressives demand three things: Control of the powerful, protection of the weak and proper influence for the individual voter. Part of that program has been realized by the congressional legislation of the last four years. The banking system has been made more flexible. The Sherman anti-trust act has been strengthened. A Trade Commission has been created. These are not party measures. Republicans have voted for them and the Republican party shows indications of having learned the lessons of which Theodore Roosevelt was the first teacher—that the worst asset of the Republican party has been its reputation of being "the party of the interests."

Since the admonition the Republican party has gone through great tribulation. Even Uncle Joe Cannon, the quintessence of littleness of the

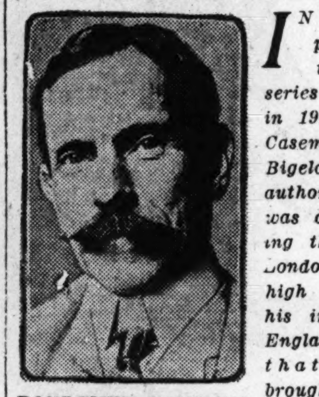
LETTERS FROM CASEMENT

to Poultney Bigelow

Telling of His Plans Against England

Prisoner to Be Tried in Few Days for Treason Outlined Them in This Country 20 Months Ago, When He Wrote: "I Blame Not Germany or the Kaiser for the War, but Chiefly England, Who Has Plotted and Planned It From the Days of the First Big German Battleship. I Pray Day and Night, 'God Save Germany.'"



POULTNEY BIGELOW.

IN the following important and intensely interesting series of letters written in 1914 by Sir Roger Casement to Poultney Bigelow, American author, Sir Roger, who was ordered held during the past week in London on a charge of high treason, displays his intense hatred of England, and declares that Great Britain brought on the European war to ruin Germany. "I blame not the Kaiser or Germany," he says, "but chiefly England, who has plotted and planned it from the days of the first big German battleship. I pray day and night, "God save Germany."

Mr. Bigelow was a playmate of the German Emperor when both were boys, and his friend for years after they grew up. He is the author of "History of the German Struggle for Liberty, 1806-1848."

All but one of the Casement letters were written in this country, and most of them after the war began. They show that Sir Roger was active here in behalf of the Irish Volunteer movement and hoped to prevent Irishmen from enlisting in the British army. The letters ceased abruptly in October, 1914, when Sir Roger sailed for Christiana, going thence to Berlin, where he was cordially received by the German Government.

Preceding the letters themselves is a statemnt by Mr. Bigelow giving the circumstances of his acquaintance with Sir Roger.

By POULTNEY BIGELOW.
(Author of "The History of the German Struggle for Liberty, 1806-1848," "Prussian Memories," "The Borderland of Czar and Kaiser," "The German Emperor and His Neighbors" and many other books of an historic and political character.)

IN 1896 I saw Roger Casement for the first time and William II for the last. It was the year of the Jameson raid and I happened to be in Berlin when the famous dispatch to Paul Kruger astonished the world at large, perplexed the public men of Germany, and for the first time made serious Englishmen realize that the policy of the Hohenzollerns was henceforth one of colonial expansion by fair means or foul.

Let us recall that this dispatch was accepted by the Boers as an intimation that they had in the King of Prussia a friend to whom they could look in case of trouble with England. German propaganda was very active even then in South Africa and the Boer War which broke out three years later was prolonged for many months because of German promises which remained unfulfilled. Had submarines and Zeppelins been perfected 15 years earlier the world war would have found its pretext in Pretoria rather than Sarajevo.

Roger Casement was then British Consul in Delagoa Bay, enthusiastically laboring to thwart the efforts of England's enemies, who were secretly using this port of Portuguese East Africa in order to supply the rebellious Boers with munitions of war. Casement made me his guest while in Delagoa Bay, for I came to him with a letter from the then British Colonial Minister, Joseph Chamberlain. We became warm friends immediately and I am happy of an opportunity to bear witness to his many noble qualities, even though madness may cause him to die with a stain of treason on his illustrious name.

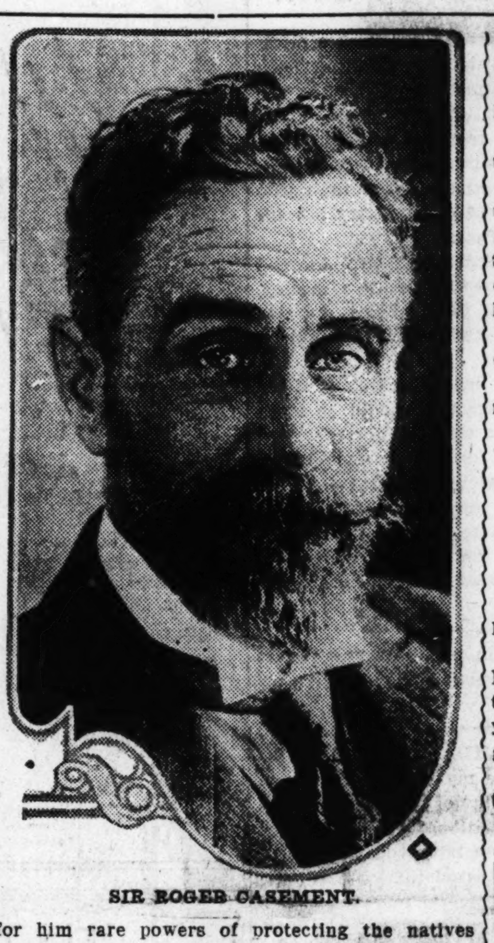
No Better Pal in Fair Weather or Foul Than Casement

FOR 17 years Casement enjoyed the confidence of his country and served British interests, not merely to the extent of his salary, but with an energy and enthusiasm that would have killed an ordinary man. He was tall, spare, wiry and capable of immense marches under the tropical sun. He had an infinite fund of patience and good humor and, in short, of the many good men I have known in canoeing and campaigning, it would be hard to think of one as a better pal in fair weather or foul than Roger Casement.

Even so early as when I first knew him his devotion to British interests was so strong that an official report was to him not complete until he had personally verified all possible details. He was in the habit of starting off like another Haroun al Raschid, alone or attended only by a trusty native servant, and taking tramps of days and weeks through the tropical jungle in order to see justice done or know the reason why.

This hatred of injustice and fearlessness in seeking redress made him a most lovable character to me and a modern embodiment of the consular Don Quixote.

From Portuguese Dalagoa Bay he was transferred in the line of promotion to the Congo and afterward to Brazil as Consul General, each post a tropical one and each offering abundant scope for him rare powers of protecting the natives against the harsh treatment of commercial exploiters.



SIR ROGER CASEMENT.

My friendship with Roger Casement is a matter of 20 years, during which time we have corresponded with frankness, although meeting but rarely. Such a temperament as his could not brook the enforced idleness that comes as a curse in our army and navy no less than in the British consular service, when a handsome retiring pension is granted by a grateful Government to those who have served their country with distinction. The habit of strenuous investigation and labor cannot be abandoned overnight and we have noticed in some of our ablest officers of the army and navy dangerous symptoms of eccentricity if not insanity, as a result of reaching the official age limit when their energies are practically at the height.

Career of Madness Began With Study of Irish Mythology

MOLTKE was 70 when he planned the battles of Mars-la-Tour and Gravelotte; Blucher was also 70 past when he shook hands with Wellington after Waterloo. Imagine the brains of those men condemned to innocuous desuetude at 63 and you may imagine at the same time strange vagaries which in this year of grace would probably resolve themselves into pacifism or pro-Germanism.

Casement commenced his career of madness through a too-strenuoups study of Irish mythology masquerading under the name of history. Little by little he became a victim of that species of auto-intoxication which culminates in the orator who delights a St. Patrick's day banquet by frothing at the mouth as he portrays an imaginary paradise converted into a howling wilderness by the cruelty of Saxon domination. Casement's latter-day dream was to forbid the use of English words or wares in Ireland, to Hibernize the Emerald Isle as Prussia sought to Germanize her Polish provinces. Only a madman could go to Berlin for help in starting a republic and the fact that Casement trusted any Prussian promises in this matter is sufficient for an English court desirous of committing him to a sanitarium rather than the scaffold.

The following letters all fall within the first year of the war and contain abundant evidence of their writer's madness and generous qualities. My own letters to Casement, if he has preserved them, will show that his present ending was foreseen by me, and that I did what I could to open his eyes to the treachery of our hyphenated politicians who would use his name and talents as they once used those of Henry George. They killed Henry George and another victim of Irish-American politics may be added, that of my dear old friend, Sir Roger Casement.

Below are published the letters of Sir Roger Casement, covering the period between from Jan. 3, 1914, to Oct. 13 of that year. Two months later Casement appeared in Berlin.

My Dear Bigelow:

I have two of your letters to acknowledge—the one before me is 24 Oct. last—the very day I was addressing a meeting of "anti-Carsonites" in Ballymoney. Since then I've been very busy, forming Irish Volunteers and doing my best to bring on the day of Irish release from the jail of British imperialism.

I fear I cannot go to the States yet—there is too much to do in Ireland.

But I thank you all the same for your more than cordial invitation to your homestead.

If ever I again see the lineaments of "Uncle Sam" face to face I shall certainly accept your offer of a cup of coffee and an ax in your woodland home.

Meantime I am too busy putting the snakes out of Ireland St. Patrick overlooked.

When we are at one here, please God, I'll have a run to America.

With all kind thoughts and wishes for 1914,
Yours sincerely, ROGER CASEMENT.

My Dear Bigelow:

I wonder if this will find you in your homestead. I am (again after a long time) in U. S. A. and at this abode of Heat for some days. While so near you I should like to see you if Malden is at all get-atable from this.

Drop me a line here during next day or two if this should find you. Au revoir. Yours,

My Dear Bigelow:

Your wire reached me at Belmont just as I was driving off to the Station. I thought I could wire you from there on arrival, but I was collared by 10 reporters and taken off to instant execution. This morning I was recalled to New York on urgent call to go to Long Island—& am just off there & tried to wire you from the Station, but was told there was no telegraph Station called Malden—so there you are!

Well, I can't come "immediately" because I am booked for some things here in Pa: & in Virginia & tonight I'll probably stay on Long Island with the man I'm now off to see.

When I get back to this address (my headquarters pro tem) I'll come along to you up in your Lonesome Forest lair.

Meantime please drop me a line here to say how I could best reach Malden from Philadelphia.
Yours, ROGER CASEMENT

My Dear Bigelow:

I got back here (away since Wednesday) from Norfolk Va: yesterday and found your charming letter & most explicit directions for reaching Malden. Allright I'll come after 6 August. Delighted, too.

I got Bourke Cockran at Port Washington to come to Norfolk with me and we addressed a mighty gathering of Irishmen there. It was great fun—but hot—& I relieved my feelings by ducking a "Coon" (5 cents a shy!) off a sliding board over a pool, by hitting the bull's eye (an owl) with a tennis ball. The Coon enjoyed the bath & so did I the good shot. It is hot but homely in Philadelphia.

I go probably to B. Cockran for a day on Monday & may then go on to Boston for a day—but by 6 August I ought to be thro' with some of my plans & free for your Hudson highlands & a swim per hour in the Hudson.

The papers here are photoing me all over the spot & my face is being sold to me by small boys in the streets. Many things amuse a stranger here—all interest him & the people themselves are the most interesting of all.

This War—like a bolt from the Blue—in Europe may be the end of all things.

If Germany fights, Gt. B. will have to whether she likes it or not. Germany will not let John Bull sit tight & come in on the peace conditions, with uninjured armaments to boss an exhausted world. Germany is right there—so if she has to fight she will see that J. Bull fights too nolens volens & God help us all if this is the universal Peace Year. Yours ever,
ROGER CASEMENT

A VISIT TO DR. LIEBKNECHT

"Most Unpopular Man in Germany"

Short and Insignificant in Appearance, Great Socialist Does Not Look Like a Man Who Could Keep a Great Empire in Turmoil—Government Careful to See That Nothing Happens to Transform His Unpopularity, the Popularity of Martyrdom.

By GILBERT HIRSCH,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, April 27.

WHEN I read that Karl Liebknecht has been arrested for leading a demonstration against war, I think of a row of cheap, ugly apartment houses fronting on the suburban elevated railroad, and turning their backs on a dreary stretch of empty lots that are neither city nor country, but share the worst feature of both.

KARL LIEBKNECHT.

No. 14 Hortensienstrasse bears so slavish a resemblance to Nos. 12 and 16 that I could hardly believe that it housed — among many other persons — the great "rebel" of present-day Germany. The advice not to go there, which had been given me by a number of Germans, who had assured me that the house was being watched day and night by the Government, seemed ridiculous. The whole neighborhood looked far too much like what one sees from the window of a New York subway train when it comes out of the tunnel at Dyckman street, to suggest melodrama.

A couple of flights of stairs and then the name, "Dr. Karl Liebknecht," on a metal sign. A pale, dark-eyed young woman led me through a dim, uncarpeted hall. From the other end I could hear children's voices shrilly raised. I was left alone in a small room with the assurance that "the Herr Doktor would be told."

From the next room came the steady clicking of a typewriter. The room I was in looked like a study; but less like that of a German revolutionist than of some young American clerk or lawyer starting out modestly on a promising career. There was the same sort of mission furniture, and steam heat, and general air of newness. But the pictures were different. Some were copies of photographs of old masters; but they were the ones you seldom see. The modern ones were still more unusual. And the books in the two bookcases were the greatest surprise—not a single work on politics, economics or Socialism, but row after row of books—in German, French, English and Italian—on painting and sculpture; everything from Leonardo da Vinci's Notebooks to "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies."

His Wife a Russian but Enemies Never Mention Staff

THE woman who had let me in came back to apologize for keeping me waiting. She was Mrs. Liebknecht. This library was hers. She had studied the history of art at the university, she said, and loved nothing better. But now she got so little time for it. The children kept her occupied. And she was always so anxious when they were out on the street. That was one reason for moving from Berlin to this suburb of Lichterfelde. No, the children were not hers. She was the Herr Doktor's second wife.

She said it all good-naturedly and casually, as if she were talking of someone else. That air of tense resistance to the outer world that one would have expected in the wife of the most unpopular man in Germany was entirely lacking. She seemed to have a wistful eagerness toward life, but to accept what came to her with a dreamy fatalism that did not seem German. She spoke with a sigh of having been to the theater in Berlin only once in many months. But she was still able to extract pleasure from the memory of that one time—when she had heard the Princess Lichnowsky, wife of the former German Ambassador to England, and Carl Hauptmann, the symbolic playwright, read some of their poems.

"These attacks everyone is making on your husband," I suggested, "must be very hard on you both."

"Oh, yes, it's hard," she agreed. "But these times are hard on everyone, aren't they?"

It was not until I asked her what part of Germany she came from—her peculiar way of rolling her r's made me curious—that I was able to understand her air of perfect aloofness.

"I'm not from Germany at all. I am a Russian."

Instinctively she shrank back just a little as she said this. It is hard to be a Russian in Germany in war time. And yet, of all those thousands of political speakers and editors who were attacking Liebknecht unsparingly as a traitor, none of them had ever, to my knowledge, reproached him with having chosen a Russian wife.

When I asked her what she thought of the Germans, her answer was diplomatic:

"I love the South Germans. I lived for a time at Freiburg at the edge of the Black Forest, and I often get homesick for it."

"Short, Dark and Insignificant" Is His Personal Appearance

THE clicking in the next room stopped and Liebknecht himself hurried in, preoccupied but cordial. He explained that he had gotten up from the hospital bed only two days before. While he was there, he had not been allowed to do any work, so it had piled up. His wife reminded him that he had not completely recovered and must take care of himself. But he declared emphatically that he would not go back to the military hospital, no matter how badly he felt. Discipline there was even more strict than in the army itself. They had even threatened to keep him from getting up in time to attend yesterday's important Reichstag session.

When I told him I had been at that session, he became suddenly apologetic.

"I didn't do well," he said. "No, not at all well. I didn't feel quite myself."

At first I thought he was agreeing with some of the unfavorable verdicts passed at the time, not merely by the Conservatives, but by members of his own party, on the pointed remarks with which he had interrupted the speakers. But he quickly corrected that impression.

"There were many points at which I could have made telling interruptions," he explained. "A great many more than I took advantage of."

His manner, as he said this, was not unlike that of the little boy who apologized for not having "recited his piece" as well as he should have done. Indeed, there is a good deal of the little boy about Karl Liebknecht—a little boy of whom his father would certainly be proud, were he alive. Their careers have been strikingly similar; their appearances most contrasting. Karl Liebknecht is short, dark, insignificant looking, with small, studious eyes that blink behind glasses. His father, though not tall, had a statesmanlike dignity, and Berliners used to point out the old veteran of the War of the Classes, with his high forehead, stern eyes and grim lips, as he went walking in the Gruenewald of a Sunday morning. Perhaps

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Professional Irish Trouble-Makers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The abortive effort of a few thousand fanatics to free Ireland by force of arms, which has just terminated in dismal failure, demonstrates once more the utter and absolute futility of physical force as a means to obtain the independence of Ireland without the co-operation of all the Irish people and the active support of some powerful foreign nation.

During the days of the Land League and its successor the Irish National League, when Davitt, Parnell, Dillon and Redmond were on the firing line battling with coercion and rapacious landlordism, Mr. Casement was allied with what was then known as the "Foreign Garrison" and was receiving honors and a fat salary from the Government he now attacks.

The mention of Jim Connolly's name as commander of the forces of the Irish republic must be repulsive to every Irishman possessed of a semblance of decency and respectability, who is familiar with the ruffianism attending the strike promoted and fostered by the notorious Jim Larkin in Dublin a few years ago.

What will the professional patriots on this side do for the business people of Dublin who have been ruined and made paupers by the demolition of their property and business as a result of the insane action of their unfortunate dupes?

These cranks and croakers rant and rave at Mr. Redmond because they know full well that when the Home Rule bill becomes operative, after the war, the professional Irishman will become an unpleasant memory.

It is significant that these gentlemen remained on this side of the Atlantic while their misguided followers were being led like sheep to slaughter.

Preachers Interested in Politics.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a recent issue of your paper there appeared a letter from one signed "Workingman," which attacked preachers for taking an interest in politics.

Preachers surely have as much right to seek to have their ideas incorporated into our official life as the laborer, the corporation head, the saloon keeper, or any other citizen. For any man or set of men to deny them this privilege is the height of folly. As a matter of fact, the pity has been that people of their class, men of intelligence and morality, men who have at heart nothing but the moral welfare of the city and State, have not entered politics long ago.

As for their injuring the church, this contention is pure nonsense. They do not take their churches into politics. Would it not be absurd for one to claim that Mr. Gardner is taking the coffin business into politics, that Mr. Houchin is injecting the clothing industry or that the man who labors at any task is taking his business into politics? There is no more reason to so charge against the ministers.

The Case of Alice G. Masaryk.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In regard to the official statement of the Austrian embassy, through John Schwegel, Consul in St. Louis, in Saturday's Post-Dispatch, regarding the arrest of Miss Alice G. Masaryk by the Austrian Government, permit me to correct the statement made by Austrian Government officials. Miss Masaryk is in jail and under arrest for the only reason that she is the daughter of the well-known Bohemian leader, T. G. Masaryk. All the world knows that the Bohemian people are struggling for their independence to be free from Austrian and German slavery, and consequently Mr. T. G. Masaryk, the Bohemian George Washington, is trying to obtain the independence for the Bohemian nation. And for the only reason that Miss Masaryk is the daughter of this great Bohemian leader she was put in jail, and still she is under arrest by the Austrian Government. When the Austrian embassy states through Herr Schwegel, Consul at St. Louis, that the offense of Miss Mesaryk is of such a nature that capital punishment will not come into consideration, why then does not the Austrian Government let Miss Masaryk go free?

For the information of the American public please publish the fact that Austria, since the war started, is under martial law and any offense is, for political reasons, in a majority of cases considered grave enough for capital punishment. According to the Austrian official statistics since the war the Austrian-Hungarian Government has executed over 4000 women and men for political reasons. No wonder that the Bohemian people and all the civilized world are interested in Miss Masaryk's case.

GUSTAVE ZNATLEGOV.

CO-OPERATION IN MEXICO.

The arrangement for co-operation between Mexican and American forces in pursuing Villistas and restoring order in Northern Mexico is not more welcome to the administration at Washington than to the masses of the American people.

We believe that a great majority of the American people are glad the United States are not at war with Mexico and do not want war with Mexico. They do want security on the border and the safety of Americans in Mexico; they do want law and order restored in Mexico and a cessation of the turmoil and anxiety which has disturbed this country since Madero was assassinated. But they do not want American troops to do the long bloody job unless it shall be absolutely necessary. Intervention should be the last resort when all other means have utterly failed. The war fever rules only among jingoes and elements with interests in Mexico.

The co-operative arrangement increases the hope of a satisfactory solution of the Mexican problem. It strengthens the hand of the Carranza Government. The aid of American troops against Villa should enable Carranza to establish his Government firmly in the revolutionary centers and put down the rebellious and disorderly factions which keep Mexico in a turmoil.

The settlement of the Mexican troubles without war would be an achievement only less important and advantageous than the settlement of the German controversy by diplomatic means. The two enable America to conserve peace and the interests of humanity without the immeasurable consequences of war, without entering the devastating turmoil that is wrecking Europe. They enable America as the only great Christian nation not at war to play the great part so well suited to the leading republic, that of conservator of civilization and peacemaker for a war-torn world.

AN ENGAGEMENT THAT WASN'T KEPT.

Col. Roosevelt and Henry Ford did not meet at Detroit, though they had an engagement to do so. The failure to get together is to be regretted. It might have been the beginning of an acquaintance beneficial to both. As the representative of one phase of extreme American thought, Mr. Ford might in time have been led to modify his view. And the Colonel might have learned things from Mr. Ford that would have——

But then could the Colonel be shaken by anyone from habitual stubbornness in opionated views and ferocious intemperance in expressing them?

A RAILROAD OFFICIAL IN JAIL.

Jabez Hall, yclept Jabe, who is an officer of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, performing the duties of porter at the Maplewood depot, is in more trouble than any responsible official of that railroad has been in for quite a spell. Jabe owns to the fondness of his race (negro) for ham, and postoffice inspectors lately discovered a parcel post ham being personally conducted away from the depot under the coat tails of the aforesaid, all of which eventuated in Judge Dyer's sentencing him to three years.

We heave a sigh of commingled commiseration for Jabe and awe of the rigors of Federal jurisprudence. Merciful skies above, is it stealing to steal a ham—from the Missouri Pacific! And while poor old Jabe is languishing in durance vile for three long years, look at the Missouri Pacific officials that are running around loose! And eminent presidents and vice presidents and directors of other railroads around here—with all kinds of good things under their coat tails.

ROGER SULLIVAN'S CANDIDACY.

The defeat of Mr. Bryan for delegate at large from Nebraska and his refusal to accept a seat on a proxy ended for a time the prospect of enlivening features in the St. Louis convention.

That prospect, however, is now renewed, and through the agency of no less interesting a figure in the political dramatis personae than Mr. Bryan's archenemy, Roger Sullivan of Chicago. It is announced that Mr. Sullivan will be a candidate for nomination as Vice President and that publicity during the convention will be furnished by Illinois marching clubs at least 1000 strong who will be quartered at nights on passenger steamers anchored in St. Louis harbor. A purpose to prevent the convention from falling to a routine, perfunctory level may be assumed.

The old formula for the tail of the ticket demanded the selection of a vice presidential candidate who should exemplify qualities the exact opposite of the head of the ticket and appeal to entirely different popular elements. The utmost that can be said for Mr. Sullivan's candidacy is that as the running mate of Mr. Wilson he would fulfill this formula.

Unfortunately for him the old formula no longer satisfies the public's expectation in ticket-making.

SOLDIERS WANT PEACE.

Under this caption Maurice Maeterlink contributes a signed editorial to the Paris Figaro, in which he appeals from the thrones to the people; from the military heads to the rank and file.

> The peoples, he says, have no quarrel—why then should they be forced to affect one; the soldiers on all fronts highly respect their opponents—why force them to slaughter each other? The rank and file, man for man, must close his eyes while his hands do what his heart and judgment abominate. I feel sure that if the most inhuman act were analyzed it would be found to be chained to a word of command; and that word linked to another, until the last word passes the lips of the real culprit. Why do good men, honest men, human men obey such commands? It is a machine. Humanity ceases to be a responsible factor when it becomes part of a machine; the personality is gone, nothing is left than the shell, the material—bone and muscle and brute force. Hence the inexplicable crimes of a war, the atrocities that will make the very perpetrators shudder until they step into their graves. The men in the line appreciate that fact; and while they execrate those atrocities, they feel kindly to the individuals that do them; but they hate the machine, and the man that cranks it.

The French soldier has learned to admire, he says, the heroic bravery of the German soldier; his cleverness, his indefatigable ingenuity and endeavor, his good humor even under the greatest stress. He sees him suffer "as beasts would not be made to suffer," and yet maintain his cheer. He appreciates this the more keenly as he himself is under the same stress.

If it was left to the soldiers the war would end.

FOSTERING REBELLION IN IRELAND.

Here are some statements made by Augustine Birrell, late Chief Secretary for Ireland, to the Parliamentary Commission which is inquiring into the causes of the Easter Monday rebellion:

> The events in Ulster and the gun-running at Larne by the Ulsterists in 1914 undoubtedly had a great effect on disloyalists elsewhere.
> It was impossible to overestimate the effect which the advent of the Ulster leader, Edward Carson, to the Cabinet had exercised upon the minds of the people of Ireland.
> If the home rule bill had not been placed on the statute books there would have been a great explosion of rage and disappointment both in Ireland and the United States, which, when the war came, would have assumed alarming proportions.

Mr. Birrell, until a few days ago, was a member of the Government which is shooting Irish patriots; in fact, was a member of it when the first dozen or so of executions took place. That Government is taking its reprisals without any illusions as to the responsibility which it has incurred through its own past course for the uprising. It deliberately decreed one military law for Carson, but another for Pearse.

Carson and the Carsonites not only escaped shooting for their own revolutionary measures, but were able to prevent justice being done to Ireland through putting the home rule bill in effect.

Can anybody doubt the benefit to Ireland if the home rule bill, already enacted, should be made operative at this present time of unrest? Can anybody doubt that, but for Carson and his adherents, it would immediately be made operative?

Why should so much consideration be shown this man and his supporters, especially when the disastrous effects of the too great consideration shown them in the past stand in evidence before the world?

AN OBSERVANT PRESIDENT'S REMARKS.

Mr. Wilson utilized the myriad experiences of the presidency in the making of some snappy copy during his visit to the National Press Club. If the blue pencil might have improved portions of it, surely it would have spared this observation:

> If I cannot retain my moral influence over a man except by knocking him down occasionally; if that is the only basis on which he will respect me, then for the sake of his soul I have to knock him down occasionally.

But suppose one isn't able to knock him down? Preparedness becomes a duty for the benefit of the other fellow's soul.

> There is tinder lying everywhere, not only on the other side of the water, but on this side of the water, and a man that spreads sparks may be responsible for something a great deal worse than burning a town on the Mexican border.

To a tinder-wrapped world, what policy is so well suited as one of the most watchful kind of watchful waiting? Men that are spreading sparks have greatly diminished in recent months.

Here is one of the President's happiest Press Club utterances:

> A friend of mine says that every man who takes office in Washington either grows or swells, and when I give a man an office I watch him carefully to see whether he is swelling or growing.

The officeholder who swells rather than grows is, unfortunately, not confined to Washington. He is numerous in the Federal buildings of all big towns, in every state house and every city hall.

The Colonel says we have not gained the good will of the Mexicans. What of that? We have the consciousness of having treated them justly; of not having bullied a weaker Power. If they have not understood us, so much the worse for them.

WHAT IS THAT ANESTHETIC?

Small bottles of "anesthetic," name not given, are being placed in the kits of British soldiers in France, so the cable says, by the "Vacation War Relief Association." We quote:

> A spraying apparatus is attached to the bottle, so the wounded soldier may apply the liquid to his wound quickly.
> This produces local anesthesia, which continues for three hours and releases the soldier from pain while awaiting the arrival of an ambulance. Use of this particular anesthetic is said to have been authorized by the British army medical service and in Russian hospitals.

What is the name of that anesthetic? Does any layman know? The public is familiar with the uses of many drugs to which it has free access by purchase without recourse to physicians, but pain killers are a professional secret for which sufferers pay, and the secret is often safeguarded by law and ordinance which prevent the dispensing of the relief without a physician's prescription.

The answer that pain-killers are poisons in many cases does not distinguish them from many other drugs used freely by the public. Most drugs are venomous or deadly if we over-use them. The abuse of a local anesthetic does not seem probable.

The great secrets of medicine, the triumphs of science, should belong to the public, which knows too little about anesthetics, and suffers vast and useless pain through the selfishness of professional secrecy. Probably most, if not all, of the pain the human race suffers is needless and relievable if the sphinx of medicine would reveal her useless mysteries.

ANYBODY CAN DO IT.

The Window-Washers.

KNEELING on high, flimsy scaffoldings,
Their lives measured by the strength of ropes,
The window-washers liquidly mumble little songs,
That are scooped away by the running air
As flowers are swept up by racing children.

They descended, men whose skin is close over their bones,
And whose hair is scant.

"Why have you grinning faces of wood,
You who have been carved by the white sword of the wind?"
But the window-washers stared and tapped their foreheads,
And trudged off to drink much beer.

The Street-Flushers.

Riding on high water-wagons,
Like rain gods seated on passing clouds,
The street-flushers roll a hissing flood
That breaks and splashes upon the curb,
As sea waves pound against a wall. . . .

They dismounted, men whose eyes have a washed-out cast,
And whose clothes are wet.

"Why have you dead, unseeing eyes,
As if you had never looked upon a green field in Spring?"
But the street-flushers only said something about someone being nuts,
And swept past—the saloons were open again.

Judging by what we can see of the Czar's campaign against the Germans and Austrians since he replaced the Grand Duke, he has the Nobel Peace Prize pretty well nailed down this time.

IMMUTABLE, Time's pendulum swings on;
Nor pauses, as it swings, to contemplate
Mere mankind in his miseries or joys.
Eternally it mutely predicates
Man's exodus from earth—the exodus
Of myriad souls unshackled from life's thralls.
Requiem aeternam—eternal rest—
Immiscible to pain, grant them, dear Lord!
Accept them as Thine own, so dearly bought!
Mortality is frail—but Thou art Love!

PEACE IDYL.

PIERRE LADEAUX came back from the trenches to his wife and baby. They lived in Southern France, where they could see the ocean from their cottage windows.

Pierre was through with the war because he was blind. They taught him to make baskets, and he earned enough money to pay for the needs of his little family. His Marie was gentle and sweet, and it was fun to have the baby to play with; and so he lived in one of life's back waters, better off than many other who had fought for France.

But he could not rid his brain of the last charge up and over the trench, though the wires, across the agonized bodies of his comrades. He could not forget that hell where the shrapnel had brought him down. He knew that the sky was fair, that the sea was glistening in the sunshine, that the vineyards were green and his wife beautiful—but his eyes had left the world in a sea of mangled flesh and dripping blood.

WHOOPLA BY A GOOD ROADS ENTHUSIAST.

From the Belton (Mo.) Herald.

The Harrisonville road boosters seem determined to put the question of a million dollar bond issue to a vote in Cass County. The election will cost enough to buy one of the $1000 bonds we already owe, and will cut no ice for good roads. The reason why the proposition is futile is not because the voters are opposed to good roads, but because the proposed lines of road will not equalize the benefits. Another question that arises to delay the building of roads is the doubt that exists as to what kind of a road to build. The ordinary macadam road is not a permanent road for modern travel. It requires too much expense to maintain in a condition of efficiency.

TO "HOLLY."

Charles D. Holloway.

WHEN last I held thy hand and said good-bye
Our skies of life were radiantly clear;
For in the heart-light of thy cheerful eye
I could not see this shadow lying here.

How strangely sad, O, friend of mine, it seems
That thou shouldst lie beneath the senseless clod,
While I go ever onward in my dreams—
An alien, from the gardens of our God.

How more than sad, I whisper to my heart,
The world must lose the friendship and the smile
Of him whose days were as some genial art
With which time screens the blandishments of guile.

The world for these held jewels bright and fair,
And thou didst wander o'er its myriad ways;
While I sat pondering, at the feet of Care,
On all the sorrows of Man's yesterdays.

* * But lo! the sun retreats before the night,
And I must turn away, with weary sigh—
Sleep on, dear friend! "Whatever is, is right"—
And yet—it seems so hard to say good bye.

CLEANSING.

G. K.—Chiffon or lace waists: Put in Mason jar, half-gallon size, enough gasoline to cover well; screw on cover. Shake well, set aside several hours and shake occasionally. When clean, take out and straighten ruffles and ruchings, then hang in air.

PUSSYWILLOW.—Diluted ammonia is said to remove rain spots; sometimes there is sponging with ether. One woman had given up in despair after trying everything to remove rain spots, until told by a professional cleanser to treat the spots by rubbing with the finger nails or an ivory paper cutter. The treatment was a success.

GAMES.

H. B. E.—The Dictionary: Any number of players can take part in this game. The players are provided with paper and pencil, and the "leader" who begins the game names a long word. Each of the players writes this word on their paper and tries to see how many different words can be coined from the letters contained in it. Any letter may be used as many times as desired in different combinations. Foreign terms do not count. At the end of 15 minutes (or any selected time) lists are handed to "leader," who looks them over and judges the winner. Sometimes it is agreed to strike out all words that two or more players have written, counting only those that no one else has thought of. All combinations that do not spell words as well as all misspelled words, not only do not count, but they take off one other word from the list. The player who has the largest list of correct words is the winner and may be "leader next time. Guessing game: One player begins the game by saying: "I am something." And then proceeds to explain as follows: "I am very clear. You can see clear through me. I am part of something you live in. I look well dressed in fine lace or muslin." etc. The players all take turns in guessing what the "Something" is. The correct answer to above, of course, is "window," but anything may be chosen and description changed to fit it. The player giving first correct guess chooses "something" for the next game. Spin the bottle: The players form a circle either sitting or standing. One player sits or stands in the center of the circle with a bottle. This player begins the game by laying the bottle on its side and whirling it around and at the same time the player must say something like the following: "This bottle will point toward my chum," or "This bottle will point out the prettiest person here," or any other like phrase one thinks of. The player in the center to whom the bottle points when it stops whirling must take the center of the ring and whirl the bottle and must also say something while the bottle is whirling, but it must be something different than the other player has said. This continues until players grow tired.—Colman's Rural World.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

CONSTANT READER.—Ravioli: One peck chopped spinach, one pound veal chopped fine and fried in butter; one cup milk or cream; one cup bread crumbs; one cup of grated cheese; two eggs; salt and pepper to taste. Mix all ingredients together and bake slowly 1 hour.

BRIDGET.—To cook ham a la Virginia: Let soak over night in cold water. In morning change the water, adding cup (large or small according to size of ham) of good molasses. Boil slowly; quarter hour for each pound is the given rule, but hams are eccentric and one must use discretion, letting the pot boil until the meat can easily be penetrated to the bone, then set the pot aside until water and ham are absolutely cold—until next morning is wisdom—then remove the skin and rough, untidy edges. Cover with stale bread crumbs and sprinkle with brown sugar; dot with cloves and put into the oven. Bake a rich brown. For high days and holidays—and Governors—this ham should be basted with sherry wine, but vinegar makes a very good substitute ordinarily, a large cupful benig sufficient. A common Western ham thus cooked may easily masquerade as a Smithfield.

VEACH.—There is no command in the Bible for changing the Sabbath from the 7th to the 1st day. No doubt the change grew out of a desire of the Apostles and disciples of Christ to commemorate His resurrection. At the outset, both Sabbaths were kept by some. It has been claimed that the keeping of the Sabbath day ceased as a requirement of God at the death of Christ. Those who have examined into the case hold it to be a fact that even before Christ's ascension, the Apostles and disciples had a regular custom of getting together on the first day of the week. It was on this day that Peter's doubts were removed. It was on this day that the Holy Ghost was breathed on the select body of men. This was the Pentecost day—the day when the first Christian church was gathered and its first sermon preached.

WILLIAM.—Birthmarks are of two kinds, the smooth port wine marks and those which are excrescences of great or small size. The nature of the operation for their removal must be determined according to the individual case. Many birthmarks consist of a bunch of exceedingly fine blood vessels, which require the greatest skill for their removal. They are either destroyed by the use of electrical needles or are cut out. Parents should see that this is done for their children while they are young. Albert Weil presented to the Societe de Medecine de Paris three cases of port wine marks in which he had obtained almost total bleaching of the skin with very satisfactory esthetic results by the use of X-rays. He used a tube with special window, which allowed the passage of only the slightly penetrating rays. Very few sittings were required.

I. C.—If you wish to cure bashfulness, never allow yourself to think of yourself. Constantly think of something else—anything, everything, to keep the mind busy. And don't think the people you meet are anybody in particular; or that what they say or think is of importance. In time you will grow out of it, anyhow. One blusher was cured by giving up tea, coffee and all stimulants. Another writes: "While self-consciousness may be a contributing cause, I thing it comes primarily from nervous dyspepsia, which could be cured if attended to before it becomes chronic. It is much worse after taking strong stimulants, rich food, or anything that is indigestible. Take plenty of exercise, walk four or five miles a day, eat only simple food, even confining yourself to a stated diet if necessary." To get the alcoholic habit would be idiotic. You can be rid of bashfulness without it.

J. A. W.—An act of May 11, 1912, provides that any person who served 90 days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the late Civil War, and who has been honorably discharged therefrom, and who has reached the age of 62 years or over, on making proof of such facts is entitled to receive a pension as follows: Age 62 years, for a service of 90 days, $13 a month; six months, $13.50; one year, $14; 1½ years, $14.50; two years, $15; 2½ years, $15.50, and three years and more, $16. Age 66 years, for a service of 90 days, $15 a month; six months, $15.50; one year, $16; 1½ years, $16.50; two years, $17; 2½ years, $18; and three years and more, $19. Age 70, for a service of 90 days, $18 a month; six months, $19; one year, $20; 1½ years, $21.50; two years, $23; 2½ years, $24, and three years and more, $25. Age 75 years, for a service of 90 days, $21 a month; six months, $22.50; one year, $24; 1½ years, $27, and two years and more, $30. And such pension shall commence from the date of filing the application in the Bureau of Pensions.

Senate and House Agree on Army Bill

ONLY A HALF-WAY MEASURE.

Indianapolis Star: The "compromise" of the Senate and House on the army bills is mainly a triumph for the House. The Senate bill provided for a standing army of 250,000 men, but the Senate has been forced to agree to 206,000, with a minimum of 160,000, the latter to be attained within five years, and to an abandonment of its plan for a volunteer Federal reserve force of 261,000.

The provision in the House bill for a Federalized national guard was finally accepted by the Senate. It is this feature of the so-called preparedness legislation over which the real struggle has been. Under it the cost of equipping, drilling and remunerating the state troops will largely be paid by the general Government and this makes a comfortable division of national funds among the states—a matter greatly desired by the Democrats.

If the guard would make an effective reserve force for the regular army this would not be a serious objection, but history, from Washington's day to the present, shows that the two classes of troops do not work well together. Gen. Leonard Wood shows in his recent book the strong objections to the plan and he has no faith in its effectiveness. Doubt has also been expressed whether or not Congress has the right under the Constitution to Federalize the militia.

The country must welcome any step toward preparedness, but it is a half-way measure that looks far from promising effective results.

A FAIR BEGINNING FOR AN ARMY.

The New York World: In seven years, if the conference army bill were put into effect and were to work well, there might be in the country 1,000,000 trained, available men—206,000 active army, including special forces; a rather larger number of reserves; 425,000 militia and an unknown force of training-camp graduates.

The number might even prove greater if one-year enlistments of men, with the "excellent" rating, passing rapidly into reserve, were numerous, and if the training camps proved popular. It would be much smaller if the active army lagged at the minimum and especially if the national guard failed to maintain its quota.

In some states this may happen. To enroll 800 men for each Senator and Representative, New York must double its national guard and Massachusetts and Pennsylvania must increase theirs by 140 and 150 per cent, respectively. But Georgia will need to recruit 260 per cent, Nebraska 286 per cent, Texas 320 per cent and Kansas 350 per cent of their present state forces. It will not be strange if some states fall far short, but this method of settling the controversy between the guardsmen and the promoters of the volunteer plan is worth trial. Failing, it can be changed; if necessary, upon short notice.

The navy is our traditional first line of defense; no great opposition is expected now to its enhancement. With a stronger sea force, the conference plan, if enacted, will provide a fair beginning of a modern scheme of defense. It should be at least a great improvement upon our present state of inviting helplessness.

SOME DEFECTS.

New York Globe: There are two major defects and many minor ones. One major defect is that which contemplates the continuance of the professional army—something well enough when the force is small, but not adapted to bring together large masses of men. Experience has shown that it is difficult to secure as many as 60,000 men for the regular establishment. The pay is high and effort has been made to make the service attractive. Yet for reasons sufficiently obvious it is impossible to secure recruits. It is proposed that the new army shall have a minimum strength of 160,000 men in peace time. It is not likely that this number will come forward to join the regulars. The experience of other countries shows that if an army is to be large it must be a citizen army, and not set aside as a special force.

The next major defect is the use of the state militia of the various states as the second line. As the regular establishment is too professional, so the state guards are too civilian. It is practically impossible to create soldiers by sporadic night drill in small units and by two weeks of camp life per year. The manual of arms can be taught in armories and something done in the way of instruction in rifle shooting, but it is necessary for soldiers to be hardened into ability to march and endure hardships, and to be educated into capacity to take care of themselves when in the field. These things cannot be attained through the national guard. At least six months of continuous service under army conditions are necessary for the making of a soldier. It will be necessary to train the national guard after war begins in the essentials of modern military life.

SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Here is substantial progress. Assuming that the tentative agreement between the conferees is ratified by the Senate and the House and becomes a law, there will be reason for satisfaction that so much has been accomplished. At the same time no thoughtful American will believe that this new American army is wholly adequate to the needs of the republic. The bill constitutes a promise and sign of what must follow rather than a goal attained.

Talk of militarism is nonsense. Talk of peace at any price is perilous. This new army bill represents neither. It represents, primarily, a people awakening to their military needs after years of blind confidence. Therein, perhaps, lies the greatest measure of victory in the Chamberlain-Hay bill.

JUGGLING THE ARMY.

New York Evening Telegram: In their compromise on the army bill the professional politicians in the Senate and House may think they have shown a fine bit of strategy, but they won't fool the public one bit.

An army of 631,000 men, on peace footing agreed upon, is the proud announcement from Washington.

Let us see how it is made up.

In place of an army of regulars of 250,000 as the minimum strength, as favored by the Senate, the compromise is for one of 160,000 men, which may in the discretion of the Secretary of War, be increased to 175,000. To this maximum of 175,000 add 31,000 practical noncombatants, members of the Quartermaster's Department, Medical Department, Signal Corps, Philippine Scouts and 8700 unassigned recruits and we get a total of 206,000 regulars.

To this add 425,000 national guardsmen and Congress smilingly bids us contemplate an American army of 631,000.

We have really an army of 160,000 and no more, and that number always liable to be scaled down through desertions and disability. It's about 50 per cent increase over the present establishment.

But the percentage of increase in fighting men, in the interest of economy presumably, is not followed out in the creation of fat salaried swivel chair jobs.

The General Staff is increased from 34 to 52, as the Senate conferees demanded.

Is the country satisfied with the work of Congress in this important matter?

New York's Great Preparedness Parade

NEW YORK PROFFERS SERVICE.

Philadelphia Ledger: New York has spoken at the right time, and the country rises to applaud the magnificent protest of American manhood that glorified her streets yesterday. Such a proffer of services and willingness to sacrifice and be sacrificed redeem the situation and give heart to everyone from coast to coast.

REPRESENTS CONVICTION.

Philadelphia Record: The great torchlight procession in 1868 that filled Michigan avenue, Chicago, from curb to curb for hours, was the precursor of the election of Grant and the defeat of fiat money. The immense "sound money" procession in New York in 1896 was the precursor of the defeat of cheap money, fiat money with a silver plating. The preparedness procession in New York yesterday seems to have been much greater than either, and it expressed the conviction of the people of this country that the United States should be put in a posture of defense.

A REPRESENTATIVE PARADE.

Philadelphia Inquirer: One hundred and forty-five thousand men and women paraded New York on Saturday in the largest civic demonstration ever known in this country.

These paraders were not sentimentalists, they were not agitators and they were not induced by the "gold of the munitions manufacturers." They stood for the rank and file of the whole country and their purpose was simply to indicate that they desire their hearthstones to be made safe. Many thousands more would have appeared could they have been accommodated, but there was a time limit set by daylight, which fixed the number.

It is a fair deduction from the unqualified success of this demonstration that the people of this country, who have been sitting so long in darkness, have seen a great light; that they are tired of a policy which leaves us a prey to any nation, a policy which finds us at this present juncture in a perilous situation.

MARCHED FOR PEACE.

New York World: When New York marched for preparedness it marched also for peace. When New York pronounced pacifism a failure it condemned not the purpose but the method. When New York demanded weapons and men trained in the use of them, it did not commit itself to militarism; it indicated its refusal to rely henceforth upon a pacifism known to be worthless. In this we believe that the metropolis spoke also for the United States.

Until a change comes over the earth of which there are no signs at present, every true aspiration of pacifism, like every right cherished by freemen, can have no adequate defense that does not rest upon force.

NOT A WAR DEMAND.

St. Joseph News-Press: This popular demonstration is not to be construed as a desire for war. It is rather to be viewed as a protest against prolongation of the appearance of weakness which invites other nations to look upon this great Commonwealth with contempt. We may be sure that the Mexican bandits would not have swarmed across the international border, murdering soldiers and cilivians alike, and pillaging towns and ranches, if they had not been told that this country was unprepared to fight, even a little. Judging from the tone of diplomatic notes received at Washington, this impression also prevails in some of the chancellories of Europe. Americans have been subjected to slurs by foreigners and by semi-foreigners posing in the garb of American citizenship, and have until quite recently submitted patiently to studied insolence in the interest of peace. The people of this country do not want either war or entangling alliances with foreign nations; and for the sake of such exemption they have endured much. But, if war is forced upon us, or if the rights of the citizens of the United States are trampled upon, the people of this Union will demand preparedness for any eventuality. This, and this alone, was the motive for the monster demonstration which has been staged in New York last Saturday.

THE VOICE OF NEW YORK.

Indianapolis Star: It will not do to say that New York is moved merely by selfishness growing out of the fact that it would be the first city to be attacked by a foreign enemy. That circumstance no doubt has its influence, but why should it not? It is an influence that would affect Americans in the interior if they chanced to be within the first range of foreign guns. But these citizens of the interior would not look on with passive indifference if New York were attacked. Even if they cared nothing for the safety of that city in itself, the pride of country, the rage of resentment because of the invasion of our land and the insult to the nation would impel them to rise to the nation's defense. Then why not give the Americans of New York credit for genuinely patriotic sentiment also?

But an attack on New York would be a blow to the country that would be felt in every artery of the country's commerce. A bombardment of the metropolis and the destruction of its commercial district would paralyze business in every quarter of the country down to the remotest hamlet. Even if the enemy should not penetrate beyond the coast cities, which, of course, is not a probable supposition in case of our lack of preparedness; even if the coast cities suffered the only immediate loss, the cost to the entire country would be heavy.

THE IDEA IS SPREADING.

Detroit Free Press: The parade was not an appeal for support; it was a protest, a demand; a protest against the unfaithfulness to trust of the legislative and executive branches of the American Government; a demand for proper redemial action. It carried a warning also whose significance will scarcely be lost on those for whom it was intended.

The idea of the preparedness parade is showing a tendency to spread. Suggestions already are being made that there be a parade in Chicago about the time the Republican national convention meets. The idea is a good one. There seems to be no other way in which the American people can poll their sentiments and express their will in a manner that will be clear, unmistakable, emphatic to finality.

GET OUT AND MARCH!

Chicago Herald: The call for a great Middle West preparedness parade should meet with prompt response on all sides. Chicago is, of course, the proper place for holding this demonstration. The other cities of the Middle West should avail themselves of their opportunity thus to forward a great patriotic movement.

The suggestion that the parade be held during the Republican convention has merit. The object is not simply the parade; it is action. Nothing will more impress both political parties with the necessity of making preparedness a continuing policy than a great demonstration during the sessions of one convention and just before the other.

Farm-Land Banks Now Assured

THE RURAL-CREDITS BILL.

New York Evening Post: It is now certain that this Congress will enact rural credits legislation. The bill which has been before the House for several days was passed yesterday by a vote of 295 to 10. A bill drawn along the same general lines had previously passed the Senate with only five votes in the negative. The measure is thus entitled to rank as nonpartisan and almost as noncontentious. In fact, all parties had in their national platforms called for legislation of the kind. Senator Hollis conducted the bill through the Senate and Representative Carter Glass through the House—both of them displaying grasp and incisive debating power—and the final measure, as it will doubtless soon emerge from conference, will be ranked among the achievements of the Wilson administration. It may fairly be so in the sense that a measure long advocated had the driving power put behind it by a Democratic President to get it upon the statute book. That the bill was so framed as to compel the support of political opponents can scarcely be urged as an objection!

On the whole, the plan seems to be a wise attempt to adapt approved European practice to American conditions. The Government is here called upon to set up and, at first, finance the system. It is doubtful if we could get it going in any other way. The expectation is that the land banks provided for in the bill will work so well that the initial cost of organization will be repaid to the Federal Treasury. This may or may not prove to be the case. We know that the Government has found it hard to get back all the cost of irrigation projects, and so it may of the land banks. However this may be, it is not to be denied that the rural credits bill has a very clear conception of the special difficulties of agriculture in securing capital, and makes a direct and intelligent effort to overcome them.

What has been the farmer's chief complaint in the matter of borrowing money on the security of his land? It is twofold—high interest and loans only for a short time. A special agent of the Department of Agriculture has compiled data showing that the quoted rates on farm mortgages run from an average of 5.3 per cent in New Hampshire to 9 and 10 per cent in certain Southern and Western states. Besides, there are usually commissions and various charges to be reckoned in, so that the actual cost to the farmer is higher than the published figures. In addition, he finds it hard to get a loan for more than five years; and banks are in the habit of asking from him, besides the mortgage, a demand obligation which can be called in an emergency. Now, the rural credits bill is intended to supply to farmer funds at not to exceed 6 per cent and to allow him to take out a loan running for 36 years. If the project works as expected, it will plainly prove of great advantage to farmers in many sections of the United States.

We cannot here describe the system in detail. The bill is formidable in length and in minute provisions, but the broad outlines are clear. There are to be 12 land banks, organized and, at first, capitalized, by the Government. They do not conduct a banking business. Their sole concern is to lend money on land used for agriculture. They are to get in touch with would-be borrowers through farm-loan associations, which are to be formed locally—10 persons can organize one. The idea is thus to have a centralized control of capital, accompanied by an intimate and personal knowledge, by people on the spot, of the need of a loan, of the security, of the character and standing of the borrower. All kinds of safeguards in the way of appraisal and inspection are provided, and it is confidently believed that the farm mortgages taken by the banks will be so secure that they may be made the basis of farm-loan bonds, attractive to the general investor. One essential and admirable feature of the plan is amortization, so that the semi-annual payments by the borrower, whatever the time his loan has to run, will be so figured as to pay off all of his debt at maturity.

The bill is yet to be perfected. In operation it may seen to be in need of amendment. But as it stands it represents a great advance towards a system of providing agricultural credit that has long been a crying need in this country.

CONSTRUCTIVE LEGISLATION.

Philadelphia Ledger: The United States, which is the richest agricultural country on earth, is finally to have farm-land banks. Measures creating such banks have passed both branches of Congress, although these bills vary in a number of particulars. The main features, however, are identical in principle. Generally speaking, the House measure is the more liberal. One excellent point in it is that loans of $100 may be made. The Senate bill minimum for loans is $200, which is too high. Broadly speaking, the proposed 12 land banks will be scattered throughout the country, and they will lend money to farmers at not more than 6 per cent interest. Loans will be made through local loan associations, which will place mortgages upon the land of the farmers who borrow. These mortgages will be taken by the banks, which in turn will advance the money.

There is need in the United States for land banks. Obviously an industry which yearly produces an output of nearly $10,000,000,000 is entitled to better banking facilities than it now possesses. Moreover, farmers in remote sections of the West, South and Southwest, where banks are scarce and farms are numerous, ought to be protected against the bank sharks which, according to Comptroller Williams, have been charging anywhere from 100 to 1200 per cent interest on small loans. It is in such remote regions that the land banks will be the greatest boon, although they will be a convenience in the more densely populated districts. If the Wilson administration can put upon the statute books this piece of advanced legislation, it will be a highly honorable achievement.

CREDIT TO THE ADMINISTRATION.

Springfield Republican: The rural credits act, soon to be signed by the President, is one of the greatest constructive measures for the benefit of American farmers ever enacted by Congress. In connection with the new Federal reserve system, the land banks must signalize the completion of a reorganization of American finance unparalleled since the Civil War. But Senator Lodge believes that the Wilson administration has done more injury to the United States than any other since that of Buchanan.

During the Past Week, St. Louis Literally Moved Outdoors—Hostesses Who Had Planned Indoor Affairs Gave Them on the Lawns or Porches—Two Large Garden Teas Were Given—Tea at "The Arches" Pronounced One of the Prettiest Ever Held Here.

ST. LOUIS moved out of doors last week—literally—and seems likely to stay there this week as well, if it doesn't rain. Nothing was done in the house that could by any possibility be taken into the garden or on the porch. Many hostesses who had planned indoor luncheons and bridges moved them out doors, tables, teacups and all.

TWO large garden teas for charity were given, Friday afternoon, one on Mrs. David D. Walker's lawn, 5 Hortense place, and the other at the Kingsbury place home of Mrs. H. T. T. Smith. There were porch luncheons Tuesday and Saturday at the Bellerive Country Club, and—last and most elaborate of all—there was the garden tea at "The Arches," the counrty home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kauffman on the Berry Road. Also there were several school pageants, all more or less Shakspearean in their character, and there were quite a number of small luncheons and bridges too informal to be listed.

The tea at "The Arches" was the second in a series of four to be held there for the benefit of the Baptist Orphans' home, and was most charming. The universal opinion was that "it was the most beautiful garden party ever given in St. Louis." It was altogether different from the first one, being a pantomime by William La Beaume, somewhat in the nature of a fashion show. It was called "A House Party at Newport," and Robert Fekete played the part of hostess. The events in a busy day at a smart house party were depicted. First there was a children's party, the little ones arriving in their cars with their maids and being entertained by several dances by Serge Halman and songs by Mrs. William K. Stanard. A pretty tea party scene followed, the grown-ups being the actors, and while this was in progress the debutantees and beaux began returning from their various sports and relating all their adventures to their elders. The program closed with a solo dance by Miss Edith Whittemore.

The garden, which is exceptionally beautiful in its every day dress, was resplendent with the gay colors of the marquees and other settings for the scenes given.

Next Saturday another tea will be given with a program arranged by Mrs. Herbert Wolff. It will be "A Colonial Wedding," all the characters being represented by children

Lady Wilfrid Peek, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. William C. Stribling of the St. Regis Apartments, is getting up a large bridge party to be given Monday afternoon, May 29, on the terrace at the Portland place home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis. The proceeds will go to the fund now being raised under the patronage of Queen Mary of England and the Dowager Queen Alexandra, for the establishment of the Star and Garter Home for British soldiers permanently disabled by the great war. Invitations will be sent out tomorrow. Lady Peek is being assisted in arranging for the event by Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., Mrs. George D. Markham, Mrs. John Holliday, Mrs. Charles P. Pettus and Mrs. Orion Willis.

Gifts for the coming weddings at the Applied Arts, Grand and Washington.

A NOTABLE wedding yesterday was that of Miss Marian Lewis and Frederick L. English, which took place at five o'clock at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Dyke Hill, 5362 Waterman avenue. The wedding was quiet, owing to the fact that the bride is in mourning, and the arrangements were simple. The bride was unattended except by her small niece and nephews, Joyce and Lewis Hill and Duncan Meier, Jr., and the bridegroom's only attendant was his best man, Eugene Tittman. Rev. James W. Lee, assisted by Rev. John A. Wright, performed the marriage ceremony. After receiving congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. English departed for a wedding journey. Upon their return they will take possession of their new home at 411 North Newstead avenue. The bride is the daughter of Edward S. Lewis of 4401 McPherson avenue. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. English, of the Buckingham Hotel. Out of town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Bernard Kalker, Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Dula and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dula, all of New York.

Miss Belle Norton Finlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Finlay of 4938 Berlin avenue, will be married to John Arthur Slater of New York, June 14. The wedding will take place at home, and although it will be one of the notable nuptial events of the season, will be comparatively a quiet affair. The details have not yet been announced. Only a very few of Miss Finlay's friends know that the wedding date has been set. Miss Finlay's engagement to Mr. Slater was announced last December.

New hats and sweaters for country club wear. Dark colored hats, formerly priced up to $25, this week reduced to $5 and $10. Sally Meagher, 801 Century Bldg.

Miss Marie Hardenbrook and George Byron Ford Jr., of Ontario, Cal., will be married Thursday, June 1, at the home of Miss Hardenbrook's aunt, Mrs. J. Van S. Barret, 4520 West Pine boulevard. Miss Hardenbrook's father, Mitchell Hardenbrook, will come from New York to be present at the wedding, which will be quiet, only the friends of the young bride-to-be being asked. Miss Hardenbrook made her debut in St. Louis two winters ago under the chaperonage of her aunt, Mrs. Barret, and has spent the greater part of her time here since then. Mr. Ford has a large orange grove near Ontario, Cal., and will take his bride there after the marriage.

A new sort of diversion for the fashionable set of St. Louis will be provided next season in the form of morning musicales at the St. Louis Woman's Club. A course of four such events already has been arranged, and Miss Elizabeth Cuenty, who will direct the series, has issued invitations for them.

The artists listed are Frances Ingram, contralto; Arthur Shattuck, pianist; Albert Stoessel, violinist, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allen Stults, soprano and basso. The dates of the musicales are Nov. 10, Dec. 8, Jan. 5 and Feb. 2.

Miss Leila Myerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Myerson of 5739 Cabanne avenue, was married to Seargent Willett, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Howard Willett, of 5 North Taylor avenue, at 6 o'clock last evening. Rev. Father J. J. Tannrath of the Old Cathedral, Third and Walnut streets, officiated. The wedding was attended by the immediate families and intimate friends.

Miss Lucile Myerson, a cousin, attended the bride, and Jack Crandall was groomsman. The bride was attired in a gray silk traveling suit. A dinner followed the wedding, after which Mr. Willett and his bride departed for a honeymoon tour of about two weeks.

The couple originally planned their wedding for some early date in June, but advanced it on account of business reasons. No arrangements have as yet been made for their future home.

The Cummings Shop, 804 Century Building, is closing out odd lots of La Grecque underwear this week at half price.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—ADV.

Miss Rowena Clark, daughter of Judge Enos Clark of Seven Gables, Kirkwood, entertained the conservation section of the St. Louis District of Women's Clubs at her home Wednesday.

A tea was given Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Charles Castlan, in University City, for the members of the University City Study Club and their guests, about 60 being present. Mrs. Castlan was assisted in receiving by Mmes. Alfred J. Barrett, Lee M. Cox, John T. McRoberts and John R. Williams, and Misses Mary Louise McRoberts, Jessamine Hopkins and Gertrude Reilly, served at the tea table.

Mrs. Henry P. Hilliard will entertain the bridge club of which she is a member at "Mintmere," her country home on the Bellefontaine road, Monday afternoon.

Miss Margaret Sliger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Sliger of 5650 Clemens avenue, is expected home today from San Antonio, Tex., where she has been for several weeks.

Mrs. Frank Liebke of 5418 Cabanne avenue is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harold Muhlhauser, in Cincinnati.

The engagement of Miss Mary Dickinson and Capt. F. M. Henderson, both instructors at the Eastern Military Academy at Alton, Ill., has been announced. The wedding will be in June. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the Adirondack Mountains, and later will go to Mexico, Mo., to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Morrison of 5553 Maple avenue have issued cards for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Martha Morrison, to Charles Stoddard Jenney of Boston, which will take place Tuesday, June 6, at the Second Presbyterian church.

The engagement of Miss Loretta H. Dieckman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony R Dieckman of 2140 Oregon avenue, to Charles J. Borghoff of 779 Aubert avenue has been announced. The wedding will be June 28.

Mrs. Monroe Horton gave a "Pointe-aux-Barques" party at her home in Webster Park Friday afternoon, the guests all being St. Louisans who have been spending their summers at Point-aux-Barques, Mich., for the last three years. The entertainment of the afternoon was bridge.

The Maryville Sacred Heart Alumnae held its fourth annual meeting Wednesday, at Maryville Convent on Meramec street. Reverend Mother Reid and several of the religious received the visitors in the entrance hall. The regular business meeting followed, at which Mrs. Howard Benoist, president of the alumnae, presided. The roll call and reports were read. The alumnae medal was awarded to Miss Mary Coppinger, graduate of this year, for her essay on the subject, "In Maiden Meditation, Fancy Free." Miss Coppinger read her composition.

Luncheon was served in the refectory at 1:30 o'clock. Spring blossoms and the alumnae colors, white and yellow, formed the decorations. Mrs. Marie Reine de Penalosa was toast mistress. The general subject of the toast was "The Ideals of Womanhood." "Social Service" was answered by Mrs. Eugene Fusz. "Woman in Literature" (with Agnes Repplier as type), Mrs. J. Lucas Turner's remarks. "Woman of the Hearth," by Mrs. Charles Wall Jr. "The Religicus," written by Florence Gilmore, was read by Mrs. F. Rene Desloge, as Mrs. Gilmore could not be present.

At 3:30 o'clock an entertainment by the pupils was given on the lawn, where a raised stage and seats ranged in tiers like a small Shakespearean theater was a fit setting for the "Old Dances and Ballads" on the program. The ceremony of benediction in the convent chapel at 5 o'clock closed the order of alumnae day.

The Herculaneum Club held its regular meeting Tuesday at the home of Walter Hatzfeld, 2705 South Compton avenue, to arrange for the excursion of the Young Men's Progressive Civic Association, June 6, on the steamer Alton. The members are: Henry Giessenbier Jr., Matthew Ungermann, Max Schmidt, Walter Koch, William Ryan, Claude Ellis, Walter Hatzfeld, George Koch and Oliver Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Ahern of 2812 Washington avenue, departed Saturday for New York to attend the dancing teachers' convention. They will visit Cincinnati and Washington, D. C., returning by way of Chicago.

The Esther Class of Trinity Evangelical Church met at the church hall May 15, in honor of Miss Clara Nitzsche, who is to become the bride of John Schopp, June 14. Among those present were: Rev. Bahnsen, Misses Clara Nitzsche, Stella Bubla, Minnie Ernst, Adel Ellenberg, Elma Eisworth, Viola Flachmeier, Frieda Feuser, Minette George, Rose Haas, Emma Heinz, Esther Roesch, Elizabeth and Anna Steinhauser, Alma and Ella Weilbacher, Ella Werner, Edna and Ella Wielt.

Mrs. L. L. Renfrow of 3207 Indiana avenue entertained Friday evening with a dinner party for her son L. Huber Renfrow, who is a junior at Washington University. Guests were: Misses Ruth Kelso, Verna Day, Alva Mae Davidson, Irma Wiegand, Florence Miller, Mamie Lorenz and Irma Kochtitzky; Messrs. J. T. Yates, R. Gautz, F. L. Edele, P. I. Kriege, C. F. Roth and L. H. Renfrow.

The Old Age Sign Double Crossed

Don't let gray hair make you look years older than you are, for it is now an easy matter to tint gray, faded or bleached hair in a harmless way. The new preparation, "Brownatone," is proving so popular that thousands of people of refinement and many leading hairdressers are now using this wonderful product exclusively.

"Brownatone" meets every demand and fulfills every test required of it, and is so simple to use that no previous experience is necessary. Comes ready for use—no mixing and is entirely free from lead, sulphur, silver, zinc, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives. There is no danger of irritation or a poisoned scalp when you use "Brownatone," because it is guaranteed harmless.

Produces the most beautiful shades from light golden to the deepest brown or black. Will not rub or wash off and cannot be detected. Most all leading druggists everywhere now sell "Brownatone" in two sizes, 25c and $1.00, and in two colors—one to produce "golden or medium brown," the other "dark brown or black."

The Season's Most Sensational Suit Event

The result of the tardy Spring, and the unsettled conditions with the suit manufacturers. These conditions worked a hardship on the manufacturers, but their ill luck is your good fortune. Here is what it brings in the present case:

650 New Spring Suits, Values $25 to $35, for $10

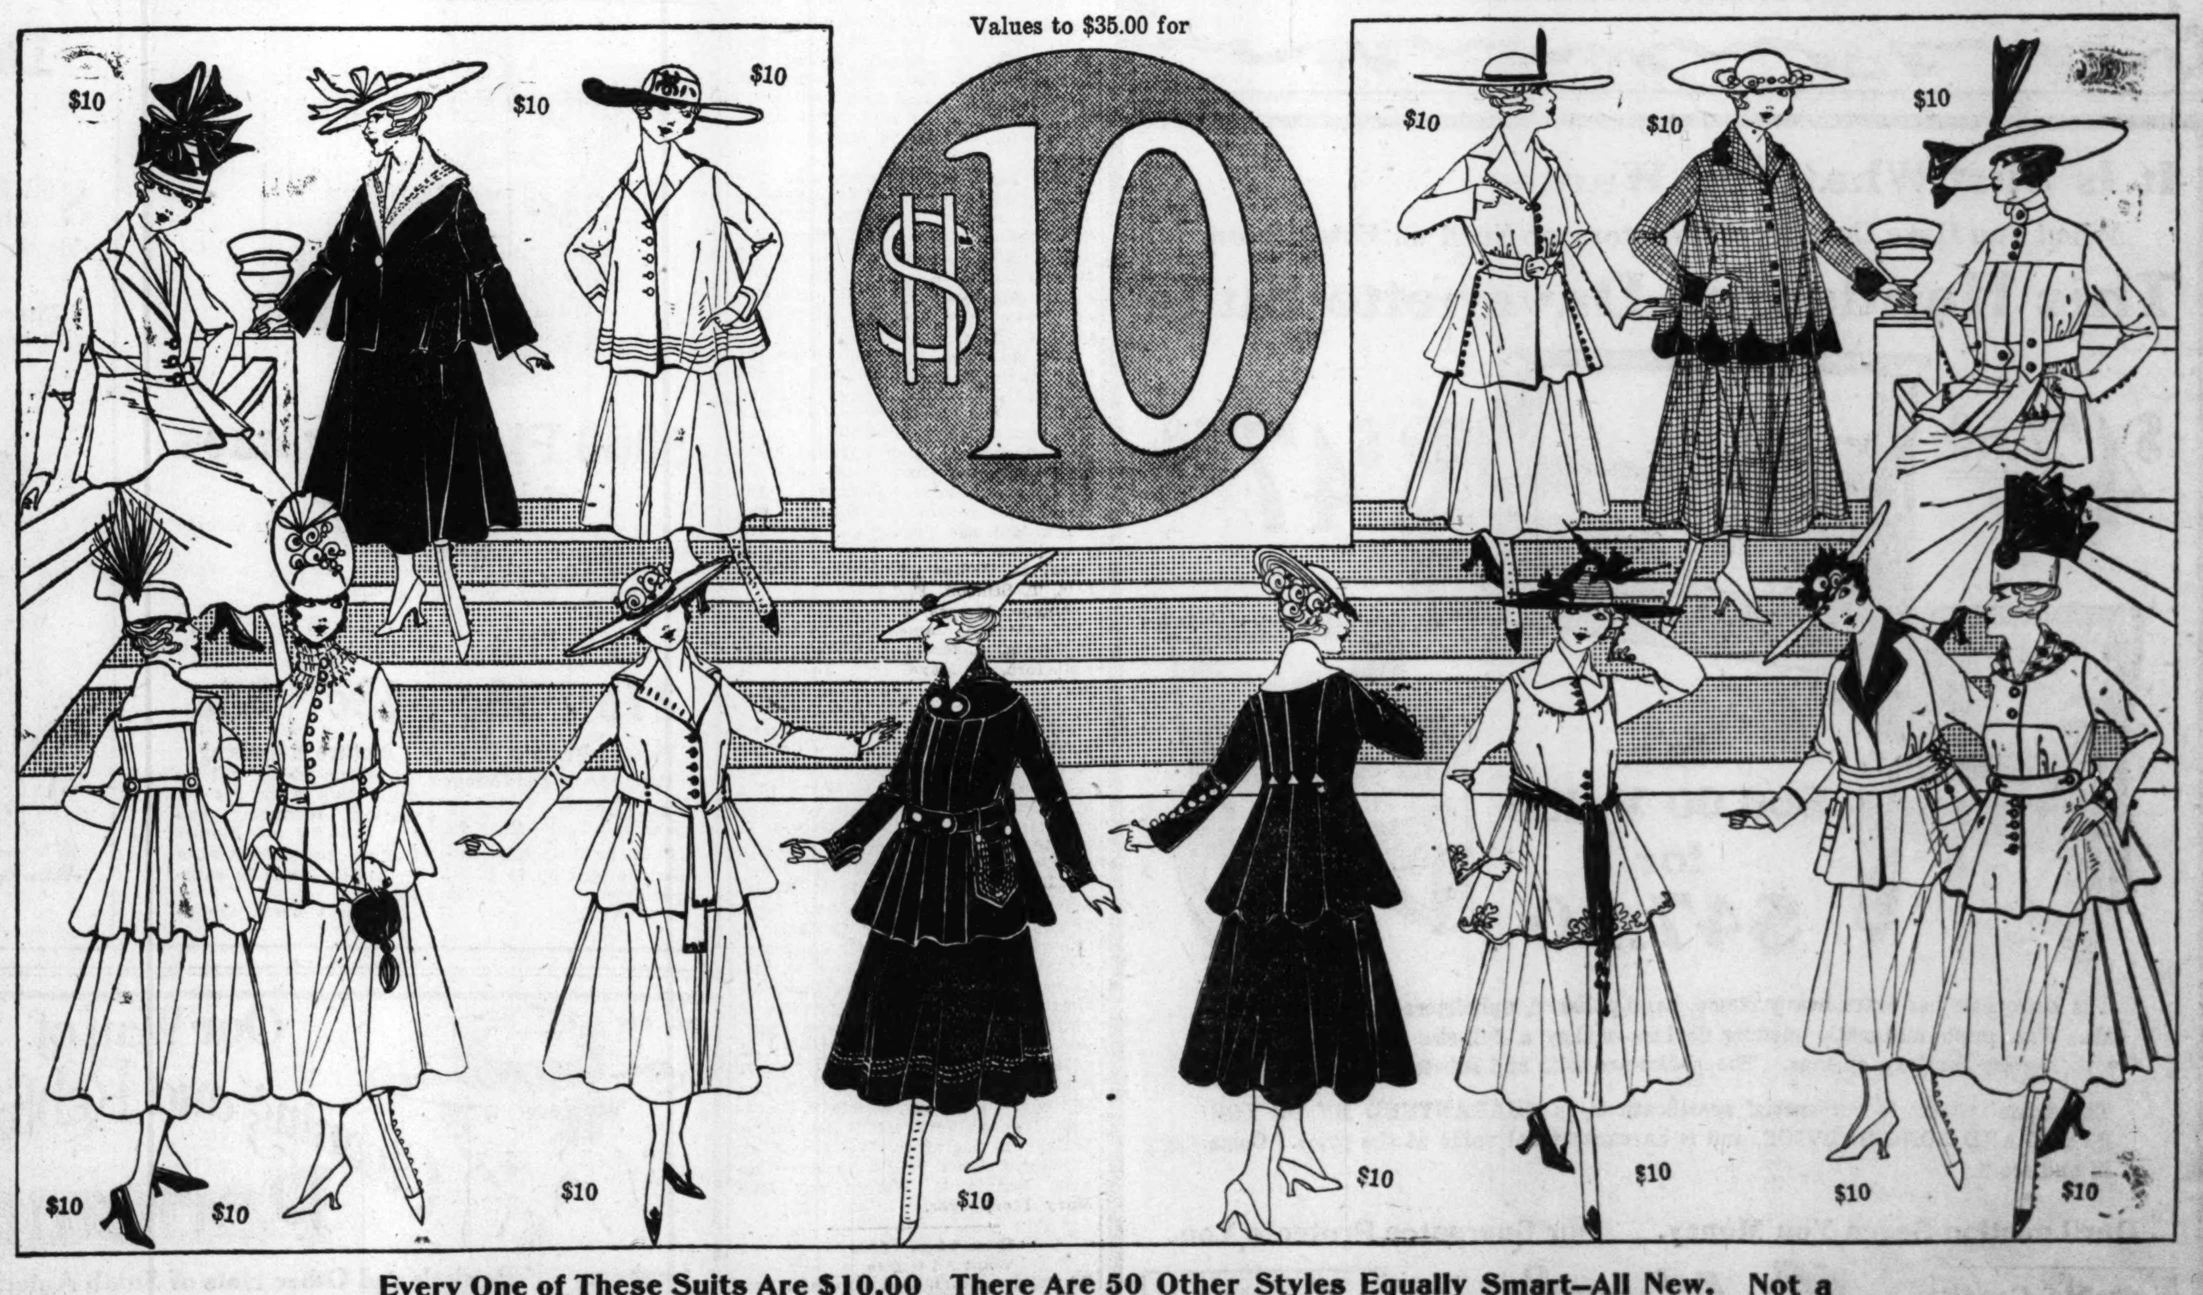
This unusual event was as unexpected by us as it will be welcome to the woman who has need of an extra Suit for immediate and all-Summer wear. Our Mr. Garland took a run down to New York last week—not in quest of Suits, in fact, had no thought or expectation of buying any Suits—as most suit houses are sold out, or holding up their prices.

But, he found two Suit houses from whom we buy largely every season—each with a few hundred Suits to close out. On account of the labor conditions with the garment workers, they decided to shut down for the Summer and make some extensive improvements in their factories. We bought both stocks at the biggest underprice of the season.

650 Suits altogether—300 from Solomon & Marx, who specialize in tailor-mades and semi-fancy Suits for women of conservative tastes. 350 from Singer Bros., whose specialty is novelty styles—Suits of the more dressy kind and "Sport" Suits for the younger set. Both firms are leaders in their particular line.

Neither of them ever make a Suit to sell regularly under $25.00, the bulk of their output is Suits to retail at $30.00, $35.00 and $40.00. So you can readily see what an opportunity this is. The cream of the leading maker of tailor-mades and the pick of one of America's foremost specialists in novelty styles at less than the price usually paid for a Suit of the ordinary kind.

Values to $35.00 for



Every One of These Suits Are $10.00 There Are 50 Other Styles Equally Smart—All New. Not a Suit in the Entire 650 Worth Less Than $25.00—Most of Them Are Worth $30.00 and $35.00

APPAM GOLD CHESTS EXHIBITED

Boxes Taken From British Vessel an Attraction in Berlin.

BERLIN, May 20.—The latest attraction at the "War Exposition" which has been opened for several months for charitable purposes are the chests and boxes that formerly contained the gold captured aboard the English ship Appam by the German auxiliary cruiser Moewe.

The gold itself is safely locked up in the Reichesbank, but at the instance of the Admiralty the huge bars were accurately copied in wood and gilded to have the appearance of the original. Then, with the chests, they were sent to the exposition as a reminder of the daring exploit of Count Dohna-Schlodien.

BIG BRIDGE PARTY FOR DISABLED BRITISH SOLDIERS

Lady Peek, Here, to Be in Charge of Fashionable Affair May 29.

Galsworthy's Appeal for the Star and Garter Home.

EXCERPTS from John Galsworthy's appeal in behalf of the fund for the Star and Garter Home for totally disabled soldiers, as published in the London Observer.

Totally disabled — incurably helpless! No! One can't realize what it feels like to be caught young and strong in such a net; to be caught—not for your own folly and excesses, not through accident or heredity, but as reward for giving yourself body and soul for your country. Better so, more easily borne; and yet how much more ironically tragic!

WHO knows what the freedom of the limbs means until he has lost it? Who can measure the ectasy of vigor, till every power of movement has been cut off? Who really grasps what it is like to lie like a log dependent for everything on others, save those who have to?

Some among prisoned spirits must need shrink and droop, and become atrophied in that long helplessness of the broken body. But many will grow finer; whether—according to their natures—pursuing the ideal of recompense in another world; or, in the stoic belief that serenity and fortitude are the fine flowers of life; unconsciously following the artist's creed—that to make a perfect thing, even if it be only his own spirit, is in itself all the reward.

WHICHEVER it may be, slow decay or slow perfecting, we others approach them with heads bowed, in as great reverence as we give to the graves of our brave dead. And if pity—that pity which to some, it seems, is but ignoble weakness—be not driven from this earth, then with pity we shall nerve our resolve that never shall anything be lacking to support or comfort those who gave all for us and are so broken by their sacrifice.

For these greatest of all sufferers—these helpless and incurable—can we do too much—ever reach the word: Enough?

A large bridge party will be given Monday, May 29, at the residence of Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, 16 Portland place, for the fund now being raised to establish a home in London for British soldiers who have been permanently disabled by the war. Lady Wilfrid Peek, whose husband is at the front with the allied armies, is in charge of the arrangements, and will be assisted by Mmes. Dwight F. Davis, John T. Davis Jr., George D. Markham, John Holliday, Charles P. Pettus and Orion Willis. Invitations for the party will be issued tomorrow.

Lady Peek, who formerly was Miss Edwine Thornburgh of St. Louis, is visiting her mother, Mrs. William C. Stribling of the St. Regis apartments. She has received an appeal from friends in England to aid in raising this fund of $250,000, and will devote much of her time while here to that work.

The home is to be known as the Star and Garter Home, and is the memorial of the women of England to the living heroes of the war who are permanently invalided. Queen Mary and the Dowager Queen Alexandria are the patronesses of the fund, and Lady Cowdray is the treasurer. John Galsworthy, the playwright, has written an appeal for this fund, which is being circulated in England and America, and is bringing enthusiastic responses.

The bridge party will be one of the fashionable events of the month. Patronesses are Mmes. William Bagnell, Edward F. Goltra, Joseph D. Bascom, Frank V. Hammer, William Dee Becker, Joseph G. Holliday, John Holliday, David R. Calhoun, Daniel K. Catlin, Charles Cummings Collins, Frank P. Crunden, George Castleman, L. Ray Carter, Dwight F. Davis, John T. Davis Jr., Joseph Dickson, John D. This Skin Peeler All the Rage in Society

There is a growing tendency among women of culture and fashion to pay more attention to hygenic means of preserving their charms. The advent of mercolized wax doubtless has been largely responsible for this. This remarkable substance produces complexions so natural in appearance, so magnetically beautiful, artificial complexions are no longer desired. Instead of "doctoring" an offensive skin, the skin is peeled off. The wax peels the skin so gradually, in such fine particles, no discomfort is experienced. The fresher, younger skin beneath, wholly in evidence within a week or two, is lily white, satiny soft and smooth. It's not a patched-over complexion, but a brand-new one. That's why mercolized wax has become such a rage among society folk. The wax is put on nights like cold cream and washed off mornings. All druggists have it; one ounce will do.

Another hygienic treatment now much in favor is one to remove wrinkles, made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. Used as a wash lotion it "acts like magic."—ADV.

Austrian Attack Aimed to Forestall Offensive

Tyrol Move Like That of Verdun

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Post-Dispatch.)

FRANK H. SIMONDS.

IN the minds of all observers of the war the Austrian attack upon Italy will seem a natural and normal expansion of a policy well defined in the case of Verdun. The policy may be described as a decision on the part of Germany to renounce grandiose operations like the campaign against Russia last summer and confine herself to a general defensive, supplemented by a limited offensive on a narrow front.

In the case of Verdun we are now pretty familiar with the German method. Attacking on a narrow front, with a colossal concentration of artillery and only a relatively considerable infantry force, they endeavored to take first by main force and by surprise and then by a slow and steady push, one of the best known of French fortresses, which, although no longer of military value, preserved its hold upon the imagination of the French and German publics. Both the surprise attack and the slow and steady pounding have failed at Verdun. Despite oscillations and fluctuations the Germans have made no real progress for two months. Now their military experts have fallen back on a third line of argument to justify the attack and to sustain a claim for success. It is this third line of argument which is most interesting to watch, with the Austrian attack on Italy in progress.

The effects of the German attack upon Verdun, the German experts assert, has been to disarrange the whole allied plan for a general offensive this spring. The losses of the French and the expenditure of ammunition has been so great that France is out of the running for the year, and the allied general offensive is impossible, Germany thinks.

Add to this the German belief that France is exhausted in men, in spirit, in resources, and it is easy to explain why Germany keeps on pounding at Verdun, when all hope of military success is at an end and at most only a moral value can attach to any local victory. The German conception as to French exhaustion is probably mistaken. But Germany and German writers cling to it firmly.

Now an Austrian attack upon Italy is plainly predicated on the same conception. France is out of the running. Italy is the next in line. An attack upon Italy by the Southern Tyrol carries with it the possibility, the maximum possibility, of an advance to Verona or Vicenza, the isolation of all the Italian armies east of Vicenza on the Isonzo front, the complete dislocation of Italian plans and of Italian participation in a general allies offensive. Such a maximum profit is at best unlikely—, but there remains the chance that Italy will lose so heavily in men, in muntitions, that she will also be eliminated, as the Germans assert France is eliminated for the balance of the year. Meantime it is clear that Germany is standing on the defensive in Russia and on the British front. She is using only small forces against Verdun and the Austrian army actually in the Tyrol is not considerable according to contemporary standards.

Germany has failed to take Verdun. Austria will possibly fail to get Verona. But neither failure will be of moment if France and Italy are put out of the running for the present season.

Converse of German View.

Now the converse of German view is freely stated by allied commentators. These declare that Germany has lost far more men and expended far more ammuition than the French have done at Verdun, that she has failed to precipitate a premature and ill-co-ordinated allied offensive and that when their time comes the allies will be able to launch a general offensive from all points.

Remember, always, that hitherto the chief German advantage has been the possession of the interior lines which enabled her to move quickly from the east to the west, from France to Russia, to meet an attack. The allies have not co-ordinated their efforts. The South in our own Civil War possessed the same advantage, and used it successfully, until Grant initiated the policy of attacking on all fronts simultaneously, and then the end was relatively prompt.

If the allies are correct in their assertions, they posses the power to strike at their own moment on all fronts. Germany has failed to disorganize their plans or break up their arrangements by the Verdun operation. If Germany is accurate, the policy of limited local offensives, succeeding the old general attack of the Marne and of the Russian campaigns, is proving fatal to an allied offensive this year.

It is fair to conclude that the change in German policy represents a recognition that it is no longer possible to win the war on the old scale. It is no longer possible to destroy the military forces of France or of Russia and thereby eliminate them from the war. On the other hand, it seems to indicate the Germans have no larger hope than that of maintaining what they now hold until allied exhaustion compels a settlement by diplomats, not by soldiers.

Germany Ready for Peace.

Germany is now ready to make peace. She cannot conquer Europe. She no longer believes she can dispose of Russia or France permanently, but she believes that she can hold her present lines indefinitely and disorganize and wear out her opponents by small offensives like the Verdun attack. She counts on the moral effect upon France and Italy of steady losses without profit, and she expects that France first, Italy next, will consent to peace when peace offers them integrity and war no possible profit.

If Germany could provoke the allies to a premature attack which failed, she would reap large profit and might get peace on terms that would leave her supreme in the Near East. If she can hold on her present line until winter and prevent a general offensive, she may get material gain out of the war.

But it is essential to recognize that her position is weakened by her manifest eagerness for peace, which has combined with the Verdun campaign to inspirit the allies, and absence of all success, coupled with steady casualties, may have as profound effect upon her population as she has hoped it would have upon the French.

As far as one can judge Germany and her Austrian ally are now trying to cut their losses while holding onto their conquests against the day of settlement by negotiation. This is a complete break with the method of 1914 and 1915. In both of these years Germany tried to win by a general and colossal attack that should not defeat but annihilate.

Civil War Parallel.

Apparently we are coming to a change in the history of the great war. A similar change came after Gettysburg in the Civil War. The South renounced the idea of conquering peace on the enemy's territory. It clung for two years more to the idea that it could win freedom by defending the territory its armies held. This was the last phase of the Confederacy.

It is worth recalling, too, that in this last phase Europe, and even not a few Northerners, talked of peace and of the fatal folly of going on with a hopeless struggle. To the very end the South clung to the belief that it could not be beaten on its own lines. The new German policy, if it is a policy, cannot be taken as other than a confession of weakness. The problem which remains to be faced is: Will allied strength of will endure? If it does, it is not hard to foresee new German suggestions of peace, this time based on the prospects, not on the present situation.

Mothers' Circle to Meet.

Members of the Mothers' Circle and Parent Teachers' Association who belong to the National Congress of Mothers' Associations will meet Wednesday at 10 a. m. in Vandervoort's assembly room.

SPANISH BARITONE ENGAGED BY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

In addition to the distinguished artists already signed for next season with the Symphony Orchestra, the management announces that it has engaged Emilio de Gogorza, Spanish baritone, of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Miss Frieda Hempel, soprano, of the Metropolitan, and Percy Grainger, Australian pianist-composer, who gave a recital recently at the Woman's Club, and three of whose works were played at the New York Symphony Orchestra concert.

The management has doubled the appropriation for soloists for the coming season, and will spend, it is said, $12,000 to obtain the best available artists. The seat subscription sales are announced to be $5000 in advance of what they were at this time last year.

"Good As New"

Saves Time—Saves Money

When you clean anything with Radium Soap, it is "good as new." You can Dry-Clean everything at home, do the work the way it ought to be done. Radium Soap adds to the cleansing qualities of gasoline, the same as ordinary soap adds to the cleansing properties of water. You save a lot of time, money and clothing by using it.

Radium Soap

Contains no grease. You simply dissolve it in clean, cold gasoline. Does not injure the finest fabrics or the nap on velvets or plush. Gasoline alone leaves a "shine." Radium Soap prevents it, and removes all the dirt.

Radium Gasoline Settler

cleans and settles dirty gasoline, saving it for future use. One box with each carton of Radium Soap at 25c.

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteeed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—ADV.

Casement's Letters Tell of His Plans Against England

thing—all my plans & movements & thoughts & hopes.

It is the Crime of all the Ages—and I blame not the Kaiser or Germany—but chiefly England who has plotted and planned it from the days of the first big German battleship.

I am staying with John Quinn (the lawyer) an Irish friend, and seeing various Irishmen & others to interest them in the Irish Volunteers—but what can one say or do with this welter of blood & horror & crime in Europe. I pray day & night, "God save Germany!"

Yesterday I called on Col. Roosevelt & Oyster Bay and exchanged ideas.

I meet Mayor Mitchel tomorrow & do the same—& day by day I collect funds to arm my Irish boys at home—some day, who knows?—to fight a fight for Ireland. This address finds me. Yours,

ROGER CASEMENT.

England Conspired With Armed Assassins to Destroy Germany.

58 Central Park West
New York City
15 August 1914

My Dear Bigelow:

We don't agree. I don't accept as anything but an English lie the statement that Germany tried to ruin the U. S. A. in 1898. There is not nor never has been proof of it—but there is proof in hills & mountains of English effort in the past to smash this country. However, bygones are bygones—& if English hostility to America is forgotten & forgiven, why nurse anger against Germany when the very cause of the anger is so doubtful?.

England has ruined Ireland—morally, financially and physically. She has degraded and demoralized the people—destroyed their language, their culture, their music—every thing in fine that stands for the soul of a nation; she has robbed them thro' the centuries & most of all in the last century (as Lord MacDonnell put it "at least 320,000,000 pounds sterling, an Empire's Ransom"); and she has driven them to flight across the oceans.

Her present campaign against Germany is hypocritical and mendacious—She aims at one thing only—to destroy German competition; to destroy German peaceful rivalry; to sweep from her path the only great commercial people in Europe whose integrity and capacity and efficiency she dreads.

In order to achieve this she entered, (7 years ago it began) into an unholy alliance with two armed assassins. Unable herself, alone, to strike the blow at her great and tranquil adversary she bribes two bravos, two military mercenaries, to do the deed. To France she gave Morocco (which was not hers to give and violates her own treaty—the act of Algericas) as hiring price in the anti-German prize ring.

To Russia she hands over Northern and Middle Persia which were not hers to give: She now mediates the crime of the centuries—to destroy the civilization and industry of Central Europe and replace Germanic culture with Russian ignorance and tyranny.

Herself a non-European Power, only anxious for money and the trade of the of the World on her terms, she enters into a conspiracy to hand Europe over to Russia and French militarism in order that she may have all the trade dealing ot the sea outside of Europe.

It is a vile deed.

I am not lingering in New York to meet politicians—but to see my decent good fellow-Irishman and get their help to arm the Irish volunteers I helped to found.

Ireland has no sins on her conscience against weaker people—and when Ireland is armed and drilled, please God we shall be masters in our own house and fight only one battle—that of self-defense.

Too long we have helped to plunder and pillage other peoples on behalf of the Power that has held us in its grip and for its sole profit.

I repeat I earnestly pray for Germany's triumph over British greed, French revenge, Russian dominance, Servian assassination and Japanese "chivalry."

England is in bed with fine bedfellows for the land that claims its policy rests upon the Bible!

Cromwell's murder were also leaves out of that book—and I fancy it is the chief of wadding for the British guns in every epoch—whether aimed at American independence, Irish land, Hindu, Turk or Tartar—and now the Teuton.

Germany's Protestantism is no shield when John Bull sees a market.

I hope he will get it in the neck and learn what it is to inflict war on others. He who has not ever suffered war has been the one Power to carry war abroad (as now) and to inflict its horrors on others.

When England has experienced in her own sacked and ravaged and bombarded cities, ruined industries and starving millions, what it is to suffer war, we shall have peace in the world. All who desire peace should hope to see the one Power always at war, at length brought to realize the meaning and horror of war.

If the Almighty has a drop of Protestant blood in his veins he will be on the side of Germany in this war, of the most peace-loving people of Europe fighting for their national life, their industry, their commerce—their existence as a great race.

So now, my dear Bigelow, you know where I stand.

Yours ever
ROGER CASEMENT

"Gathering Arms for the Irish Volunteers."

c o John Quinn
31 Nassau St.
N. York City
21 August 1914

My dear Bigelow,

There is indeed no reason save one norrid one, why I should not be with you bathing in the Hudson instead of grilling and melting in this inferno. The reason is the inclosed! I am seeing men in connection with arms for the Volunteers daily nearly and hourly often.

I go to Chicago on Saturday to see a Committee of prominent men there and then return to New York, and with the help of God I may then strike Maiden-on-Hudson.

A hundred thanks to you for all your kind thoughts—

Yours ever
ROGER CASEMENT

"I Loathe Politics and Its Devotees."

This address finds me until I go north to Canada, thence to embark for North of Ireland—

30 Sept. 1914

5421 Springfield Avenue
Philadelphia
Pa.

My dear Bigelow,

You kind card of 16 Sept, asking me again to go and see you reached me late.

I've been away—and always am busy—altho' not with politicians as you so persistently maintain! Your insistence that because I am a Nationalist I must be a politician amuses me. I loathe politics and its devotees. I would not go into a Parliament or Senate or Congress for £10,000 a year. I have just denounced politics in the inclosed statement of my principles of nationality, which went to Ireland 10 days ago, and please God, will be now scattered broadcast all over that land.

The only place I shall end in will be jail!—a British jail for Irish "felony." Of course, if I went out with murder in my heart against the Germans who have never wronged Ireland I'd be a splendid "patriot," but because I want my poor, brave, credulous countrymen to stay at home and if they fight at all, to fight then for Ireland, I am a traitor. Such is the irony of British "democracy!" God deliver me from a democracy that feeds in peace itself and stirs up war and desolation wherever its greed, its lust, its appetite call for conflict. It fights always with other men's lives—in other men's lands—with ravaged and sacked cities of other countries. The day England herself suffers the horrors of invasion and feels war at home—we shall have peace abroad—not till then. The task of civilization must be, surely will be—to destroy British immunity from invasion, so that the responsibility for her intrigues abroad and alliances with others to foment war elsewhere shall fall on the shoulders of the principal as well as of his "allies."

If London suffered what London has caused Brussels, Louvain, Liege to suffer, there would be no war in Europe.

It is because London and all it shelters of imperial greed and cupidity is immune and feels it can never suffer, that England has begotten this war of horror against Germany.

Only Two Statesmen in America.

I have heard it plotted and planned for years. I saw it designed steadily in the F. O. and I have again and again warned them there of where they were driving. They meant to drive there. They knew it was a crime, but delenda est Carthago! Germany's crime was German higher efficiency in the walks of international commerce and in sea affairs. The day she decided that she, too, had a future on the seas, that day her doom was decreed.

England fights for one thing only—her interests as the World Emporium. She has two ends in view—1st to destroy Germany as a rival. 2d to rope the U. S. A. into an alliance of World partnership in the Emporium line.

She will fail in No. 1 ultimately even if she wins today. Germany is too great and has too good blood in her veins. Even if England gets her down, with the aid of Russia, France, Japan and the "Silver Bullet"—Germany will rise again.

But England may succeed in No. 2. I see the signs of surrender here on all sides. The virus of British Imperialism is being inoculated steadily—already the press is thoroughly poisoned and most of the politicians and so-called "public men" (you have at the outside perhaps 2 men in America who could be called statesmen.)

The attractions of a World Empire, to be called a "democracy" whereby wealth can be acquired by systematic pillage called 'trade' or 'finance' without the need of fighting—appeals greatly to the class of people who direct things here. German methods appal them. They wouldn't fight any more than the English. They want to dine in peace and have the fine things of life through exploitation—not through embattled strength. The English way of getting what you want appeals to them—it is discreet, "respectable," and sanctimonious. I prefer the German—the "brutality" of men not afraid to die for their country

VERY IMPORTANT—a selling event that will be of PARTICULAR INTEREST to every woman—our "ad" in Thursday's St. Louis Star

MILFORDS
716 WASHINGTON AV.

COTTON—LACE AND NET FROCKS will be very stylish this summer—may outrival the popular "SPORT" garments—and why not? How summery—how cool—how beautiful these airy nets and laces, frequently hand-embroidered—how dainty the flowered organdies, with their bright-colored ribbons and trimmings. We invite you to come and see our collection of cotton frocks. Of course we are showing Georgettes. See our West window for some of these dainty garments.

Lace Frocks, $14.98
A very pretty and graceful combination is of heavily embroidered lace that falls softly over net—the wide lace flounce falls loosely over the hemstitched overskirt—the sleeves of net are full flowing—wide band of white Georgette. Illustrated to right.

Georgette Frock, $19.75
Made of Georgette over net—bodice in hand embroidered and hemstitched—wide band of satin around waist, skirt and narrow bands on sleeve—the skirt is made very full—the sleeves are of ribbon at waist. Illustrated to left.

Silverbloom Suit, $7.98
Belted model—the coat of blue—the skirt has horizontal stripes of gray—the collar, belt and pockets of coat striped like the skirt. These colors, gold and pink.

Crepe Frocks, $5.98
A combination of striped crepe coat and plain white skirt—the wide blue stripes of coat are edged with red—we have a variety of color combinations.

A Sale of 1000 Dresses

THIS is really a combination of two sales bought by our Mr. Sternberg while recently in the East.

About one-third are drummers' samples—the remainder was obtained through a shrewd business transaction that a clever buyer sometimes can "drive" through.

This sale further demonstrates the progressive spirit that pervades this store and every thrifty shopper should, of course, be here as early as possible.

Read further, should you be interested in the most remarkable sale of Dresses ever held in St. Louis. No store is more particular about the accuracy of advertising.

Now as you expect much we are going to give you an idea of some of the wonderful values in this sale: $7.50 Sport Dress, black and white—$7.50 and $10 white voiles and lawn with lace and ribbon trimmings—you know organdies will be popular this Summer—$10 plain and flowered organdies and voiles with flounces and ruffles—self material. In an immense collection like this there is not sufficient space for complete descriptions. We are just beginning to have the hot days and the sultry ones are but a short time off; the time when you absolutely need these cool dresses. You cannot approach the values offered here until late July or August—there is not a dress offered the value of which is less than $5.00 or to pour out their blood in rivers for their faith in their fatherland.

Ireland His Motive for Everything.

All that I ever did that was unselfish or chivalrous in public life—and I have striven to be both in all my public service—has been done with the image of Ireland before me. I worked for Ireland always—for Ireland and the ideals of my own people when I went to find Leopold on the Congo and Julio Arana on the Putumayo.

And please God before I die I'll do something still for Ireland!

And so my dear old far-off friend of other days—of Lourenco Marques! ah! so far off now—all this means that I can't go and bathe up the Hudson or meander thro' its woods with you and drink your good coffee. I am, please God, going back to Ireland very soon now—to stand behind the volunteers in keeping my country's conscience clean if that can be, in this orgie of greed and plunder masquerading under the garb of a "holy war." If I, and those who stand with me in Ireland, can insure it, John Bull shall do his own fighting to "dismantle the German navy" and "sweep German commerce from the seas." Let Lord Curzon, instead of killing the Kaiser with his mouth (the contemptible cad!), go to the front and face the Kaiser's sons. Let Lord Crewe, instead of "venturing the opinion that now the home rule bill is on the statute book, Irishmen will rush to enlist," go and enlist himself, as every German Prince and peer has done. Let Lloyd George, instead of forging silver bullets and lies of base metal, go out as a volunteer to guard the fields of Belgium and the vineyards of France.

No—these preux chevaliers, instead of bearing the brunt of that war they have plotted and planned for years, are calling for "more expensive feed and drink" in the smart London restaurants "to celebrate the German defeats"—by the French!

(See New York Times London cable of Sept. 15.)

I knew Lord Curzon—once—and I've met Lloyd George and all the rest of them. I'd walk out of any room they were in today and prefer the company of the waiters.

Unless this country makes up its mind to fight, if need be, for its neutrality, Great Britain will destroy its neutrality and compel it to take sides against the "enemy of civilization." I see the game being steadily played here—by the Kiplings, Conan Doyles, H. G. Wells, Winston Churchills and all the rest of the Westminster troup of artists. They are only beginning today. Just breaking ground—but the trenches are being dug for an assault on American neutrality all along the line—to open fire with a universal howl whenever John Bull gets a serious reverse at sea. Let the German navy score, by chance, any decided naval victory and we shall find a concerted yell for help sent up throughout all the "American press." Common ideals," our Anglo-Saxon heritage of culture," "the cause of human freedom," etc., etc.—all these will be at stake—and a deliberate effort will be made to stampede this people into the camp of the allies.

I am as certain of it as I was three years ago that this war against Germany would be brought off. The plans are already drawn up and everything prepared and laid.

Two elements alone in this population—perhaps three—will prevent it being carried out—or will try to prevent it. They may succeed.

In any case the thing will be much harder to accomplish than the British Government hopes—and if it succeeds it will end this republic. It will turn this country into a vassal State to that one holding the Empire of the Seas.

Until there is freedom at sea: equality of sea rights for all: equal opportunity: & Navalism recognized as a greater foe to humanity than militarism there can be no peace to mankind; no security against war—but an eternal pledge that war to break that unjust monopoly must surely come, and come again, until the mastery of the seas is dissolved in the neutrality of the ocean. Yours ever,

ROGER CASEMENT.

Redmond Is Unmasked at Last.

P. S.—You might send me back the "Manifesto." I have only a few copies left here. I sent a lot to Ireland for publication there—but the censor (or "Smell-er-Out"' to use the Zulu phrase) who opens all letters may think this too immoral to be contributed to the Irish people. So I shall continue to send it by devious ways. I wrote it, in a heat of passion, jumping from bed with rage, when I read Lord Crewe's appeal to Irishmen to enlist & John Redmond's cowardly & blackguard endorsement of it. He—Redmond—is unmasked at last—& never again will any Irishman who believes in the cause of Ireland do anything but spit upon his name.

My dear Bigelow:—Thanks for your letter of 7th. I am sorry I can't go to stay with you in response to your kindly renewed invitation. I am going West on a long journey and don't expect to be back in this end of U. S A for a little time.

Excuse so hurried a line of thanks and regrets.

I never write in a passion. I write only as I think and feel & say with my pen what I should say with my mouth. The "treasonable" document is good sound common-sense and will appeal to those whose good opinion I value most—my own poor countrymen at home.

With all good wishes and kind thoughts. Yours ever,

ROGER CASEMENT.

Boy Pianist to Give Recital.

Charles F. Hassett, 16-year-old pianist, will give a recital at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon at Weltner's Conservatory hall, 3620 Finney avenue. He will be assisted by Miss Dorothy Kuhlmann, elocutionist, and Miss Katherine Sexton, vocalist. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hassett of 4768 Cupples place.

DINNER TONIGHT BY Y. M. H. A.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association, 3645 Delmar boulevard, will have an informal dinner tonight at 7 o'clock, at the Columbian Club, in honor of Julian W. Mack, Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and Jacob M. Loeb, President of the Chicago Board of Education and of the Chicago Hebrew Institute. Covers will be laid for more than 400 guests.

The latest feature the Y. M. H. A. has added to its recreation program is the building of four tennis courts on the large lot directly back of the association building and facing on the Suburban tracks. This vacant lot has been put in condition and four fine clay tennis courts, with a high wire fence has been arranged for the convenience of the players. It will be illuminated at night so that evening tournaments may be played throughout the summer.

WOMAN'S DEATH KILLS TWIN

BENEFIELD, W. Va., May 20.—Twenty-four hours after her twin sister, Miss Emily Abshire, died, Miss Elizabeth Abshire, though previously in perfect health, also died. Physicians say grief was the cause.

The two had been inseparable companions from childhood. Each was 64 years old. It is said they had never been separated for 24 hours at a time. They were the last of the Abshire family, the mother having preceded them to the grave a year ago.

How Chronic Constipation Can Be Permanently Relieved

Knowledge and Practice of Correct Daily Habit the Great Essential.

Constipation is a condition affecting all classes of all people and can be permanently relieved only by acquiring the habits of regularity

The most natural time for the eliminative process is in the morning when both the muscular and nervous systems are relaxed by sleep and rest. When relief does not come readily, it is an excellent plan to take a mild laxative at bedtime. Cathartics and purgatives, that by the violence of their quick action shock and disturb the system, should not be employed.

An effective laxative remedy that is very dependable, and which does not gripe or otherwise disturb the organs involved, is found in a combination of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that can be bought at the drug store for fifty cents a bottle.

Mrs. C. C. Allen, 215 Foam St., New Monterey, Calif., wrote to Dr. Caldwell that she "found Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin just what was needed for constipation and distress of the stomach after eating. It should be in every household."

MRS. C. C. ALLEN

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and keep it in the house to use when occasion arises. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Dr. Liebknecht, the Peace Leader, Not Like Revolutionists

he shared his goods equally among his children, bequeathing his distinction of manner to that son who, it is said, has become a well-to-do lawyer with bourgeoise convictions, and leaving to Karl his political beliefs and the daring to carry them out.

Worthy Son of His Father.

Carl Liebknecht has been called "the bravest man in Europe." Wilhelm Liebknecht had been distinguished among Socialists for his daring at a time when to be a Socialist was itself a daring adventure. He had been imprisoned again and again; exiled from Berlin, from Leipzig, from Prussia and even from Switzerland. And once—in 1848—he had headed an expedition much like that of Sir Roger Casement—invading Germany from Switzerland with a band of volunteers and proclaiming a republic in Baden. He was caught and he would have been condemned to death had a mob not broken into court during his trial and forced an acquittal.

The episode in his career which has best served as a guide to his son during the present war was the stand he took against the German Government during the War of 1870. It was with great difficulty that Bebel managed to persuade him not to vote against the war credits. Even his refraining from voting at all was considered almost treasonable. He was most scornful of the Government's attempt to placate the Social Democrats with promises of reforms "after the war;" and was fond of quoting the verse he had heard during his 13 years of exile in London:

"When the Devil was sick
The Devil a monk would be.
When the Devil was well
The devil a monk was he."

For his stand he suffered insults and violence; his own party threatened to expel him; and after the war he was thrown into a fortress for two years.

Present War Defensive.

His son's position in this war has been strikingly similar. In the party caucus of Aug. 3, 1914, he protested "with a violence hitherto unknown in our deliberations" against the proposal that the Social-Democrats should support the war credits. Although he was defeated, he left the Reichstag hall the following day rather than vote with his party against his convictions. On the second of the following December, he ostentatiously remained seated when the other Social-Democrats voted for the second war loan, and came out openly against it. Although this was a break with that tradition of his party which requires that the party vote in the Reichstag shall be unanimous, it was in accordance with another Social-Democratic tradition. During the War of 1870 Marx and other Socialist leaders had agreed that the Social-Democratic party can judge when a war in which their country is engaged ceases to be defensive and becomes a war of conquest. And they agreed that the war against France had reached that turning point after the victory of Sedan.

Liebknecht does not admit that the present war was, even at its inception, a defensive war on the part of Germany. But he seemed to feel that other Social-Democrats who thought differently should have had their eyes opened by the events that happened before December, 1914. And he circulated, in defense of his breach of party discipline, a short written statement of which the sentence, "This is not a defensive war," was the kernel. This did not save him from a vote of censure from hte Socialist Reichstag group, passed by a majority of 82 to 15. But when the fourth war loan had to be voted on a year later, those who had opposed the vote of censure had also become bold enough to join him in opposing the war credit.

LIEBKNECHT'S attitude in the Prussian Diet toward those reforms in the Prussian electoral law which the Government has promised to institute "after the war" is also reminiscent of his father's position. He refuses to take these promises seriously, as Socialist leaders like Scheidemann and Sudekum do; and points out, as proof that the "bourgeois parties" will never willingly let such reforms through, the opposition of reactionaries like Heydebrandt.

He is not personally popular in his party. This is due less to his extreme views than to his lack of personal magnetism. I have heard a Social-Democrat whose opinions are so revolutionary that he quotes Malatesta or Ferrer, rather than Marx or Bebel, speak disparagingly of Liebknecht.

No one questions his sincerity, not even the most reactionary chauvinist. But in the German mind it is folly to be sincere when your opponent is not—criminal folly. Whenever Liebknecht makes one of those famous interruptions of his in the Reichstag, the attitude of the other members is one of extreme irritation tempered by a sense of complete impotence. Everyone knows that what Liebknecht says is true. But everyone is equally sure that it will give a "false impression" to the world.

"What will the 'Ausland' say about this?" is the whisper that runs along the press gallery.

"The fellow should be thrown into the Rhine," mutters someone in the center of the house.

But there are very few who seriously advocate extreme measures. In fact, a German once said to me that it would be worth his Government's while to set aside a special bodyguard to see that nothing happens to Liebknecht, since a suspicion that there had been an effort to get rid of him might lead to a popular uprising.

Many Germans try to discount his importance by ascribing his whole agitation to a desire to play a big part in the eyes of the outer world. But there is, in reality, very little vanity in Karl Liebknecht. Other countries' appreciation of him means a great deal to him. He would probably have gone to pieces without it—he has been so bitterly attacked, so completely ostracized, in his own country. [illegible] he lacks self-esteem in the ordinary sense. That is part of the reason for his lack of a public "presence," and for something a little shrill and almost hysterical about his way of speaking. As he stands there in his faded uniform, impressing upon a disapproving audience every word he says, with an awkward nod of his head and a shake of his forefinger, you feel that there is only one thing about himself that he is vain about—his convictions. It is not that he is proud of his convictions because they are his. He is proud of himself because he stands by the convictions that so many others have deserted.

"Many Socialists blame our principles for our present failure," he has said, in a peace message to the world. It is not our principles that have failed, but the representatives of those principles."

But the commonest charge against him, the instinctive reaction of the average German to any mention of his name, is: "The man is crazy!"

"On the contrary," I once replied, "he is the most consistent man in Germany.'

"That's just it," came the retort, "consistent to the point of insanity."

Hates War and Capitalism.

There is just enough truth in that description to make it libelous. There is something about Karl Liebknecht that reminds you of Chesterton's description of an anarchist as a timid little man with glasses, who never dares open his mouth without quoting from some "authority." There is a good deal of pedantry about Karl Liebknecht. There is no doubt that he hates war and capitalism. Nor that he loves humanity and the proletariat. But there are many who are convinced that he loves his theories about humanity and the proletariat still more. He is a lawyer by profession.

He has been in America. On the day I went to see him, he asked me many questions about our attitude toward the war. The Berlin papers that very morning had been full of the bitterest attacks on him that had appeared for more than a year. So I could not help admiring the way he sat back and listened, in complete self-forgetfulness, to a description of something in no way connected with his own problems.

But his interests quickly narrowed, from American to American Socialism, and from the spirit of American Socialism to its technique. He was particularly interested in knowing exactly how American Socialists find out what business men control the country. My explanation—that comparative studies of the lists of officers and trustees of different big corporations sometimes disclose important secrets—was not detailed enough for him.

"But have you got a book exactly like this?" he asked, and ran into the next room, bringing back a sort of almanac in which all the important information about those in control of German corporations is gathered.

In another man, this interest in the mere detail of economic and political exposure might have seemed petty. But there was a certain glamor about that volume of names and statistics, when one realized that it had undoubtedly helped provide the basis for Liebknecht's famous Krupp revelations of 1913.

He has now broken with the traditions of Socialist party solidarity in a hundred different ways, and has even helped circulate in neutral and enemy countries a letter describing those leaders of the German Social-Democrats who stand by their Government as "leaders who have gone mad." But he abides religiously by the party rule forbidding members—particularly those who disagree with the majority—to give newspaper interviews on political subjects. For he means to be loyal to the Social Democracy. And he is convinced that the Social-Democracy stands with him. What matter to him if a majority of the party group passes a vote of censure against him? To him they are not the Social-Democracy, but merely those who "follow the call of the war trumpet like the befooled children of the rat-catcher of Hamelin." But the Social-Democracy, the proletariat itself, must be with him. For has he not made its cause his cause, and sacrificed everything for its sake?

It is this conviction that has given him the strength to stand defiant and almost alone, in spite of the scorn and the rage of an entire nation, on the ground he chose nearly two years ago.

What attracts these summer visitors is a big, impressive city with its myriad interests, so situated on the shores of Lake Michigan that its summer climate is one of the most delightful in the world.

Refreshing lake breezes so temper summer heat that few days are uncomfortable. These breezes put vigor in the atmosphere, giving an additional zest to sight-seeing and summer recreations.

This same blue lake gives Chicago all the attractions of a seaside city. Bathing beaches (public and private), 25-mile shore line, beaches where hundreds of thousands of bathers disport themselves every pleasant day, while the waters are dotted with white sails, energetic launches and jaunty canoes.

Most of this lake shore is paralleled by spacious boulevards, so that these aquatic activities combine with throngs of promenaders and a procession of automobiles in one inspiring, summer-long carnival.

Most of Chicago's theatres are open all summer, offering the choice of the leading theatrical attractions. Summer amusement parks provide a world of interest in themselves. There is splendid golf and tennis, both in the beautiful parks and at country clubs.

Endless miles of boulevards, extending through parks and residence sections, make a motoring paradise. These connect with excellent roads which permit long country tours.

Four famous Chicago hotels, illustrated in this advertisement, make a specialty of entertaining summer visitors. Each offers unsurpassed accommodations; delightful social life; each is located in Chicago's celebrated South Side Hotel Center, in the city's most exclusive residence district; near neighbors to the lake and south side parks; only 12 minutes from the loop, by fast Illinois Central express train service.

Very Effective Method for Banishing Hairs

(Modes of Today)

At very little cost any woman can rid her face of hairy growths, if she will use the delatone treatment. This is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This paste is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm results from this treatment, but care should be used to buy real delatone.—ADV.

Republicans Can Win Only With T. R., Hart Says

old stand-pat management, was for one term dropped out of the House which his policy had brought to a preliminary revolt. The rank and file of the Republican party has taken its lesson to heart; and all over the Union overtures have been made to Progressives to return to the fold.

Stand-Patters' Day Ended.

Nevertheless, the stand-pat leaders have been Pharaohs who harden their proud hearts. Nobody accuses Joseph H. Gallinger or William R. Crane or William Barnes or Boise Penrose or Joseph H. Crane or Charles W. Fairbanks of absorbing any more Progressism than they can possibly help. If these men continue to control their party they will do just what they did before—wreck it by insisting upon a machine-made party policy and a system of privileges in and out of Congress.

Let there be no mistake on this point. The Progressives almost to a man, are willing to resume the name of Republicans, to share in the Republican joys and sorrows and to vote for Republican candidates who represent their principles; but they will not swallow the men who directed the Chicago convention of 1912 contrary to the interests of the party and the real desires of a majority of the Republican delegates. If their votes are needed and wanted, they must have a candidate in whom they have confidence and a liberal platform.

With this political line-up, the country is approaching the nominations of 1916. It is a critical time; for the man who will be put into the White House will have to steer the ship of state through the most critical conditions since the Civil War. In the preliminaries of this struggle the Democrats have an easy time, for they see only three candidates from whom to choose—Woodrow Wilson of Princeton, ex-Gov. Wilson of New Jersey and President Wilson.

A familiar name is lacking in this list. Where is Bryan? The boys of Marblehead, Mass., for many years had a bad reputation for stoning strangers. A man who came to the town, arriving one Sunday, expressed to the hotel keeper his surprise that there seemed to be no rowdy boys about. He thought they must have reformed. "You don't know our boys," was the answer.

"They're just down to the point stonin' a funeral. They'll be here pretty soon."

What About Bryan?

Will Bryan be here pretty soon? Or is it going to be a single-track nomination and a single-track campaign? Let the Democratic railroad managers remember that collisions sometimes happen on single tracks.

Next come the Republican candidates, who are divided into three groups: the "field" of weak candidates; two possibilities (Root and Hughes) and one Roosevelt. The first group is made up of 10 statesmen who are at present in the position of a equal of would-be football players whom the coaches curse because none of them seems better nor worse than another. The units in this aggregation all come from a "favorite son belt" extending from Massachusetts westward. They are Weeks and McCall of Massachusetts, Whitman of New York, Burton of Ohio, Fairbanks of Indiana, Ford of Michigan, Sherman of Illinois, La Follette of Wisconsin, Cummins of Iowa and Borah of Idaho.

Why not nominate one of these men? They are respectable citizens who always vote, pay their club dues and go to church on Sundays. Their names might be put into a bag by the Chicago convention, one to be drawn out at random by the president of that body. If sobriety, honesty, good intentions and unblemished reputations are the only qualifications for the head of the nation, they are all equally fit. Is that all that the country wants? Taft was not thought good enough to be elected in 1912, but he is an abler and stronger man than any one of the 10. Why not elect a real President next November? Why not elect Roosevelt?

The Progressives could make just as good a list of mediocrites if they saw fit; but they want their candidate to have some chance of election. Which of those 10 men has the slightest chance, in view of the fact that the Progressives will not support them? Outsiders have accused the Progressives of intending to use their convention as a sandbag to compel the Republicans to accept Roosevelt. That leaves out of account the fact that with the Progressives it is not a question simply of men or of a man. They are determined that the Republican party shall not turn its back upon the principles of advance and progress a second time. What they want is results. They want to see those things done that they believe ought to be done. To that end they do not insist on Roosevelt, but do insist on a man of the Roosevelt type—big, strong and famed. To be sure they have several good men in reserve of whom Hiram Johnson of California is the most widely known. If the Republican leaders say: "We won't permit you to have Roosevelt, but we will take some other high-class Progressive," it will be time enough then to raise the question of second choice.

Why Not Roosevelt?

"Oh, but you can't have Roosevelt. He's a bad, dangerous, impossible man." Who says so? Most of the old-line Republican bosses. Crane says so. Barnes says so. Gallinger says so. The best known and best beloved man in the United States is put on trial by these people, as though he were in a police court. Under that ordeal he behaves with the same indomitable straightforwardness that he showed in the courtrooms of Michigan and of Syracuse. Well, go on; what are the principal charges against the defendant?

1. "Roosevelt is ambitious. He wants to be President." Of course, the 10 inconsequents are not ambitious! They don't want to be President! They only want an opportunity of serving their country, and they are likely to have 10 different opportunities, not one of them presidential. Only one possible candidate is so unambitious that he lets concealment like a worm in the bud prey on his damask cheek.

2. "Roosevelt is unreliable. A snake in the grass, a hypocrite who conceals his real designs and hopes, a schemer." It he? That woold not pass as a bad joke in vaudeville. Roosevelt's successful theory of politics is to take the whole country into his confidence. When he was President nobody could cajole him into a secret promise. He played the game with his cards on the table, and some people who practiced a different method felt sure that he must have a pair of kings up his sleeve, just as they did.

Does a double-crosser throw down the gauntlet to powerful interests who may influence the next election? Has Sherman ever antagonized great corporations: Has Burton sacrificed the few thousand "hyphenated Americans" who, in a contest with their native country, would turn against the land of their adoption? Neither of those forces terrifies Roosevelt, who scatters abroad his opinions like shrapnel, caring not what disloyal element is hit. As he puts it: "I do not have to improvise my convictions on either Americanism of preparedness."

Denies Roosevelt Is a Radical.

4. "Roosevelt is a fearful radical who would ruin the country by new-fangled ideas." A radical he is, because all statesmen who appeal to the American people nowadays are radical. Bryan, who was three times the candidate of the Democratic party—was he precisely a conservative? President Wilson has proposed the most radical measures ever brought to the notice of Congress by a chief magistrate. The little ten are all radical—that is, just radical enough to fish for Progressive votes. If Roosevelt is over-radical, every Congress since 1887 has been radical and has, therefore, put into legislation most of the principles which he has advocated, so far as they could be carried out by the Federal Government.

Roosevelt has been specially abused for the "radicalism" of his suggestion of the recall of judicial decisions. That has ceased to be an issue, and why? In good measure because the American people have speeded up their machinery for constitutional amendments. The most notorious case of the recall of judicial decisions is the adoption of the Sixteenth Amendment, which obliterated the principle of the Pollock decision of 1895. In that famous opinion the Supreme Court, by the infallible mouth of five Judges, held that a general income tax could not be laid by Congress. The people (including the other four of the Supreme Court Justices) willed otherwise, and swept the fiat of the Supreme Court into the dust

How We Can Increase Our Weight

THIN people, particularly those who are ten pounds or more under normal weight, and who would like to put on some good healthy stay there flesh will be glad to know that such a result is often made possible by merely enabling the system to extract and assimilate a greater proportion of the flesh and fatmaking elements in our daily meals.

It is said that while thin people eat enough the greater portion of the fleshmaking nourishment of their food goes right through their bodies as waste because their assimilative organs are defective and cannot absorb them.

To correct such a defect and to get 100 per cent strength and fleshmaking efficiency from your food try taking a little Sargol with meals for a few weeks.

Sargol does not of itself make fat but aims to stop food waste and to make your food make fat by making it easier for your assimilative organs to accept the fat and fleshmaking nourishment it contains.

That this principle is correct would seem proved by the many remarkable weight increases being reported by those who tried it. "I have increased 18 lbs. in less than a month" says one man from Colorado. A St. Louis lady writes "Gained 16 pounds and still gaining. And there are many more.

The Sargol tablets are small, easily swallowed, produce no disagreeable effects, contain no habit-forming drugs, are harmless and not at all expensive as compared with results said to be obtained.

NOTE—Sargol, referred to above is well known as a flesh builder to Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley's 7 stores, Weipert Drug Co., Judge & Dolph's 3 stores, as well as many other of the leading local druggists who furthermore sell it on the positive guarantee, as found in each large package of satisfactory weight increase or money back. In view of this liberal offer and the harmless nature of the remedy, it would seem that all who desire increased weight should be glad to give this method a trial.—ADV.

A GIRL I SAW

DO YOU know
WHAT I saw today?
A GIRL with the most BEAUTIFUL HAIR imaginable.

I MADE up my mind
RIGHT THEN to find out
WHERE SHE got it,
SO I asked her.

SHE WAS just as nice
ABOUT IT as could be.
WHAT DO you think she said;
"USE NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE."

THEN SHE went on
TO TELL me
HER HAIR used to be
DULL, BRITTLE and lifeless.
FINALLY DANDRUFF began TO ACCUMULATE.

HER HAIR came out.
HER SCALP itched
AND WAS hot and feverish.
SHE TRIED everything.
NOTHING DID much good,
SHE COULD see
AN IMPROVEMENT with THE FIRST application
OF HERPICIDE.
THE DANDRUFF disappeared.
HER HAIR ceased falling out.
THE ITCHING stopped.
SHE WAS delighted
AND SAYS
"NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE
IS THE finest thing
THERE IS to make
THE HAIR soft and fluffy
AND INCREASE its beauty."
I DIDN'T like it
WHEN SHE told me
HER HAIR used to LOOK JUST like mine.
I DIDN'T know my HAIR LOOKED so
UNTIL SHE told me.
ANYWAY I am going TO TRY Newbro's Herpicide.
IT IS sold everywhere
AND GUARANTEED.
YOU CAN get
A SMALL sample bottle
BY SENDING ten cents
TO THE Herpicide Company
DEPT. 138-B, Detroit, Michigan.
THEY ALSO send you
A BOOK about the hair
MY! I am glad
I MET that girl today.

The Doctor's Advice

By Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Miss O. M. asks: "I have pimples, oily skin and suffer from constipation, headache, and never feel strong and well. Please prescribe for me."

Answer: You should overcome constipation and cleanse the system of accumulated poisons by taking three-grain sulperb tablets (not sulphur) for several weeks or more. These tablets are very beneficial, especially in hot weather, as they have a tendency to cool the blood and improve its quality.

"Poorly" writes: "Being past middle age and observing that my nervous system is in bad shape, I write for a prescription. I do not gain strength from my food, am weak, listless, forgetful, sleepless at times, tired and unable to act the part of a strong man of health, such as I was at one time."

Answer: Get from a well-stocked pharmacy a sealed tube of three-grain cadomene tablets, which are especially made for those needing a strong, harmless, rejuvenating tonic. Astonishing and pleasing results follow and life and hope are renewed.

"A Fat Woman" asks: "Would you please prescribe a safe reducing remedy for too much fat?"

Answer: At this season many fat people suffer greatly as you do, and to all I recommend that they reduce with five-grain arbolone tablets, the most successful and convenient prescription I know of. Druggists supply in sealed tubes, with full directions.

"Edna" writes: "I suffer with rheumatism all the time, and I shall be very glad if you can tell me something to relieve me."

Answer: I can give you a prescription which will not only relieve, but should obliterate your rheumatism. This is my favorite remedy, and from the number of letters received from people who have used it proves its value in rheumatism. The following is made by mixing well, taking a teaspoonful at meal times and again before retiring: Comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs.; iodide of potassium, 2 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half ounce; sodium salicylate, 4 drams.

Miss C. W. R. asks: "I have tried for two years to diet so as to increase my weight and improve the quality of my blood, but in vain. Please prescribe for me?"

Answer: Thin, scrawny, bloodless people need assistance in absorbing nutrition from the food eaten, and for this particular purpose I always prescribe three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, a most effective preparation if regularly and persistently used, as it seems to increase the red and white corpuscles of the blood, thus affording health, strength and increased weight.

M. J. B. asks: "My hair is too oily and my scalp itches with dandruff, and of late it is combing out too much. What is a good treatment?"

Answer: Obtain plain yellow minyol from your druggist in 4-oz. jars and apply as per directions. This cleans, purifies, cools and invigorates the hair and scalp, thus stopping the death of the hair. Dandruff and itching are at once relieved. Men and women all over the country now use it regularly.

"Essex" writes: "What should I do to relieve a severe case of kidney and bladder disease? Have fever, chills, pains like rheumatism and soreness in region of the bladder."

Answer: For such symptoms as you describe I prescribe my favorite formula under the name of balmwort tablets. This is a splendidly efficacious remedy for such abnormal conditions. Begin their use as per directions on each sealed tube.—ADVERTISEMENT.

heap. Decisions against the constitutionality of laws are recalled by the score every year, only it takes the long, involved, clumsy method of amending state constitutions, whereas Roosevelt's proposition would have made the final decision possible within a few months.

4. "Roosevelt is not a Republican and cannot possibly be nominated by a Republican convention." Roosevelt was a Republican from his first entry into public life in 1882 to the Republican convention of 1912, where, as the result of the later election showed, he was backed by a strong majority of the Republicans. Neither Roosevelt nor his friends ever had any purpose contrary to the vital principles of the Republican party and Republican government. As a Republican candidate in 1904, he received the unsurpassed majority of 1,734,000, and the unsurpassed plurality of 2,544,000. He has no animosities against real Republicans who have at heart the fundamental principles of free government. He has never believed that the rank and file of the Republican party and the greater number of its leaders are wanting in public spirit. He hated the great Republican bosses like the the devil and they have cheerfully put up their side of the stakes in that disapprobation concontest.

5. "Roosevelt is a thrid-termer who wants to break the traditions of Jefferson and Grant." Considering that Jefferson put himself on record as willing to accept a third nomination in case it were necessary in order to beat the Federalists, and that Grant would have accepted a third term, it would seem that ambition is not necessarily a crime. This is the only Democratic country in the world in which a man's good public service is considered a reason why he should not be allowed to give more of the same. The truth is that the third term argument has totally lost whatever small weight it once had in the minds of the American people. They feel able to protect themselves against a perpetual President. They smashed Taft in 1912 for too much presidency, and are now getting ready to smash Wilson in 1916.

6. "Roosevelt is a centralizer who believes in taking on himself the functions of Congress." That sounds well from men like Penrose. The American people are beginning to understand that what they want in government is the concentration of responsibility, not in bosses, but in officials, so that the people may know who does what.

Who have been the greatest Presidents? Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt. Every one of these men made himself a center of suggestion and influence in Congress in behalf of the people at large. Even Taft and Wilson, by the force of circumstances, have been compelled to make clear to the members of the two houses that there must be either intelligent leadership or party ruin. By intelligent leadership, Gov. Roosevelt secured the first New York corporation tax. By persistent influence President Roosevelt secured much-needed legislation on railroads and trusts. The purpose of our Government is not to carry out the Joe Cannon principle of preventing things being done, but to do them.

7. "Roosevelt is a man on horseback who will make himself a second Emperor Napoleon III if he has the opportunity." That charge seems too preposterous to notice. Imagine Theodore Roosevelt, with his open speech, his quick utterance, his easy access, functioning as the chief conspirator in the downfall of the American republic. Why, when the would-be Emperor is riding recklessly at the head of his squadron of armed motor cars, he will see somebody who taught him to shoot when he was a boy, or an old crony in the New York Police Department, or one of the Rough Riders, and while he gets off to shake hands and say "De-e-lighted" the whole conspiracy will tip over and the apples be scattered. Please excuse Theodore from being a despot. It is not in his line.

Nearly all the objections to Roosevelt come down to two heads: (a) That he is powerful, strong, vigorous, able, determined; in a word, a big man. (b) That being so big and powerful, he will take his own road and not that pointed out for him by party leaders. In fact, those are precisely the two great reasons why he ought to be President again.

"He Believes in His Kind."

1. Roosevelt is a true American, with the qualities of all the sections—Southern frankness and outspokenness, Eastern tradition, Western largeness and breeziness. He is not only an American, he likes Americans by the thousands and tens of thousands. He believes in his kind. He trusts men and women. He represents worthily the fullness and life and power of his countrymen.

2. Roosevelt is a trained statesman, who shows such qualities of mind and heart as put him in a class by himself outside all the other men spoken of for the presidency. He has an immense acquaintance with men and has shown great potency in selecting men for public service. His years of experience of the presidency have been twice that of any man since Cleveland. His contact with weighty questions has been thrice that of any man since Lincoln. If this election were a simple, straight issue of the best, ablest, fittest man in the country, who has shown the most American spirit if it were not tangled up with 1912, and primaries, and "uninstructed delegations," Roosevelt would be nominated and elected hands down.

3. Roosevelt is the one man who can completely heal the breach in the Republican party. In the first place, he is the most widely known and the most popular man since Abraham Lincoln. Down in Virginia in the spring of 1912, a Northern visitor found a farmer who was much agitated about the election that was coming. "What's the office?" asked the stranger. "Office, I don't know what the office, but the man is Theodore Roosevelt." What would the Republican party do with a candidate whose name had to be spelled out to school children "S-h-e-r-m-a-n" or "W-e-e-k-s." Nobody needs to spell "Roosevelt" anywhere in this country. "T. R.," "Teddy," "The Colonel"—that's enough.

"Best Vote-Getter in Country."

4. Roosevelt is the best vote-getter that can be nominated by the Republicans. He was a vote-getter in the close New York State election of 1899. He was a vote-getter to the tune of 7,628,000 in 1904. He was a vote-getter in the election of 1912 when, on a new organization and a new issue he received over 4,000,000 votes. As candidate of the Republican and Progressive conventions, he would round up those 4,000,000 and odd voters and also a large proportion of the 3,500,000 former Taft supporters; and he is the only candidate who could attract any votes from the Democratic or minor parties. There's no use minimizing the fact that a vote getter is needed; for Wilson will be a hard man to beat.

5. Roosevelt is the champion of Americanism. He has squarely made the issue that the people of the United States ought to be one folk, infused with one American spirit. Who else of all the so-called Republican candidates has spread his baner to the winds in the same manful fashion? He believes in Americans. He appeals to Americans. He protests against divided allegiance. As he says himself, "The slumbering patriotism of our people must be waked and translated into concrete action."

6. Theodore Roosevelt is a big man, representing big ideas. As President and as presidential candidate he has shown the qualities of the popular leader—a man of convictions and insight. That is why Thomas Edison has recently paid his tribute: "His energy, capacity and past experience in large affairs of state and nation for many years, together with his great patriotism and his intense Americanism and his great knowledge in all lines of human endeavor." A big country needs a big man. Does La Follette or Burton or Whitman come up to that standard?

The present crisis in world affairs also demands a big man, an experienced man, a man of positive reputation abroad. At this moment three immense questions have come upon the people of this country like three big sea rollers.

The first is the complicated issue of American neutrality in the European war. After a year of effort President Wilson has apparently come somewhere near the end of the controversy with Germany, but he has made no headway with the grave difficulties with Great Britain over neutral trade. The whole question of neutrality will have to be recast after this war and we need a strong man to deal with that critical question.

The second issue is that of world trade, which has been brought to a climax by the European war. There is soon to be a re-distribution of markets. None but a hard-clenched hand can guide the country in that complicated relation. The industrial and commercial destinies of the United States are wrapped up in it. What likelihood is there that the present administration or any weak Republican can solve that problem?

The third question is that of Mexico. President Taft dodged that issue. President Wilson, doubtless with an honest hope to avoid trouble, has confused that issue. The next President will have to straighten out that issue, for the thing cannot go any longer unsettled.

If the country were called upon to send a diplomat to secure redress for our wounded neutrality, or a great world figure to participate in the coming European peace, or a forceful commander in chief to bring the Mexican problem to a conclusion, the man most fitted for any one of these three jobs, would be Theodore Roosevelt. Those three tasks all must be undertaken, all by one man. If not by Roosevelt, then by an inferior man.

"But," says the alarmed one, "Roosevelt, if he is President, will involve this country in war. He says the present administration is weak and timid. He insists that it ought to have done something about neutrality, trade and Mexico long ago." Roosevelt speaks gospel truth. If he had been President of the United States during the last two years there would have been no rumors of war with us, because nobody would have thought it safe to provoke us. There would have been no Lusitania case to adjust. The Germans did not know Wilson; they could try his nerve and take a year's time. They did know Theodore Roosevelt and would never have taken the lives of 113 Americans on the Lusitania if he had been in the White House. There would have been no Villa raid across the border, because Villa would have expected immediate, not ultimate punishment.

When Roosevelt was President he did not involve us in war, notwithstanding the critical questions of Cuba, Panama, Venezuela and Santo Domingo. Roosevelt does not want war. He has made and can make a notable career in peace. He wants freedom from war and the fear of war, and that is why he so ardently urges preparedness. Who can deny the truth of his recent Chicago utterance: "If we are not able to safeguard our own national honor and interests, we shall make ourselves an object of scorn and derision if we try to stand for the rights of others." Alongside his Americanism Roosevelt puts preparedness which he is careful to define as not merely soldiers, ships and equipment, but an evaluation and foresighted arrangement of all the national forces. He has spoken with all his might on that side. Who of the 10 "also rans" has taken such a stand?

PROF. TAFT DISCUSSES THE PRESIDENCY IN LIGHT OF HIS OWN EXPERIENCE

Believes Executive Should Have Single Term of Seven Years—Defends Veto Power—Discusses Limitation of the Position.

THE experience of William Howard Taft as President of the United States has convinced him that the term of the President should be seven years, instead of four, and that he should thereafter be ineligible. This view is expressed by Taft in one of three lectures delivered by him at the University of Virginia, and now published in book form under the title of "The Presidency, Its Duties, Its Powers, Its Opportunities and Its Limitations."

The reasons which impelled him to advocate a seven-year term for the President is that the change would give the chief executive greater courage and independence in the discharge of his duties.

"The absorbing and diverting interest in the re-election of the incumbent by those Federal civil servants who regard their own tenure as dependent upon his would disappear and the efficiency of the administration in the last year of a term would be maintained," he said. "I think it would have been better, too, to bring the executive a little closer in touch with Congress in the initiation of legislation and its discussion, notably in the matter of budgets and the economical administration of governmental affairs.

"But," he adds, "we are in an age of iconoclasts, and should a movement gain force to introduce some slight amendments which experience would sustain, the benefit to be derived might be far outweighed by the danger of radical changes in the Constitution subversive of the great benefits that it has secured to the American people."

Discusses All Phases.

As President, Taft had an excellent opportunity to study the effect upon his subordinates of his own candidacy for re-election. The army of Federal office holders throughout the country actively supported him, and in the Southern states, particularly, these office holders control the selection of delegates to the Republican national convention. The contests over the Southern delegates four years ago resulted in the Roosevelt bolt at Chicago, and the defeat of Taft for re-election.

Taft discussed practically every phase of the presidency in the little volume, which is published by Charles Scribner & Sons. Looking backward at his own experiences in the office, he says that to one charged with the responsibilities of the President, especially where he has party pledges to perform, it seems a defect that the President has merely the power to recommend legislation, and that he has no legal form or method of entering into the argument and discussion of proposed legislation, and no power to initiate legislation.

"But," he says, "whatever I thought while I was in office, I am inclined now to think that the defect is more theoretical than actual.

"It usually happens that the party which elects the President also controls Congress, during the first two years, at least, of the presidential term, and the President can exercise a moral control that will enable him to have enacted the legislation for the fulfilment of party pledges.

"Not infrequently," he adds, "the second Congress of an administration contains a majority practically adverse to the President in either one or both houses, and, when that is the case, legislation is limited to appropriation bills and nonpolitical measures, if there are any such. The President in such cases naturally chafes under an inability to put through important bills, which he deems of the highest value. On the whole, however, I do not think the country suffers. Certainly, not in this age and generation, when the bane of political methods, when the danger to the best interests of the country, is in the overwhelming mass of ill-digested legislation."

Discussion of Veto Power.

In the discussion of the veto power, the former President says that the President often more truly represents the entire country than does a majority in one or both houses of Congress, for the reason that his constituency in the entire electorate of the United States, and by reason of that fact he is much freer from the influence of local interest and the play of those local forces, which, united by log-rolling, sometimes constitute a majority in both houses for certain kinds of legislation—like a river and harbor bill, or a public building bill. He says it is absurd to criticise the President's exercise of the veto power as a royal prerogative. He holds that a President should not sign any bill which he believes to be unconstitutional, and said it was for that reason that he vetoed the so-called Webb bill, which declared that the shipping of liquor from one state into another, where its sale was unlawful by the law of the state, to be federally unlawful.

He suggests that Congress, without any violation of constitutional limitation, might well provide that the heads of departments, members of the President's Cabinet, should be given access to the floor of each house to introduce measures and advocate their passage, to answer questions and to enter into the debate as if they were members. This, he says, would impose on the President greater difficulty in the selection of his Cabinet, and would lead him to prefer men of legislative experience who have shown their power to take care of themselves in legislative debate. It would also give the executive some initiative in legislation.

Approves One Wilson Innovation.

Taft approves the policy of President Wilson in reading his messages to Congress.

"I think the innovation is a good one," he says. "I think it fixes the attention of the country on Congress and thus that of Congress on the recommendations of the President.

"I cannot refrain from a smile, however," he remarks, "when I think of the oratory which is lost because Mr. Roosevelt or I did not inaugurate such a change. The eloquence that would have resounded from the followers of Jefferson in denouncing a return to the royal ceremony and the aping of 'the speech from the throne' can be supplied with little effort of the imagination."

He holds that the President ought not to be burdened with the appointment of any except the more important officials, and that all the local officers throughout the country, such as postmasters, collectors of internal revenue, collectors of customs and their subordinates should be put into the classified service, given permanent tenure, appointed and promoted after examination and proved efficiency. He said, under such a system, an expert examination of these offices would satisfy Congress that assistant postmasters, collectors, etc., could run the offices better than a political chief.

He called attention to the fact that he made such recommendations in his messages to Congress, but that his recommendations fell upon deaf ears. Congressmen and Senators were unwilling, he said, to give up a custom by which they believe they can maintain a local political organization, which will assist them to be re-elected. He said that this custom usually hurts more than it helps the user in the long run, but it does help to strengthen the local machines and bosses.

Taft suggests that a President ought to adhere closely to the Constitution and the statutes, and not seek to do things for the general welfare not specifically authorized by law. He criticised some of Roosevelt's acts, particularly the use of the powers of the Presidency to settle the anthracite coal strike. There is an interesting discussion of the proposition whether the President is subject to the decisions of the Supreme Court, or whether a court has the power to issue orders against the President. He quotes the opinions of many former Presidents on this subject, some of whom ignored orders of courts, and criticised the courts for attempting to exercise authority over the President. Taft says that one of the great questions that the Presidents have had to meet is just how far they

Jess Willard Says: "Take Nuxated Iron

If You Want Plenty of 'Stay There' Strength and Endurance and Health and Muscles Like Mine."

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Often Increase Strength and Endurance of the Delicate, Nervous Folks 200 Per Cent in Two Weeks' Time.

I consider that plenty of iron is my blood is the secret of my great strength, power and endurance.

Jess Willard

A Hitherto Untold Secret of His Great Victory Over Jack Johnson and Frank Moran.

SPECIAL NOTE.—Dr. E. Sauer, a well-known physician, who has studied widely in both this country and Europe, has been specially employed to make a thorough investigation into the real secret of the great strength, power and endurance of Jess Willard, and the marvelous value of nuxated iron as a strength-builder.

NEW YORK—Upon being interviewed at his apartment in the Colonial Hotel, Mr. Willard said: "Yes, I have a chemist with me to study the value of different foods and products as to their power to produce great strength and endurance, both of which are so necessary in the prize ring. On his recommendation I have often taken nuxated iron and I have particularly advocated the free use of iron by all those who wish to obtain great physical and mental power. Without it I am sure that I should never have been able to whip Jack Johnson so completely and easily as I did, and while training for my bout with Frank Moran I regularly took nuxated iron, and I am certain that it was a most important factor in my winning so easily." Continuing, Dr. Sauer said: "Mr. Willard's case is only one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience, which proves conclusively the astonishing power of nuxated iron to restore strength and vitality even in most complicated chronic conditions.

"Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old, and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 careworn and nearly all in. Now at 50 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength-builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

"Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray while many another has gone to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron."—E. Sauer, M. D.

NOTE.—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time.

It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., and all good druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Dear Sir: I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know how proud I am that I tried your simple home treatment. I am at normal weight and never felt better in my life. I have got as good use of myself as I ever had and can do anything I want to without tiring me. I can walk 10 times as far and not tire me half so bad. I lost 60 pounds of weight, which was that much more than I could comfortably carry. I think that there is reality in taking your treatment. The loss in weight has been remarkable. I thank you.

MRS. A. M. RUGGLES,
Worthington, Mo.

LOST 56 POUNDS

Hip Measure Is 9 Inches Smaller and Waist 4 Inches Smaller. Is Feeling Fine.

Michigan.

Dr. F. Thompson Brough, M. D.

Dear Doctor and Friend:—I reduced 56 pounds and am feeling just fine. I measure hips 49 inches, where I was 58 inches, and waist is about 4 inches smaller. I can think and plan my work now, where before taking the treatment I did what I was absolutely obliged to do and sat down so tired and would probably go to sleep.

With best wishes for your success, I am, MRS. G. W. SAMMONS, Buckley, Mich.

LOST 60 POUNDS

I Have Reduced My Hips 12 Inches and My Bust 8 Inches.

New York.

Dear Doctor F. Thompson Brough:

Your method of treating obesity is something that is a wonder to me. I have reduced from 210 pounds to 150 pounds and am losing flesh every day. I feel better in every way than I have for years. I do not get weak, but on the other hand I seem to be stronger than I was before I began the treatment. I have reduced my hip measure 12 inches, my bust 8 inches. I can walk 5 miles any day and not tire; before I began your treatment I could not go a block without resting.

I have tried a number of other treatments, but they all failed to help. I remain, respectfully,

MRS. BERT KIPP, Stillwater, N. Y.

REDUCTION OF 80 POUNDS

Your Treatment Has Worked Like Charm.

Kentucky.

Dear Friend:—

Your treatment worked like a charm and I am in the best of health. I weighed 330 pounds and lost 80 pounds. I have been at that weight all winter. I am greatly pleased and only wish every over-stout person would give the treatment a chance.

E. B. WALLINGFORD.

LOST 83 POUNDS OF EXCESS FAT

Mrs. Shantz Says She Also Got Rid of Her Rheumatism Which Has Bothered Her for Years, At Same Time She Lost 83 Pounds of Fat. Mrs. Shantz Is 61 Years of Age.

Dear Doctor: Illinois.

I am very much pleased with your treatment. I think it is all right. It surely has been a great blessing to me. I have gotten rid of 83 pounds of flesh and all my rheumatism, which has bothered me for many years. I had much bother with my arms and hands. I could not sleep if I did work where I used my hands. I would have to get up at night and walk the floor. This is changed now. I sleep all night so sweet and nice. I feel like a new woman, though I am 61 years old. It is pleasure for me to work.

I want to thank you for the interest you have taken in me, and wishing you success for the good you are doing for humanity, I will recommend your treatment. Yours respectfully,

MRS. DAVID SHANTZ, Cullom, Ill.

RECOMMENDS TREATMENT

Mr. Westbrook Says, "It Does Me Good to Tell Others the Good You Have Done for Me."

Mississippi.

F. Thompson Brough.

Dear Doctor:—I am in receipt of a letter from an old friend of mine that heard of your wonderful skill on reducing flesh. I have answered his letter and told him that I would write to you and let him get in touch with you. It does me so much good to tell others the good you have done for me. Yours respectfully,

A. W. WESTBROOK,
Clinton, Miss.

REDUCED OVER A POUND A DAY

Mrs. Williams Reduced a Pound a Day As An Average.

Dr. Brough. Montana.

Dear Sir:—I will answer your letter I received this morning. I am glad you take so much interest in my welfare. As long as I took your remedies I reduced over a pound a day on an average. If you should want to use my name and address you are welcome to do so at any time. Any one you should refer to me I will gladly tell them of the benefit I received from you. You certainly did me good and everywhere I go, if I meet a fat lady, I always speak a good word for you.

Thanking you for your kindness, I remain.

MRS. TOM WILLIAMS,
Great Falls, Mont.

55 POUNDS OF EXCESSIVE FAT REDUCED

Mrs. Powers Is Greatly Pleased With the Treatment.

Ohio.

Dear Doctor:

I am getting along fine: I am better every way. I have lost 55 pounds. I can not praise the medicine enough.

From (Mrs.) SARAH POWERS,
Jamestown, Ohio.

LOST 60 POUNDS

Mrs. Barnes Says That She Can Now Go to Church Without Being Laughed At. "I Never Tire Telling Just How It Came About.

Missouri.

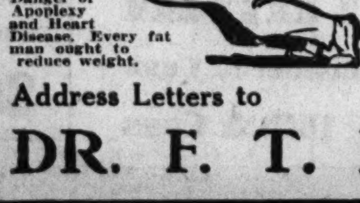
Dear Doctor:

I now will write you a few lines in regard to my case. When I began your treatment for obesity I weighed 215 pounds, bust 46 inches, waist 39 inches, abdomen 55 inches. I am happy and proud that today I can say that I weigh but 155 pounds, bust 38 inches, waist 30 inches, abdomen 40 inches and I am in much better health than for years, but best of all I can go to church without being laughed at. My figure is so greatly improved that it is pleasing to me to note how surprised everybody seems to be. I never tire of telling just how it all came about.

If all over-stout people would just stop and think in what a short time they could be their former self again, and look like somebody, they surely would take treatment. I tell everybody I see who is stout about your great remedy.

Your faithful friend and patient,

MRS. SARAH BARNES,
Lancaster, Mo



Danger of Apoplexy and Heart Disease. Every fat man ought to reduce weight.

might properly differ from the Supreme Court in the construction of the Constitution in the discharge of their duties. He says that Jefferson laid it down with emphasis in his reference to the sedition law, when he said:

"The judges, believing the law to be constitutional, had a right to pass a sentence of fine and imprisonment, because the power was placed in their hands by the Constitution. But the executive, believing the law to be unconstitutional, was right to remit the execution of it, because that power has been confided to them by the Constitution. That instrument meant that the co-ordinate branches should be checks on each other. But the opinion which gives to the judges the right to decide what laws are constitutional and what not, not only for themselves in their own sphere of action, but for the legislature and executive also in their spheres, would make the judiciary a despotic branch."

Taft also quoted from Jackson's message vetoing the renewal of the charter of the bank of the United States in which the President said that the authority of the Supreme Court must not be permitted to control the Congress or the executive when acting in their legal capacities. He also quoted from Lincoln's reference to the Dred Scott decision, in which Lincoln said that while the decisions of the Supreme Court must be binding in any case upon the parties to a suit, but at the same time, the candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the government upon vital questions affecting the whole people is to be irrevocably fixed by decisions between parties in personal actions, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their government into the hands of that eminent tribunal."

Broadening Powers.

Taft appears to look with some alarm upon the tendancy to broaden the scope of the executive's powers. He cites the act of Secretary of the Interior Garfield under the Roosevelt administration in holding that the President had authority to do certain things, in the exercise of discretionary powers, where neither the constitution nor acts of Congress forbid them. In the exercise of such power, Garfield made contracts with associations of western settlers agreeing that if they would advance money and work for the construction of irrigation plants they should receive certificates which might be received in the future in payment of their legal obligations to the Government for water rent. These certificates were held by Attorney General Wickersham to be illegal, because no authority existed for their issuance. In this connection the former President quotes a decision of Justice Miller of the Supmeme Court, in the Floyd acceptances case, upon which Wickersham based his opinion that the Garfield certificates were illegal. The part of the decision which he quotes, follows:

"The answer which at once suggests itself to one familiar with the structure of our government, in which all power is delegated, and is defined by law, constitutional or statutory, is, that to one or both of these sources we must resort in every instance. We have no officers in this Government, from President down to the most subordinate agent, who does not hold office under the law, which prescribed duties and limited authority. And while some of these, as the President, the legislature and the judiciary, exercise powers in some sense left to the more general definitions necessarily incident to the fundamental law found in the constitution, the larger portion of them are the creation of statutory law, with duties and powers prescribed and limited by that law."

Taft takes issue with the views expressed by Roosevelt in his "Notes for a Possible Autobigraphy," in which Roosevelt said that he insisted upon the theory that the executive power was limited only by specific restrictions and prohibitions appearing in the Constitution or imposed by Congress under its constitutional powers.

Quotes Roosevelt.

"My view," Roosevelt said, "was that every executive officer, and above all every executive officer in high position, was a steward of the people, bound actively and affirmatively to do all he could for the people and not to content himself with the negative merit of keeping his talent undamaged in a napkin. I declined to adopt this view that what was imperatively necessary for the nation could not be done by the President unless he could find some specific authorization to do it. My belief was that it was not only his right, but his duty to do anything that the needs of the nation de-

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of someone who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires a constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease is driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively in the damp English climate, is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint is used in this way as it acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a slight tonic action that facilitates the recovery of the patient. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial. —ADV.

manded unless such action was forbidden by the Constitution or the laws. Under this interpretation of executive power, I did many things not previously done by the President and the heads of departments. I did not usurp power but I did greatly broaden the use of executive power."

Commenting on this, Taft says he regards it as an unsafe doctrine, and that it might lead, under emergencies, to results of an arbitrary character, doing irremediable injustice to private right.

"It is enough to say," he adds, "that Mr. Roosevelt has shown how far he thought this principle would justify him in going in respect to the anthracite strike which he did so much useful work in settling. What was actually done was the result of his activity, his power to influence public opinion, and the effect of the prestige of his great office in bringing the parties to the controversy--the mine owners and the strikers--to a legal settlement by arbitration.

"No one has a higher admiration for the value of what he did there than I have. But if he had failed in this he proposed to take action on the principle of the extent of the executive power which I have shown by his own words. I quote from the same book from which his other words are taken:

"'In my own mind I was already planning effective action, but it was of a very drastic character, and I did not wish to take it until the failure of all other expendients had render it necessary........I had definitely determined that somehow or other, act I would, that somehow or other the coal famine should be broken.

"'To accomplish this end it was necessary that the mines should be run, and if I could get no voluntary agreement between the contending sides that an arbitration commission should be appointed which would command such public confidence as to enable me, without too much difficulty, to enforce its terms on the parties.

"'Meanwhile, the Governor of Pennsylvania had all the Pennsylvania militia in the anthracite region, although without any effect upon the resumption of mining. The method of action upon which I had determined was to get the Governor of Pennsylvania to ask me to keep order. Then I would put the army under command of some first rate General. I would instruct this General to keep absolute order, taking any steps whatever that were necessary to prevent interference by the strikers or their sympathizers with men who wanted to work. I would also instruct him to dispossess the operators and run the mines as receiver until such time as the commission might make its report and until I as President might issue further orders in view of this report.'"

What Roosevelt Planned.

Taft says it is evident that Roosevelt thought he was charged with the duty not only to suppress disorder, but to furnish coal to avoid the coal famine in New York and New England, and that therefore he proposed to use the army of the United States to mine coal which should prevent or relieve the famine.

"It was his intention to take the coal mines out of the hands of their lawful owners," he says, "and to mine the coal which belonged to them and sell it in the Eastern market against their objection, without any court proceedings of any kind and without any legal obligation on their part to work the mines at all. It was an advocacy of a higher law and his obligation to execute it which is a little startling to find advanced by a former President of a constitutional republic.

"It is perfectly evident from his statement that it was not the maintenance of law and order in Pennsylvania and the suppression of insurrection, the only ground upon which he could intervene at all, that actuated him in what he proposed to do. He used the expression he would "get" the Governor of Pennsylvania to call for troops from him, and then having secured a formal authority for the use of the army to suppress disorder, he proposed to use it for the seizure of private property and its appropriation for the benefit of the people of other states.

"The benevolence of his purpose no one can deny, but no one who looks at it from the standpoint of a government of law could regard it as anything but lawless. I venture to doubt whether had the exigency arisen, he would have proceeded to such an extremity. I think he would have listened to those about him, who were better advised as to the constitutional limitations imposed on him by his oath of office."

SPECIAL COURSE IN HOME ECONOMICS AT TEXAS U.

Term, May 29 to June 10; Unusual Demand for Trained Workers in This Field.

AUSTIN, Tex., May 20.—A special course in home economics is to be given at the University of Texas from May 29 to June 10. The instructors and lecturers are to be furnished by the university, the Agricultural and Mechanical College and the Texas Agricultural Department.

Unusual demand for trained workers in this field prevails throughout the State. The course at the university, which will end just before the regular summer school begins, is designed to go as far as practical in supplying this demand and, according to Prof. Mary E. Gearing of the home economics department, will prove especially helpful to women already engaged in field work, rural teachers desirous of studying rural home and community problems, leaders of Young Women's Christian Association work and other organizations, church workers and young women desirous of obtaining a survey of the work with a view of fitting themselves to future training for rural home economic positions and city clubwomen engaged in rural work.

Mrs. Booker's home is near North Middletown, Ky., 30 miles from a railroad and almost as far from a highway. Once, several years ago, she saw a party of tourists in an automobile which had strayed from the road through the wilderness in which she has lived all her life.

Massive Vernis-Martin Bed Outfit

$1.00 CASH
$1.00 MONTHLY

2½-in. Posts—1 1/16-in. Fillers—4¾-in. Caps

Including
Well-Made Mattress and All-Iron Spring

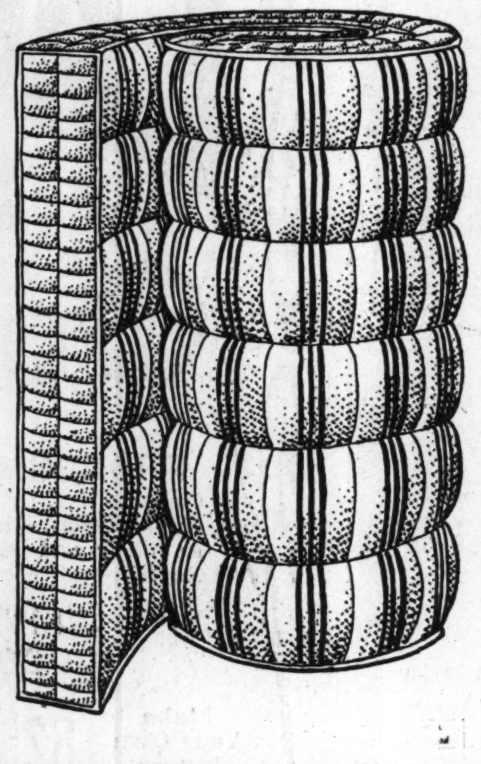
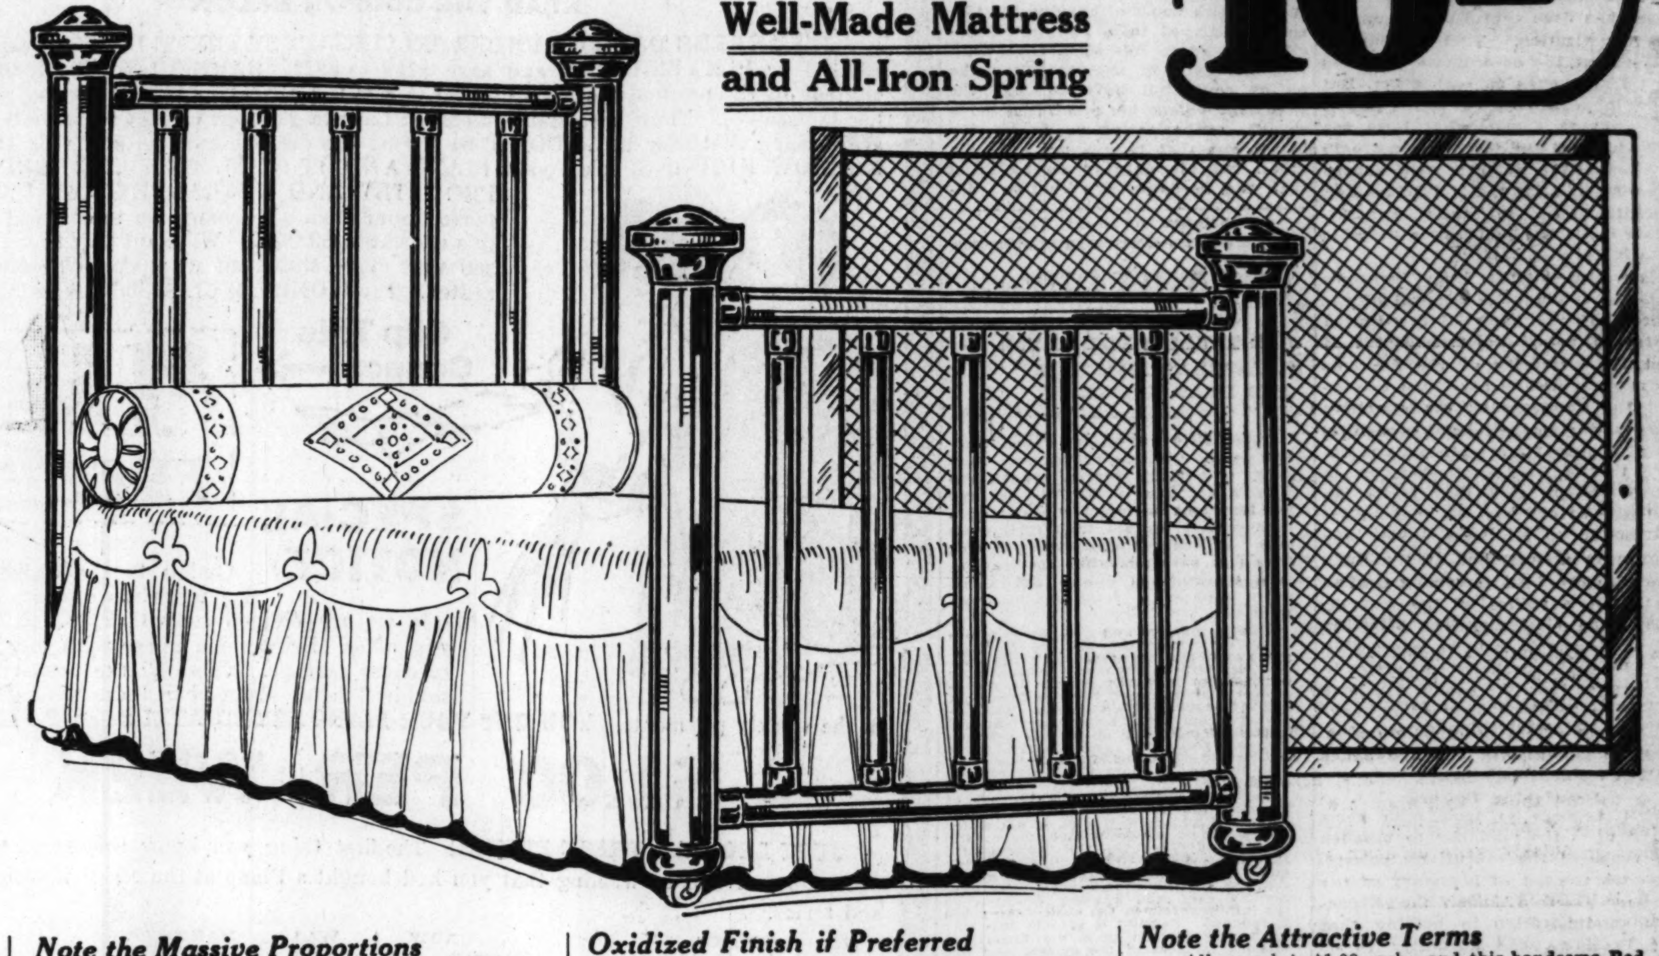
$16.50





A Wonderful Value Indeed
We consider this one of the most attractive values we ever offered in this line—this Bed is in beautiful Vernis Martin gold finish, which closely resembles solid brass, and is more durable than most brass beds, as it will not tarnish or lose its exquisite finish—it is extra large and massive—and in a design that will please the most particular taste.

Note the Massive Proportions
This Bed has 2½-inch posts—1 1-16-inch fillers and extra large 4¾-inch caps—proportions that have seldom, if ever, been offered in a bed at anything like the price we name—the construction throughout is the very best and can be relied upon to give years of thorough service and satisfaction.

Oxidized Finish if Preferred
We also show this identical Bed in beautiful oxidized finish if preferred—and with each of these Beds we include a well-made Mattress and all-iron Spring, with woven wire top—the entire outfit at actually less than you ordinarily would pay for the bed alone—an offering that is well worth your prompt attention.

Note the Attractive Terms
All we ask is $1.00 cash—and this handsome Bed in Vernis Martin gold finish—or rich oxidized finish—complete with Spring and Mattress—will be delivered to your home at once—and you can pay the balance of the small purchase price on easy terms of only $1.00 a month—an unusual inducement we offer you to open an account with us this week.

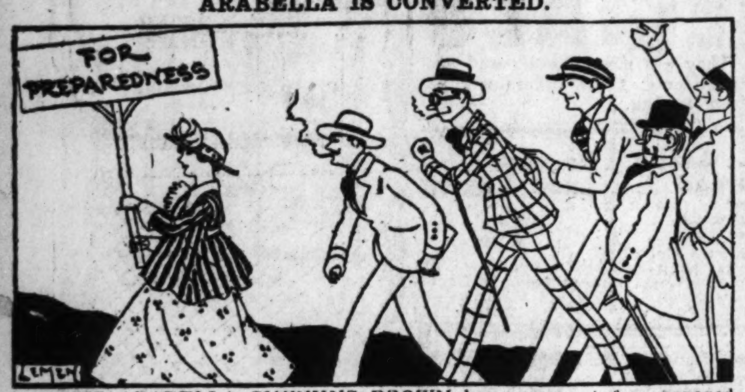
ARABELLA IS CONVERTED.



FOR PREPAREDNESS
LEMEN

Miss Arabella Simpkins Brown has come out for preparedness
And lays the sterling axiom down it's better far than scaredness.
Why, mercy me, suppose the Swedes or Finns would take a notion
To jump upon their fiery steeds and come across the ocean?
What could we do to drive them back? 'twould really be a pity
If they should march on Hackensack or capture Kansas City.
They'd make short work of Little Rock, with not a siege gun in it,
And, as for poor Concordia's clock, they'd fix it in a minute.
Now what we need is coast defense for Denver, Colorado,
Or it will be so full of dents it cannot throw a shadow.
The Kansas fleet is far too small, West Baden's unprotected;
They wouldn't stand a chance at all with raiders unexpected.
And what would Waco, Texas, do, as helpless as a barber,
If some destroyer and its crew should sail into its harbor?
It seems an awful thing to say, but Madison, Wisconsin,
Would be completely blown away if hit by one "Jack Johnson."
There's not a "Busy Bertha" there; not one in Crete, Nebraska,
So how would those two places fare? That's what we want to ask you.
These words of Arabella Brown have filled us full of scaredness,
And so we quickly write us down as favoring preparedness.

A LITTLE VAUDEVILLE.

"Hello, Binks."

"Morning, Jinks. I got a new job."

"What you doing now?"

"Squeezing nickels."

"For Mr. Yoakum?"

"No, for the United Railways Co."

"What do you squeeze nickels for?"

"To get the mills out of 'em."

"You can't squeeze mills out of nickels."

"No. That's what makes the job so easy."

"Did you hear my new song?"

"Yes. How does it go?"

"Great."

"Then that's not the one I heard."

"You think you're smart, don't you?"

"Sure I'm on the Efficiency Board, but I'm going to quit."

"Why?"

"They want me to work."

"Why don't you be an Alderman?"

"What do they do?"

"Pass bills."

"I know a fellow that got arrested for that. He passed bad ones."

"Sure, but he wasn't an Alderman. They can pass bad ones and get away with it."

"My brother's a regular wire puller now."

"Is he on the City Committee?"

"No, he's a dog catcher."

"What's good for fleas?"

"How do I know?"

"O, I thought maybe you could ask your brother."

"He hasn't caught any yet."

"What, fleas?"

"No, dogs."

"My sister's taking music lessons."

"Yes, I saw it."

"Saw what?"

"That moving van backed up to the house next door to yours."

"That was a deaf and dumb family moving in."

"They can see, can't they?"

"Sure."

"When they see you the van'll come back."

"What's the matter with me?"

"I'll bite. What IS the matter with you?"

"I'm going to vote for Teddy."

"That's the answer."

CLASSIFIED AT LAST.

If Villa's had a leg cut off
As often as we read,
It's plain to us the onery cuss
Must be a centipede.

LEST WE FORGET.

The beacon lights are clamoring
On every valley's crest;
The hand of Destiny cries out
At duty's fell behest.

The juggernaut now soars aloft
To greet the ebbing dawn;
The stars that lit the dusk of noon
Are faded and are gone.

Oppression's iron heel is set
Upon fair Nature's face,
But when they name vice presidents
You'll find me in the race.

E. W. MAJOR.

THE WOUNDED BANDIT.

DURANGO, Mex., May 20.—Pancho Villa passed through here today. We had a personal interview with him. When we asked him how he lost his left leg he removed his straw hat and exhibited a wound on the back of his head.

"There's where I was hit," he said. "Barring a slight stiffness of the right index finger the wound has left no serious effects, although it occasions some pain in my elbow when the weather is damp. Doctors have told me my hearing will not be permanently affected unless I strain my eyes by reading too much at night. The published accounts have all been wrong. It was not my left leg which I lost, neither, on the other hand, was it my right arm. You may draw your own conclusions. It hardly bothers me at all. Of course even a slight injury to the throat is apt to cause consideralbe inconvenience, but I have not been troubled much with toothache since I was shot. In fact if you find out in just what respect I am disabled I wish you would let me krow. I have no other means of finding out as I am kept on the jump so constantly that I haven't time to read the papers."

GALLANTRY, BUT NO VOTE.

A golden lane of suffragettes
Will be at our convention,
And we, not overlooking bets
Will pay them due attention.
We'll doff our hats and give them smiles,
We'll smirk and say they're pretty,
And let them tramp for miles and miles
Through this our lovely city;
For that's the way, alas, with men;
They always hide the mallet
Until the crucial moment when
Their wives demand the ballot.

O TOO FEW.

China going have him alphabet
Fifty-six letters is all him get;
How get along with all so few
Is question from Hong Kong to Chee Foo.

If Yuan Shih Kai want to write him note
Such little alphabet get his goat;
Fifty-six letters is very small
With which can say hardly nothing at all.

Is hardly enough for say "How do?"
Or order one dish of yet pun woo.
If such measly letters is all we get
China no want him alphabet.

CHINA BOY POET.

WHO IS HE?

OYSTER BAY, May 20.—It seems to me I've heard of him, but I can't place him. O, yes, come to think of it, he's the gentleman with the beard that used to be Governor of New York. I merely want to call your attention to one fact. I also was Governor of New York and I didn't wear any whiskers to deceive you. The conclusion is obvious. I have been reading up on the subject and I find that all the authorities agree that Ananias wore whiskers.

GUSSIE, THE GOLFER.
GUSSIE, THE GOLFER, ENLISTS IN THE ARMY.
MY GOLF STICKS OF COURSE.
WHAT HAVE YOU THERE?
RECRUITING SERGEANT
AT THE FRONT.
GUSSIE ARRIVES ON THE MEXICAN BORDER. HE IS ASSIGNED TO SCOUT DUTY.
HE IS CRAWLING THROUGH THE CACTUS WHEN A BEAUTIFUL MAIDEN APPROACHES ON HORSEBACK.
WHO GOES THERE?
A FRIEND — BELINDA BRIGGS, THE COLONEL'S DAUGHTER.
IN DIRE PERIL.
WHILE GUSSIE AND BELINDA ARE TALKING, SHOTS ARE HEARD.
PLUNK
PLUNK
THE VILLISTAS ARE COMING. GUSSIE JUMPS ON THE HORSE, BEHIND BELINDA AND THEY FLEE.
THE HORSE DROPS FROM EXHAUSTION FIRING HEARD IN THE DISTANCE.
O, WHAT SHALL WE DO?
EXHAUSTION.
GUSSIE HAS AN IDEA. WITH HIS FOUNTAIN PEN HE WRITES A MESSAGE ON A GOLF BALL
MAW-VEL-OUS.
HOLED IN ONE.
THE MESS COOK AT HEADQUARTERS IS COOKING ARMY SOUP. SOMETHING LANDS IN THE CAMP KETTLE.
SPLASH!
THE COOK FISHES IT OUT WITH HIS LADLE. HE READS THE MESSAGE ON THE GOLF BALL "SAVE US. THE MEXICANS ARE COMING" GUSSIE
TO THE RESCUE.
COL. BRIGGS AND HIS MEN TURN OUT "FORWARD, DOUBLE TIME"
THEY ROUT THE MEXICANS
BELINDA FALLS ON HER FATHER'S NECK.
THIS GALLANT SOLDIER SAVED ME.
WAIT; THERE'S MORE.
RETURNING TO CAMP THEY SEE A MAN WITH WHISKERS AND A SOMBRERO IN THE DISTANCE.
THE COLONEL LOOKS THROUGH HIS GLASSES.
AHA, IT'S VILLA IN DISGUISE!
GUSSIE MAKES A TEE OF DESERT SAND.
I'LL BRING HIM DOWN WITH A GOLF BALL.
RING OUT WILD BELLS.
GUSSIE IS ABOUT TO HIT THE BALL WHEN THE STRANGER DISPLAYS A FLAG OF TRUCE
HE COMES IN.
WHO ARE YOU?
HIRAM HICKS, JUSTICE OF THE PEACE
THE COLONEL GRASPS HIRAM'S HAND,
JUST THE MAN WE ARE LOOKING FOR. MARRY BELINDA AND GUSSIE.
SURE COLONEL!
PASSED BY THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN AND THE EIGHT HOUR A DAY EFFICIENCY BOARD.
I WISH THEY WOULD VENTILATE THESE AIRDOMES. IT'S SO STUFFY IN HERE.
'SAT SO? THIS ONE OUGHT TO BE FUMIGATED.
I HEAR FATHER DEMPSEY SETTLED THE STRIKE OF THE SCENARIO WRITERS
I SUPPOSE THEY'LL BE STARRING A CROQUET CHAMPION NEXT.

100,000 Died from Bright's Disease and Other Kidney Troubles During the Past Year

Insurance Company Official Says That: "60% of These Deaths Could Have Been Avoided."

The increase in fatalities from Bright's Disease and other kidney ailments is causing grave concern to health authorities. A leading life insurance company states that 60% of these fatalities could have been avoided or postponed had the proper precautionary measures been taken.

Thousands of people who have kidney trouble do not know it. They do not realize the important part the kidneys play in our daily life. If the kidneys fail to act as nature intended, good health is impossible, as the poisons created daily are retained in the system, which cause backaches, constipation and many other distressing ills.

So to avert serious kidney illness, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy invariably helps these important organs back to normal action. Its healing and soothing action on the kidneys aids them to do their work of elimination of poisons from the system. That is why Warner's has helped thousands of sufferers from backache, weak kidneys and bladder troubles, and why it is so uniformly successful.

Then remember, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy is no experiment of today, but is a most dependable medicine for the kidneys that has been a blessing to thousands of sufferers for the last 40 years. You can get it at all druggists in 50c and $1.00 bottles; or a sample will be mailed free, if you write Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

To Wives of Drinking Men

ORRINE is the standard remedy and is everywhere recognized as the successful and reliable home treatment for the "Drink Habit." It is highly praised by thousands of women. because it has restored their loved ones to lives of sobriety and usefulness, and the weekly wages which at one time were spent for "Drink" are now used to purchase the necessaries and many comforts for home. Any wife or mother who wants to save her husband or son from "Drink" will be glad to know that she can purchase ORRINE at our store, and if no benefit is obtained after a trial the money will be refunded. Can be given secretly.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms: No. 1, a powder, tasteless and colorless, can be given secretly in food or drink; ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, is for those who wish to cure themselves. ORRINE costs only $1.00 a box. Ask us for free booklet. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 6th street and Washington av., St. Louis, Mo. Chas. F. Merker, East St. Louis, Ill. ADV,

CONFERENCE PLANS TO AID IN GETTING COMPENSATION LAW

State Body Organized to Frame Bill and Push It Before the General Assembly.

UNITY OF ACTION URGED

Executive Committee Appointed Includes Various Interests Most Directly Concerned.

A Missouri Workmen's Compensation Conference was organized yesterday afternoon at a meeting held at the courthouse under the auspices of the Bar Association of St. Louis. The object of the organization is the framing of a workmen's compensation act and its passage at the next session of the Legislature.

Senator Alroy S. Phillips was elected permanent chairman. He named an Executive Committee composed of William C. Esmueller of St. Louis, representing the employers; Reuben T. Wood of Springfield, president of the State Federation of Labor, representing the employes; Emmet V. Thompson, St. Louis, representing the insurance companies; Dr. Robert M. Funkhouser, St. Louis, representing the medical fraternity, and Senator Phillips himself, representing the lawyers. When Wood is not able to attend meetings of the committee his substitute will be David Kreyling, president of the St. Louis Federation of Labor.

The Executive Committee will meet in a few days and apportion the representation on a General Committee which Phillips says will be large enough to be fairly representative and small enough to be effective.

To Frame and Push Bill.

James C. Jones, president of the Bar Association, presided and stated that the object of the meeting was to bring about the framing of a bill satisfactory to all interests and procuring its passage. The present law, he said, was wasteful in that a large part of the damages paid for injuries to workmen went to damage suit lawyers, representing plaintiffs and defendants, whose efforts might be better employed in other ways. Elimination of that waste, he said, would be a service to employers and employes alike.

J. Lionberger Davis, secretary of the Workmen's Compensation Committee appointed by Gov. Hadley in 1910, told about that commission gathering information and submitting it to the Governor with a recommendation that he ask the Legislature to appoint another commission.

Roy Britton, member of the commission appointed in 1911 by the Legislature, told of the framing of a bill by that commission, which was introduced in the Senate and the House but which died in committee rooms. He attributed its demise to the fact that there had been a change of administration while the commission was at work and it did not receive active support, while it was opposed by those who did not believe in the principle.

Failure of Previous Bill.

Benjamin L. White, chairman of the commission appointed by the Senate in 1913, told of the commission visiting other states and obtaining information and having a bill introduced which did not pass. He did not know why it failed to pass, but he supposed it was because neither side understood it.

Robert T. Caldwell, chairman of the Kentucky Workmen's Compensation Board, told how the passage of the Kentucky law was brought about. He declared that insurance was the backbone of the law, and admonished his hearers that if Missouri had a good insurance law it would have a good compensation law. He urged the importance of using as much pains and judgment in preparing the political situation as in preparing the bill.

Resolutions were adopted declaring it to be the purpose of the conference to bring the parties affected by a compensation law into an agreement upon the terms of a bill to that end and such other bills as may be incidental thereto, to be introduced in the next General Assembly, and to conduct a publicity campaign and work for the passage of such measures.

CHINESE STUDENTS LEARNING RAPIDLY TO USE NEW ALPHABET

SHANGHAI, May 20.—The first class of students trained to read the Chinese language by means of the newly invented alphabet has been graduated, although the school in which they were trained was opened only a few months ago.

What the students had learned was put to a test in the presence of the Minister and Vice Minister of Education. Each student was given a sheet of blank paper on which he wrote a number of questions, after the new style. These questions were to be answered by another student seated in another quarter of the hall. This having been done, the Minister dictated a number of questions in Mandarin and told the students to answer them. Spectators were astonished at the remarkable clearness with which these answers were given.

The principal of the school explained that any two boys who have never been to school can be taught to correspond with each other in four months by means of this alphabet.

SCHOOL SURVEY BOARD GETS ITS WORK UNDER WAY

Results Will Be Used in Plan for $3,000,000 in School Bonds.

DR. JUDD IN CHARGE

Leading Educators All Over Country Are Assisting in Efficiency Investigations.

The school survey, recently authorized by the Board of Education, was started yesterday under the direction of Dr. Charles Hubbard Judd, director of the department of education of the University of Chicago. The results will be used by the Board of Education in furtherance of its plan for an election to vote $3,000,000 of school bonds.

Six members of the survey board, which includes 14 educators selected from various institutions, were actively at work, and the remainder will begin tomorrow.

This survey will include an investigation and report by the surveyors on all subjects pertaining to the school system, as well as the external work of the teachers and officers of the instruction department.

The idea of the survey is to show by a tabulated report the unit cost of every detail in the operation of the schools, and a determination of the efficiency of the system of instruction.

Schools for Community Purposes.

Dr. Judd told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that he approved of the use of school buildings after instruction hours for community purposes. He praised the cosmopolitan curriculum of the St. Louis public schools.

He thought the idea of teaching many subjects under one roof was superior to that of having different schools for students desiring a ground-work of technical training, academic instruction, etc.

He said that the survey board would make a preliminary report sometime in the summer, showing the progress of their work. During the remainder of the school session, which ends in June, the work of the instruction department will be under the observation of the experts assigned to the various departments.

Dr. Judd announced additional appointments to the Survey Board, and their duties, as follows:

Dr. E. A. Peterson, Department of Health, Cleveland, O., school system. Health; W. R. McCarnack, Building Department, Cleveland School System. Building plants; Fred H. Daniels, Superintendent of Drawing, Newton, Mass., school system. Drawing; George A. Mirick, Cambridge, Mass., author and retired instructor. Elementary class work.

$10,000 Appropriated for Work.

The other members of the board whose appointments were announced earlier in the week, are:

Prof. H. C. Morrison, Superintendent of Instruction of New Hampshire; Prof. W. F. Dearborn, Department of Education of Harvard University; Prof. Frank N. Freeman, Department of Education, University of Chicago; Prof. J. B. Cragun, Department of Education, University of Chicago; G. B. Meredith, Assistant Commissioner of the Department of Education, State of New Jersey; Prof. William S. Gray, Department of Education, University of Chicago; S. Hartwell, Superintendent of Schools, Muskegon, Mich., and Prof. J. F. Bobbitts, Department of Education, University of Chicago.

Ten thousand dollars was appropriated by the Board of Education to defray the cost of the survey. The investigators will be paid a per diem wage.

BOYISH BRITISH CHAPLAIN WINS THE VICTORIA CROSS IN FRANCE

General Pins Decoration on Him in Presence of Thousands of Soldiers.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, France, May 20.—Notwithstanding the countless deeds of bravery that have been chronicled on the British front, the ceremony of awarding the Victoria Cross is still rare enough to be notable whenever it occurs. One such recent ceremony was, in fact, unique, for the recipient was the Rev. Noel Mellish, a London curate, who is the first chaplain in the British army to receive the cross in the present war, or in any war since the second Afghan campaign in 1879.

The General who pinned the ribbon on the chaplain's breast read a brief account of the gallantry that won him the honor. The General told how, again and again, Mellish had risked his life to attend to and bring to places of safety those wounded in the fighting at St. Eloi. The clergyman, who is a slender, boyish looking man of gentle manners, rather than a typical fighting person, took his honors modestly, and was given a hearty round of cheers by the thousands of soldiers present.

Five Miles of Autos, Horses and Vehicles

If they were arranged in a procession, are advertised in today's Big REAL ESTATE AND WANT DIRECTORY—twice as many as the two other St. Louis Sunday newspapers combined.

Mrs. Margaret Sanger to Lecture.

Following a dinner to be given by the Town Club in the American Annex, on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Margaret Sanger of New York City will give an address on the "Ethics of Birth Control."

Coal Expensive in Egypt.

CAIRO, Egypt, May 20.—Prices of imported commodities in this city are rapidly decreasing. Coal is the only article on which war rates of $30 a ton are maintained.

Give a Victrola at Graduation Time

Victrola XIV at $150

One of the best ways to settle the graduation gift question is to give a Victrola. The Victrola is the perfect gift, because it will afford pleasure to every member of the family, as well as to your friend.

Its Tone Is Wonderfully Clear and Natural

The wonderfully clear and natural tone of the Victrola makes it a delight to listen to such world-famous artists as Ruffo, Gadski, Schumann-Heink, Caruso, Melba, Tetrazzini, Hempel, Amato, Farrar and Homer in grand opera—and to McCormack, Gluck, Culp and Williams in the old-fashioned songs and ballads—to Kreisler, Powell, Elman, Kubelik and Zimbalist on the violin—and the finest bands and orchestras in the world.

If you enjoy dancing, the Victrola dance records are conceded to be the "last word" in every respect.

Victrolas at $15 to $400 Victor Records 60c and Up

Easy terms of payment may be arranged on both Victrolas and Records.

Come in and here your favorite selections on the Victrola. We will gladly play them for you in one of our beautiful sound-proof demonstration rooms.

Historical Rheims Cathedral

Copyright 1916, American Art Co.

From an Original Colored Etching by J. Alphege Brewer

Work was begun on this Cathedral in 1212, and completed in 1242. The wonderful unity of the architecture attests to the rapidity of the work.

The interior is 466 feet long and 121 feet high.

This prodigy of magnificence with its army of five-thousand statues and resplendent windows which flash in the rays of the setting sun like a world of sparkling jewels has been damaged beyond repair during the present war.

A Wonderful Reproduction of the Original Etching

Colored Etchings—of which these are a reproduction—are held at prices which limit them to the wealthy, but the wonderful reproductive processes used to make these pictures are such that little, if any, of the beauty of the originals has been lost.

Choice of Either the Interior or Exterior Views

We offer these reproductions of both the interior and exterior of the Rheims Cathedral, in two different sizes, at the following extraordinarily low prices:

Our Confidential Credit System is a very simple one and may be explained in two words—confidence and good faith. Years of experience has taught us that an honest person is a safe person to do business with, and that if the conditions are not difficult and burdensome, an honest person may be depended upon to fulfill them. The conditions on which we sell Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry are not burdensome. Our prices are low—our credit terms exceedingly easy—there is no red tape, no publicity. Everything is absolutely confidential. You and we are the only ones who know anything about your transaction.

A great feature of our confidential relations with our customers is our PERSONAL CALL DEPARTMENT. A competent corps of representatives, thoroughly experienced and efficient, make personal calls in any location and at any specified time. Just make your own appointments. If it is inconvenient for you to have a salesman call during the day, or if for any reason you prefer to have him call in the evening, when all members of the family are at home, he will cheerfully do so. Imagine the convenience, comfort and pleasure derived from examining an assortment of jewelry, at your leisure, right in your home. COLUMBUS NOW LIVEST, BUSIEST TOWN ON BORDER

Three Months Ago It Was a Tired Little Place; Today It Is Having a Harvest Time.

EXPEDITION SUPPLY POINT

Million Dollars' Worth of Motor Trucks Ply South From There; Turns to the Drama.

"Do It Now," Usurps Place of "Courage, Duty, Fortitude"

EL PASO, May 20.

BEFORE the Columbus raid Col. Slocum's headquarters were in the building now occupied by Maj. Sample, the commandant of the Columbus post. Col. Slocum had on the wall a large framed placard bearing the legend, "Courage, duty, fortitude."

In the bustle following the inauguration of the base of supplies for the expedition, the sign was knocked down. It was not put up again and after the commercial business was well under way, there appeared in its stead a crisp business-like card, such as many officers have, saying: "Do it now."

By CLAIR KENAMORE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—A million dollars worth of motor trucks ply out of Columbus, N. M., to points south. Five hundred civilian employes of the War Department work and live in Columbus. Three thousand soldiers are there, or moving through. It is the livest, most active busiest town on the Mexican border, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean.

Three years ago Columbus was a dreary, dead little town, high on the desert, where its few dobe houses and tin sheds, dirty from dust-storms and wind devils, blistered in the sun. Three months ago it was a tired little town with a garrison of 250 American soldiers. Now it is a busy place, with all the marks of prosperity, and even the wind storms have been shorn of their terrors, for all the streets are oiled.

Electric lights glitter now where all once was darkness. The dead has been made to live, for the business part of a great enterprise, the expedition into Mexico, is carried on in Columbus. The glamor of the field does not attach to Columbus. Its part is like that of the man on deck who works the air-pump while the sea diver goes below. It supplies the necessity of life to the worker on the other end of the line.

Quartermaster's Department.

In Columbus there have arisen since the Villa raid, March 9, great barn-like structures which are like the central offices of big commercial institutions. The quartermaster's department has more than 300 civilian employes. There is an immense amount of clerical work about keeping 15,000 men supplied with everything they need. Railroad spurs run through the neat, orderly camp, which covers four and a half square miles. The immense quantities of provisions are handled almost as cleanly and as expeditiously as in the Cupples Station in St. Louis.

Between the bandstand and the headquarters of Maj. Sample, who is the commanding officer and the directing genius of Columbus, stands a truck train, ready to start for the front at dawn, the scabbard of an army rifle strapped to every steering post. Three deep they stand in precise military formation.

Down in the long street, in the dispatcher's office, is a ruled black bulletin board showing exactly where each train is that day. The 300 trucks now employed are divided into 11 trains, and the dispatcher keeps track of them by wireless, and gives his orders like the train dispatcher of a great railroad system.

The last train load which went out carried nothing but the solid tires used by the trucks, to supply the machines now in Mexico, where the sharp rocks have cut the tires to pieces. When one thinks of buying 18 truck loads of automobile tires, he gets an inkling of the magnitude of the expedition.

Trucking a Hard Task.

The trucking has been a desperate task, made necessary by the refusal of the Carranza Government to permit the use of the railroads. And the truckers are now near to the end of their string. The roads are worn out and the rains are coming. The officers are pondering deeply on what they will do when the road becomes a river of dobe mud, slick as oil.

Great stockyards have been built for the use of the officers of the remount division. This is considered one of the most important things, as the cavalry is doing the fighting, and the remounts are essentials and they are hard to get. England and France have cleaned the country of good cavalry horses.

Many automobiles flit about the camp, over the clean roads which three months ago were a desert.

Down through the camp there is little rest. Cars on the spur are being unloaded. From one comes the green tin boxes, each of which carries 1200 rounds of ammunition. From another, boxes of hard bread by the thousands.

Carpenters are nailing the corrugated iron on the framework of what will be a quartermaster depot. Before the corrals, blacksmiths are shoeing horses, while, within the corrals, vets and cowboys are working over the latest drafts of remounts.

Below and to the west is an immense machine shop where mechanics are going over trucks under a system of military efficiency.

A score of prisoners, last night's grist from the provost mill, are cleaning up camp, under the eyes of their guards. At the bake shops the big saltless loaves, known as "war babies," are being taken out and sacked for the trucks. They are going to the boys in Mexico.

Off in the desert a cloud of dust shows where a squadron of cavalry is at drill, and at another point the canvas hangars of the aviation corps are seen. There earnest men are working over the airships that will not fly. The failure of aeroplanes in Mexico has been a blow to admirers of that arm of the service.

At the tracks gasoline is being syphoned into the well-guarded tanks, and wonder, across the arroyo, up which Villa raiders came, convalescent soldiers sit on the hospital verandas.

Columbus was badly wounded in the Villa raid. Many citizens were killed;

COLUMBUS NOW LIVEST, BUSIEST TOWN ON BORDER

Three Months Ago It Was a Tired Little Place; Today It Is Having a Harvest Time.

EXPEDITION SUPPLY POINT

Million Dollars' Worth of Motor Trucks Ply South From There; Turns to the Drama.

"Do It Now," Usurps Place of "Courage, Duty, Fortitude"

EL PASO, May 20.

BEFORE the Columbus raid Col. Slocum's headquarters were in the building now occupied by Maj. Sample, the commandant of the Columbus post. Col. Slocum had on the wall a large framed placard bearing the legend, "Courage, duty, fortitude."

In the bustle following the inauguration of the base of supplies for the expedition, the sign was knocked down. It was not put up again and after the commercial business was well under way, there appeared in its stead a crisp business-like card, such as many officers have, saying: "Do it now."

By CLAIR KENAMORE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—A million dollars worth of motor trucks ply out of Columbus, N. M., to points south. Five hundred civilian employes of the War Department work and live in Columbus. Three thousand soldiers are there, or moving through. It is the livest, most active busiest town on the Mexican border, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean.

Three years ago Columbus was a dreary, dead little town, high on the desert, where its few dobe houses and tin sheds, dirty from dust-storms and wind devils, blistered in the sun. Three months ago it was a tired little town with a garrison of 250 American soldiers. Now it is a busy place, with all the marks of prosperity, and even the wind storms have been shorn of their terrors, for all the streets are oiled.

Electric lights glitter now where all once was darkness. The dead has been made to live, for the business part of a great enterprise, the expedition into Mexico, is carried on in Columbus. The glamor of the field does not attach to Columbus. Its part is like that of the man on deck who works the air-pump while the sea diver goes below. It supplies the necessity of life to the worker on the other end of the line.

Quartermaster's Department.

In Columbus there have arisen since the Villa raid, March 9, great barn-like structures which are like the central offices of big commercial institutions. The quartermaster's department has more than 300 civilian employes. There is an immense amount of clerical work about keeping 15,000 men supplied with everything they need. Railroad spurs run through the neat, orderly camp, which covers four and a half square miles. The immense quantities of provisions are handled almost as cleanly and as expeditiously as in the Cupples Station in St. Louis.

Between the bandstand and the headquarters of Maj. Sample, who is the commanding officer and the directing genius of Columbus, stands a truck train, ready to start for the front at dawn, the scabbard of an army rifle strapped to every steering post. Three deep they stand in precise military formation.

Down in the long street, in the dispatcher's office, is a ruled black bulletin board showing exactly where each train is that day. The 300 trucks now employed are divided into 11 trains, and the dispatcher keeps track of them by wireless, and gives his orders like the train dispatcher of a great railroad system.

The last train load which went out carried nothing but the solid tires used by the trucks, to supply the machines now in Mexico, where the sharp rocks have cut the tires to pieces. When one thinks of buying 18 truck loads of automobile tires, he gets an inkling of the magnitude of the expedition.

Trucking a Hard Task.

The trucking has been a desperate task, made necessary by the refusal of the Carranza Government to permit the use of the railroads. And the truckers are now near to the end of their string. The roads are worn out and the rains are coming. The officers are pondering deeply on what they will do when the road becomes a river of dobe mud, slick as oil.

Great stockyards have been built for the use of the officers of the remount division. This is considered one of the most important things, as the cavalry is doing the fighting, and the remounts are essentials and they are hard to get. England and France have cleaned the country of good cavalry horses.

Many automobiles flit about the camp, over the clean roads which three months ago were a desert.

Down through the camp there is little rest. Cars on the spur are being unloaded. From one comes the green tin boxes, each of which carries 1200 rounds of ammunition. From another, boxes of hard bread by the thousands.

Carpenters are nailing the corrugated iron on the framework of what will be a quartermaster depot. Before the corrals, blacksmiths are shoeing horses, while, within the corrals, vets and cowboys are working over the latest drafts of remounts.

Below and to the west is an immense machine shop where mechanics are going over trucks under a system of military efficiency.

A score of prisoners, last night's grist from the provost mill, are cleaning up camp, under the eyes of their guards.

At the bake shops the big saltless loaves, known as "war babies," are being taken out and sacked for the trucks. They are going to the boys in Mexico.

Off in the desert a cloud of dust shows where a squadron of cavalry is at drill, and at another point the canvas hangars of the aviation corps are seen. There earnest men are working over the airships that will not fly. The failure of aeroplanes in Mexico has been a blow to admirers of that arm of the service.

At the tracks gasoline is being syphoned into the well-guarded tanks, and wonder, across the arroyo, up which Villa raiders came, convalescent soldiers sit on the hospital verandas.

Columbus was badly wounded in the Villa raid. Many citizens were killed.

houses burned, horses stolen and windows broken. But as soon as it recovered from the shock, Columbus tied up its wounds and set to work getting rich. So flourishing has business been that everybody has more than recovered his monetary losses, and now finds himself with a most prosperous business and glowing prospects. All the windows shattered by Villa bullets have been replaced. The unromantic townsmen have plugged up the holes in the dobe walls, and signs "For Sale, $1000. See Hulsey," appear on lots almost forgotten.

The telegraph office is established in a retired freight car on a sidetrack and the khaki-clad operators have planted a flower bed under one end of it.

38 Civilian Police Now.

The majesty of the law formerly was upheld by one Constable, who was in or out of town at will. Now 38 civilian police, in addition to the provost guard, are on duty, and they are picturesque fellows, who shoot from either hip and know their way about a horse. The Chief of Police, recently deposed, tied down the safety on his pistol and filed off the hammer catch.

Fifteen new restaurants now cater to the trade formerly supplied by two. They occupy tents, frame shacks or dobes, and all are busy. Before the raid Columbus was not interested in the drama. With the influx of people a Frohman of the desert got busy, and in 24 hours a carpenter and 10 Mexicans had erected a sheet iron airdome, at which the Folly Girls now disport nightly.

Columbus was a dry town and club life was unknown up to the great day. Now five literary and social clubs, including the "Grizzly Bear," keep alive the night life and mitigate the aridity. The motor trip of 35 miles to Deming, formerly an event, is now taken without advance notice and merely for diversion.

The faces in the town are constantly changing and the citizens change callings in the care-free Western way. The man who yesterday was a soldier has bought his release and now is a waiter and partner in a restaurant. Yesterday's waiter, in stiff, cool olive green, is learning to port and carry arms.

The postoffice, which handles only civilian mail, has made an addition to its building and several to its staff, and is still crowded with business. The military postoffice, on the other side of the railroad tracks, is a much bigger institution than the civilian.

Columbus is having its harvest-time. Whatever else the expediton may do, it has made this part of the desert blossom.

ENGLAND IMPORTS LESS COTTON

Quantity Decreased 27 Per Cent in March; Value Higher.

MANCHESTER, England, May 20.—Among the raw materials imported by England in March, cotton decreased in quantity 21.5 per cent, but increased in value 26 per cent. Imports of wool decreased in quantity 31.2 per cent and in value 10.7 per cent. Flax hemp and jute decreased in both quantity and value.

The exports of woolen and worsted tissues increased both in quantity and value, as did also the exports of linen yarn and piece goods; the exports of jute showed an increase in value, but a decrease in quantity, as did also the exports of silk manufactures.

Seven Miles of Boarding Places

FORD IS TOLD OF NEW SCHEME TO STOP WAR

South Dakota Man Would Have Neutral Air Fleet Drop Peace Messages in Trenches.

GETTYSBURG, S. D., May 20.—William Schoof has evolved a plan for stopping the European war.

He has written to Henry Ford about it.

The plan is for neutral nations to unite in procuring a fleet of airships to be painted some distinguishing color so they may be identified as noncombatants. These airships would be launched daily from neutral territory adjacent to battlefields. They would be loaded with cards printed in all languages, calling upon the troops to lay down their arms at a given hour, and cease fighting.

Schoof argues that if the men would not stop fighting, the leaders would be compelled to get together and negotiate for peace.

As a closing argument, Schoof declares that whatever may be said of his plan, it is as feasible as any other that has been suggested.

Trawler's Catch Valued at $18,350.

HULL, England, May 20.—The trawler Elf King has set a world's record for her catch of fish, which realized $18,350.

"Corns All Gone! Let's ALL Kick!"

Every Corn Vanishes by Using Wonderful, Simple "Gets-It." Never Fails. Applied in 2 Seconds.

Isn't it wonderful what a difference just a little "Gets-It" makes—on corns and calluses? It's always night somewhere in the world, with many folks humped up, with cork-screwed faces, gouging, picking, drilling out their corns, making packages of their toes with plasters, bandages, tape and contraptions—and the "holler" in their corns goes on forever! Don't you do it. Use "Gets-It," it's marvelous, simple, never fails. Apply it in 2 seconds. Nothing to stick to the stocking, hurt or irritate the toe. Pain stops. Corn comes "clean off," quick. It's one of the gems of the world. Try it—you'll kick—from joy. For corns, calluses, warts, bunions.

"Whee! I Don't Care! I Got Rid of My Corns With 'Gets-It'!"

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

ONE CHIROPRACTIC TREATMENT PLENTY LAWYER TESTIFIES

Moved Rapidly to the Knock-Out Stage and Journey Home in an Ambulance.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., May 20.—Opinions differ widely on the value of chiropractic treatment, it has been shown in the $20,000 damage suit of Mrs. Minine Burrus against Dr. W. R. Gorby, on trial in the District Court. Gorby treated the husband of Mrs. Burrus for appendicitis, and he died. Momar Pruiett, a widely known criminal lawyer, was a witness for the plaintiff. He said he had taken one chiropractic treatment and it nearly killed him.

"It was about seven years ago," said Pruiett. "I went up to a place on Broadway, having been advised by friends to take that kind of treatment. The chiropractor placed me in front of a skeleton of a human or some other animal and gave me a lecture half an hour long. Afterwards I paid him for the lecture.

"Then he put me on a low table. He said it was an adjusting table, but I think it was low so that he could jump high enough to land on his victims with greater force. He started to work around my head, but I told him it was all right. Then he got to work on my spine.

"All at once he jumped on me with his whole weight. I guess he was trying to kill me. I don't know what a chiropractor calls that kind of treatment, but in law it is assault and battery. He hurt me so badly that I fainted and fell off the table. I had to be taken home in an ambulance and I was in bed nine days.

"I've had a good many fights, and I have been hurt, but this man took a mean advantage of me. I didn't know he was goining to attack me, and I was down. My gun was in my trousers on the other side of the room. I didn't have a chance in the world.

"That is as far as my knowledge of the science goes," continued the lawyer. "I had heard of it and was told by others that it was all right. One man who had taken the treatments admitted to me that they were a little rough at times, but he said they had to be."

One Treatment Enough for Him.

"You didn't take a second treatment, then?" asked the attorney for Dr. Gorby.

"Who, me?" returned Pruiett. "Positively I did not. I had some cases coming up in court and I wanted to appear in them. Why should I allow a total stranger to beat me to death and then collect a fee for it?"

"You are not certain, then, that other treatments would not have done you a great deal of good?"

"If they were like that one," replied Pruiett, "I feel certain that the second one would have finished me. I don't believe Jess Willard could have stood the punishment of that man. He was an expert in his line. My impression is that those who are taken back for a second treatment would beg him to shoot or use a club to put them out of their misery."

"Did you see this chiropractor again, or this man you say was a chiropractor?"

"I couldn't trust myself that far. He sent me a bill and I paid it by check, sending it by mail. I have always regarded it as a practical joke, put up on me by my friends, but the man was a chiropractor all right. My understanding is that all of them pull that kind of rough stuff. I have seen other victims."

"How did he light on you?"

"With his knees, I think. I didn't remain conscious long enough to know for a certainty, but that was my impression."

"Was he a large man?"

"He weighed about 180, but when he lit on me I thought he weighed a ton."

Why He Paid the Bill.

'Now, Mr. Pruiett," continued the lawyer for Gorby, "if this man hurt you as you say he did, why did you pay his bill?"

"Well, I felt that he had put one over on me," replied Pruiett. "In other words, he licked me. Of course, he had me at a disadvantage, and all that, but I am not a welsher."

"You don't know that other chiropractors use the same methods?"

"I do not. I notice that there are a good many funerals, however."

"You mean to say that a chiropractic treatment would kill a man?"

"Oh no. Nothing like that. A small chiropractor probably could not kill Jess Willard, or Carl Morris, but he could batter a strong man within an inch of his life."

"What do you think his obpect was in jumping upon you?"

"I think he wanted to see if he could break my back the first time. It was probably a sort of experiment with him."

The Gorby case has been a fight from the start between regular physicians and chiropractors. Many physicians of both schools have testified, and many patients of the chiropractors have testified to being cured.

LAWYERS SAY LORD'S PRAYER

Some of Them Rather Haltingly, Though, at Lawyer's Funeral.

CARTHAGE, Mo., May 20.—At the funeral of A. L. Thomas, an attorney of this city, the attendants were deeply interested in the effort of the large number of lawyers present to repeat the Lord's Prayer. Some of them, it was noted, did so in a halting way, but the conclusion was in concert.

The saying of the prayer was in compliance with the death-bed request of Thomas, communicated to the lawyers, assembled as a bar association, by the former partner of Thomas, Thomas Hackney of Kansas City.

DANCE PANTOMIME TO BE GIVEN FOR PURE MILK FUND

First Big Production of 1916 Season Will Be Presented Next Saturday.

Twenty-five young pupils of Miss Cecile Lowenstein of 4517 Olive street, under her direction, are rehearsing twice a week the dance pantomime "In Toyland," the first big production benefit of the Pure Milk Fund of 1916. It will be presented next Saturday afternoon and evening at the New Grand Central Theater. The children and their friends are industriously selling tickets for the performance, being eager to make the entertainment yield handsomely for the cause.

The rehearsals thus far held are convincing that each member of the cast of the pantomime will be "step-perfect" on the day of the performance.

As the screen is raised on "Toyland" the "toys" are revealed as lifeless dolls. Then there appear on the scene the flower fairies, led by their Queen, who, with their mystic wands and magic words, breathe life into the little figures. Thence forward to the end there is a riot of life and merriment as the doll impersonators perform the dances of their respective parts.

The initial dance is by the Baby-Bumps dolls, the children in which are from [illegible] to 8 years old. Next is a dance by a sailor boy; then a performance by an Italian peasant doll, and then a dance by the Japanese doll. The ensuing program features are the dance of the kewpies, by six tots from 4 to 6 years old; an old-fashioned doll, with a hoop skirt; a French doll that [illegible], and two teddy bears.

Part second opens with a bird dance, followed by a Boy Scout drill. Two rag dolls do a "cake walk," then follows a butterfly dance, a top dance and a balloon dance. Miss Lowenstein then enters upon the scene, and does a Russian dance, which is followed by a grand finale by the entire company.

The 25 children in the production are Norma Schwarz, 6022 McPherson avenue; Rosalind Franklin, 6155 McPherson avenue; Nathan Gutfreund, 3846 De Tonty street; Ruth and Myra Gram, 5794 Kingsbury; Hester Mayer, 4147 Russell avenue; Estelle [illegible]gel, 6028 Maple avenue; Ruth Freund, 3822 De Tonty street; Henrietta Freund, 4016 McPherson avenue; Frances Sandperl, 5636 Cabanne avenue; Sylvia Levy, 1206 Oakley place; Hortense Golluber, 5858 Nina place; Bernice Jacobson, 4748 Cook avenue; Pauline Lev[illegible], 5611 Page boulevard; Ruth Allina, 4.66 McPherson avenue; Lewis and Constance Lowenstein, 4013 Russell avenue; Virginia Sankey, 4531 McPherson avenue; Marian Sherman, 5786 Kingsbury; Myra Littman, 2826 Accomac street; Marian Freund, 5782 Kingsbury; Hannah Morris, 6147 McPherson avenue; Emily Lou Garthhoeffner, 4396 Laclede avenue; Bernice Wise, 5871 Von Versen avenue, and Virginia Wise, 5782 Kingsbury.

Tickets for the production may be obtained from any of the children in the performance or from Miss Lowenstein.

FRIARS WILL ALSO PARADE ON JUNE 3, THEIR SHOW DAY

Noted Actors Will Take Part in Street Demonstration on Morning of Arrival.

Beside the preparedness parade of June 3 there will be another parade in downtown streets on that day, which may not be so long, but will be just as wide and every bit as lively. This will be the parade of the Friars, who are to give their All-Star Frolic at the Olympic Theater Saturday afternoon and night, June 3.

The Friars' parade will be given in the morning, following the arrival of the entertainers. The route has not been fully mapped out, but it is expected that Mayor Kiel will welcome the visitors at the city hall, and that the march will end at the Missouri Athletic Association, where the Friars will take lunch before their matinee performance.

The tour opens next Sunday at the New Amsterdam Theater, New York. Premiums were paid for the choice of seats for the New York performance. This is the sort of subject that press agents just revel in, and the advance agent of the Frolic quotes the total of these premiums at the modest figure of $18,000.

The entertainment will run from minstrelsy to musical comedy, the book for the latter having been written by George Cohan, with music by Irving Berlin, Jean Swartz and others. One hundred and fifty Friars will travel on the tour and take part in the show, among them being George Cohan, William Collier, Frank Tinney, Louis Mann, Fred Niblo, Nat Wills, Jerry J. Cohan, James J. Corbett, George Primrose, Lew Dockstader, Neil O'Brien, Rube Goldberg and Bud Fisher, cartoonists; Gus Edwards, Irving Berlin, Tom Lewis, Ernest Ball, George Sydney, Andrew Mack, Julius Tannen, Hap Ward and Albert Spalding, the violinist.

MUSIC EDITOR TO LECTURE HERE

Three of Four Addresses Will Be Delivered in High Schools.

John C. Freund, editor of Musical America, a New York weekly devoted to music, will deliver four addresses here this week. The first will be before pupils of Yeatman High School, on Thursday morning. On Thursday afternoon he will be the guest of the Women's Committee of the St. Louis Symphony Society, at the Artists' Guild, and will speak on "The Value of a Symphony Orchestra to the Women of a City."

On Friday morning he will speak at McKinley High School, and that night at Soldan High School, on "The Musical Independence of the United States," this address being free to the public. E. R. Kroeger is chairman of a committee which will entertain Freund during his visit.

HUSBAND LEFT [illegible] BEEN GONE FOR SEVEN YEARS

Judge in Butte Thinks It Means Desertion, and Gives Woman Divorce Decree.

BUTTE, Mont., May 20.—When a minute, as measured by Ira T. Wood, had lengthened into seven years, his wife, Mrs. Georgia Wood, thought it meant desertion of her by him and that it was time to obtain a divorce. She formally applied for one before Judge J. B. McClernan.

"I'll be back in a minute," Mrs. Wood told the Court her husband stated when he left her in the Union Depot at Denver, carrying the check to her trunk, which he ostensibly left to look after. Since then, she said, she had heard nothing either of her husband or the trunk. "I guess he thinks I'm still waiting for him," she added.

"He had plenty of time to get the trunk, even in a tourist town, so I guess it means desertion," Judge McClernan observed, and he ordered the divorce decree accordingly.

Superfluous Hair Must Be Devitalized

Unlike pastes and rub-on preparations, this wonderful liquid attacks hair under the skin as well as on the skin. It does its work quickly, then evaporates. Results from its use are immediate and lasting. Buy a bottle of the genuine De Miracle today and you will get the original liquid hair remover, which alone has the power to devitalize hair. Well groomed women always use De Miracle for removing hair from the limbs to prevent it from showing through stockings. Also for removing hair from under arms.

Refuse imitations or substitutes. De Miracle never disappoints. TOILETTES says: it "has proved itself superior to electricity, X-ray or anything else." Genuine magazines of the highest character endorse only De Miracle. Beware of so-called endorsements of bogus magazines which are used to exploit the sale of questionable depilatories. Be sure to buy De Miracle by name and you will get the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package which entitles you to your money if it fails. In 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 bottles. If your dealer will not supply you buy a bottle at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or direct, postpaid in plain wrapper. De Miracle Chemical Co., Dept. P-2, Park Av. and 129th St., New York.—ADV.

RECENT BOOK WRITTEN BY A CAPITALIST GIVES HIS VIEWS OF SOCIALISM

A very remarkable book by an author who reserves his identity but who is said to be a "big business man" has just come from the press of Parke, Austin and Lipscombe of New York.

The annonymous author, says Benjamin Paul Blood in his introduction "is a Capitalist easy enough—some think a multi-capitalist—but he regards his personal identity as irrelevant at this time; and at best it could but abet the manifest assurance that this book is cordially intended to do some good. He is known to have had more and other than the common experience, and to have felt the rounds of its ladder at both ends; and now, when 'the westering pathos glooms the fervent hours, he feels it just and becoming to give as has been given him, with no more pretension than has come from a rather voluminous and miscellaneous correspondence. The author does not pose as a 'highbrow' * * * but to the judicious, who can read between the lines * * * there will appear in the leisurely pages a generous spirit which prosperity could never spoil, and a native force and sagacity which, unwearied by the strenuous life, react and overthrow for the good of humanity with the world-wisdom which has been at once the growth and the secret of a phenomenal success."

Two Great Principles Ignored.

Socialism, says the author in his foreword, ignores the existence of the two great principles of human progress, self-interest and the social instinct. It assumes that there is nothing in common between capital and labor, but that these are antagonistic, and, since one must dominate, it prefers that this be labor, the more fundamental of the two. Thus, since labor is continually creating capital, is laid the basis for endless strife and bitterness. Ostensibly seeking to make homogeneous the persistent heterogeneity of humanity, to bring to birth the ideal social order, Socialism has neglected the most important maientic preparation for the event, which is the cultivation in the soul of the present society of that peace and harmony, that "good will toward men" which is intended to characterize the blessed offspring.

"When Socialists attempt to separate society into opposing classes * * * they are striking at one of the fountainheads of happiness; how can they expect in such a case to make very much progress? * * * They betray a most * * * ignorant conception of life, a lack of philosophical thought as well as of practicability."

Not only are they blind to the sound principles of sociology, but to the highest economic truth, for antagonism is waste. The psychological problem which lies beneath all economic questions is to eliminate discord as destructive energy.

"Enlightened self-interest, selfishness modified by far-sighted concessions to opposing interests, is my position."

Gives Definitions of Socialism.

On this thesis the author builds his book. In chapter one he gives authoritative definitions of Socialism in general; and classifies it into its particular varieties: the two branches of the "I. W. W." (Industrial Workers of the World), those of Chicago and Detroit; the Socialist Labor Party; the Socialist Party; and the Christian Socialists; presenting the distinctive tenets of each as expressed by a leader. The common article of all their creeds he finds to be antagonism to capital in private hands. He then shows the impossibility of separating laborers and capitalists into clearly defined classes, as the Socialists attempt to do. Thus he cites the nearly five million dollars, put into savings banks, mostly by laboring men and women, and the more than seventeen billions in other banks, much of which is also the property of wage earners (for salaries are wages), to show that the depositors are capitalists in every sense of the word.

He meets the demand of Socialists for "equality of opportunity with an equitable distribution of the product," by the inquiry "How can an unequal person (inability), even if he has an equal opportunity, expect to succeed?" The natural law of the "survial of the fittest" cannot be changed by human legislation. Education tending to make men more nearly equal in ability is the true remedy. Opportunity is thrown away on a man without the ability to improve it. Give a Socialistic theorist and a practical business man the same opportunity, and who would you wager will come out ahead? And, if the Government owned everything, which man, if the service is to be efficient, would get the place at the top?

Trades Unions "Capitalistic."

In chapter two trades Unions are discussed. They are shown to be capitalistic in tendency by indictments by Socialists of John Mitchell for alliance with the "captains of industry," such as leaders in the Civic Federation. By the "craft-form" of organization the trades unions, say the Socialists, "isolate the workers into groups, which * * * in time of conflict, become the easy prey of the capitalists * * * The working class and the employing class have nothing in common." Therefore, the Socialists conclude, the working class must unite in politics as well as industry to wrest from capital the earnings of production.

That trades unions are also bureaucratic and tend to form trusts within the domain of labor is shown by statistics of wages in highly unionized industries which are equal to and even greater than the salaries of state Governors, etc.

"Hate" is the subject of Chapter IV. Socialists while decrying war between nations openly declare war on capitalists, a civil conflict between fellow citizens which is far more abhorrent. They name certain heads of great business enterprises, which have been built up by the toil and ability of these men, and call them "robbers." By the same rule every laborer must be a robber of workingmen lower in the scale of wages. Here the author first adopts the method of demonstrating his points of dialogue by presenting a controversy on the subject between a doubting laborer and a Socialist. The hatred of Socialists against the Roman Catholics he especially deplores, although he himself is not of this faith.

He Discusses Capitalists.

Chapter V deals with "Capitalists." The author gives Socialistic definitions of this class, and then presents a character sketch of a friend of his, a typical capitalist, to show the ignorance of Socialists concerning the traits and the services of the men of whom they pretend to have such intimate knowledge.

The anti-Socialistic arguments of this man are among the most convincing in the book. For example:

"I am in several businesses, but will take two, the elevation of grain, and drygoods. I have in each an investment of, elevator, $490,000; drygoods, $500,000. Each earns $35,000, which is about 7 per cent on the investment. In the elevator I employ 10 men, while in the drygoods I employ 500.

"Now, on the theory that 'labor produces all,' and all should take it, and that the capitalist is not needed, and that his property should be taken from him and given to those who made it, how do we see it here? Why, my employes in the elevator would divide up $35,000 profit among 10 men, which is $3500 each, while the men in the drygoods business would divide up $35,000 profit among 500, and get $70 each."

The capitalist friend also discussed government ownership, particularly of railroads:

"If the Government owned the railroads, who would the stockholders be? You and I, all of us. Are most of us today thinking about the serv-

Today's Beauty Hint

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—ADV.

The New Home of the Angelus

The World's First and Most Renowned Player-Piano

THE HOUSE OF CONROY
AGAIN TRIUMPHS

The House of Conroy, for years recognized as the leading piano house of St. Louis, was selected above all others to represent the WORLD-FAMED ANGELUS PLAYER-PIANO. This famous instrument was the first player-piano ever made, and is recognized as such by the United States Government. On account of its basic patents it has exclusive features possessed by no other player-piano, such as the marvelous phrasing lever, the melodant, melody buttons, etc.

Such great artists as Josef Hofmann, Jean de Reszke, Marcella Sembrich, Kocian, Mascagni, Kreisler, Edwin H. Lamare, England's most celebrated organist, also the world-famous dancer, Lydia Lopoukowa, all unite in proclaiming the Angelus as the only piano-player of artistic worth.

THE ANGELUS LINE includes the following makes of world-renowned instruments: Knabe—Angelus, Emerson—Angelus, Marshall & Wendell—Angelus, Angelus Piano, and are now on sale exclusively by the CONROY PIANO CO., 1100 Olive Street.

RECENT BOOK WRITTEN BY A CAPITALIST GIVES HIS VIEWS OF SOCIALISM

A very remarkable book by an author who reserves his identity but who is said to be a "big business man" has just come from the press of Parke, Austin and Lipscombe of New York.

The annonymous author, says Benjamin Paul Blood in his introduction "is a Capitalist easy enough—some think a multi-capitalist—but he regards his personal identity as irrelevant at this time; and at best it could but abet the manifest assurance that this book is cordially intended to do some good. He is known to have had more and other than the common experience, and to have felt the rounds of its ladder at both ends; and now, when 'the westering pathos glooms the fervent hours, he feels it just and becoming to give as has been given him, with no more pretension than has come from a rather voluminous and miscellaneous correspondence. The author does not pose as a 'highbrow' * * * but to the judicious, who can read between the lines * * * there will appear in the leisurely pages a generous spirit which prosperity could never spoil, and a native force and sagacity which, unwearied by the strenuous life, react and overthrow for the good of humanity with the world-wisdom which has been at once the growth and the secret of a phenomenal success."

Two Great Principles Ignored.

Socialism, says the author in his foreword, ignores the existence of the two great principles of human progress, self-interest and the social instinct. It assumes that there is nothing in common between capital and labor, but that these are antagonistic, and, since one must dominate, it prefers that this be labor, the more fundamental of the two. Thus, since labor is continually creating capital, is laid the basis for endless strife and bitterness. Ostensibly seeking to make homogeneous the persistent heterogeneity of humanity, to bring to birth the ideal social order, Socialism has neglected the most important maientic preparation for the event, which is the cultivation in the soul of the present society of that peace and harmony, that "good will toward men" which is intended to characterize the blessed offspring.

"When Socialists attempt to separate society into opposing classes * * * they are striking at one of the fountainheads of happiness; how can they expect in such a case to make very much progress? * * * They betray a most * * * ignorant conception of life, a lack of philosophical thought as well as of practicability."

Not only are they blind to the sound principles of sociology, but to the highest economic truth, for antagonism is waste. The psychological problem which lies beneath all economic questions is to eliminate discord as destructive energy.

"Enlightened self-interest, selfishness modified by far-sighted concessions to opposing interests, is my position."

Gives Definitions of Socialism.

On this thesis the author builds his book. In chapter one he gives authoritative definitions of Socialism in general; and classifies it into its particular varieties: the two branches of the "I. W. W." (Industrial Workers of the World), those of Chicago and Detroit; the Socialist Labor Party; the Socialist Party; and the Christian Socialists; presenting the distinctive tenets of each as expressed by a leader. The common article of all their creeds he finds to be antagonism to capital in private hands. He then shows the impossibility of separating laborers and capitalists into clearly defined classes, as the Socialists attempt to do. Thus he cites the nearly five million dollars, put into savings banks, mostly by laboring men and women, and the more than seventeen billions in other banks, much of which is also the property of wage earners (for salaries are wages), to show that the depositors are capitalists in every sense of the word.

He meets the demand of Socialists for "equality of opportunity with an equitable distribution of the product," by the inquiry "How can an unequal person (inability), even if he has an equal opportunity, expect to succeed?" The natural law of the "survial of the fittest" cannot be changed by human legislation. Education tending to make men more nearly equal in ability is the true remedy. Opportunity is thrown away on a man without the ability to improve it. Give a Socialistic theorist and a practical business man the same opportunity, and who would you wager will come out ahead? And, if the Government owned everything, which man, if the service is to be efficient, would get the place at the top?

Trades Unions "Capitalistic."

In chapter two trades Unions are discussed. They are shown to be capitalistic in tendency by indictments by Socialists of John Mitchell for alliance with the "captains of industry," such as leaders in the Civic Federation. By the "craft-form" of organization the trades unions, say the Socialists, "isolate the workers into groups, which * * * in time of conflict, become the easy prey of the capitalists * * * The working class and the employing class have nothing in common." Therefore, the Socialists conclude, the working class must unite in politics as well as industry to wrest from capital the earnings of production.

That trades unions are also bureaucratic and tend to form trusts within the domain of labor is shown by statistics of wages in highly unionized industries which are equal to and even greater than the salaries of state Governors, etc.

"Hate" is the subject of Chapter IV. Socialists while decrying war between nations openly declare war on capitalists, a civil conflict between fellow citizens which is far more abhorrent. They name certain heads of great business enterprises, which have been built up by the toil and ability of these men, and call them "robbers." By the same rule every laborer must be a robber of workingmen lower in the scale of wages. Here the author first adopts the method of demonstrating his points of dialogue by presenting a controversy on the subject between a doubting laborer and a Socialist. The hatred of Socialists against the Roman Catholics he especially deplores, although he himself is not of this faith.

He Discusses Capitalists.

Chapter V deals with "Capitalists." The author gives Socialistic definitions of this class, and then presents a character sketch of a friend of his, a typical capitalist, to show the ignorance of Socialists concerning the traits and the services of the men of whom they pretend to have such intimate knowledge.

The anti-Socialistic arguments of this man are among the most convincing in the book. For example:

"I am in several businesses, but will take two, the elevation of grain, and drygoods. I have in each an investment of, elevator, $490,000; drygoods, $500,000. Each earns $35,000, which is about 7 per cent on the investment. In the elevator I employ 10 men, while in the drygoods I employ 500.

"Now, on the theory that 'labor produces all,' and all should take it, and that the capitalist is not needed, and that his property should be taken from him and given to those who made it, how do we see it here? Why, my employes in the elevator would divide up $35,000 profit among 10 men, which is $3500 each, while the men in the drygoods business would divide up $35,000 profit among 500, and get $70 each."

The capitalist friend also discussed government ownership, particularly of railroads:

"If the Government owned the railroads, who would the stockholders be? You and I, all of us. Are most of us today thinking about the serv-

Today's Beauty Hint

It is not necessary to shampoo quite so frequently if your hair is properly cleansed each time by use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers may be prepared very cheaply by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, obtained from your druggist, in a cup of hot water. This rubbed into the scalp creates a thick lather, soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to scalp and hair. After rinsing the scalp is fresh and clean, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—ADV.

This famous instrument was the first player-piano ever made, and is recognized as such by the United States Government. ices the Government is concerned in now—whether they pay or not? * * * Our municipal affairs—how are they run? and why are we crying out for commission government? No, my friend, it is not human to expect the same co-operation from the people who have only an indirect interest in anything as that which is given by the people having a direct interest."

He also spoke of the interest employers take in their employes, how he himself had adopted the eight-hour rule, but was forced to discontinue it by competition of rival enterprises working their employes 10 hours a day. He therefore advised a Federal law making the eight-hour rule compulsory throughout the Union.

Profit-Sharing Failed.

Profit-sharing also failed to work, because it did not make the men loyal to the enterprise in which they had a joint interest, for they assumed to dictate in the management, even striking because one of the foremen, who also ran a saloon which absorbed the increased wages, was dismissed on complaint of their wives. Education of the employes to make them see where their true interests lay, was a pre-requisite of such attempts to better their condition. Welfare work among them was accomplishing this however.

He quotes the tribute to the bourgeoisie paid by Marx and Engels in the "Manifesto of the Communist Party" (1848), extolling this capitalistic "middle class" for having, during its rule of scarce 100 years, "created more massive and more colossal productive forces than have all preceding generations together."

If Capital created all this, observed the author, is it not entitled to a chief share in the results? But modern Socialists would seize all of these as the rightful possession of Labor. Is this not rather confiscation? Socialism cannot hope to prevail in this country with such a doctrine. There are too many millions of hard-headed independent men who will never accept it, he says.

Discusses Socialistic Plans.

The author discusses various Socialistic plans for taking over private capitalistic enterprises by the Government, such as Allan L. Benson's proposition that the Government should assume the ownership and operation of all "trusts" controlling more than 40 per cent of the business in their respective lines, and pay for such property in United States bonds at 2 per cent interest. Upon this the author remarks:

"After we have taken over these trusts they are to work right along smoothly; all of the former owners are going to love their work and stay right where they are! These trusts are not to make any profits, and in this way they are going to crush out the other 60 per cent of independent capitalists. This, of course, means the small people and those interested in co-operation in the same line of business, whom some Socialists say they approve of saving from disaster. Talk about the Rockefeller-Morgan combination! Why, this scheme makes it look 'like 30 cents.'"

The author then presents his own view of the proper relation of Government to the organization of industry. This should be of the nature of regulation. Along this line the Government has proceeded with admirable results. Here the author cites the establishment of bureaus of inspection, employment, mediation and arbitration, etc., the workingmen's compensation law, and, finally, the Federal Trade Commission act of 1914. He advocates the income tax, and the continuation of our other taxes, except that on personal property, which permits the wealthy to escape, at the expense of men of moderate means. He advises his fellow capitalists not to oppose the taxation of incomes, however it may "displace capital," since otherwise wealth will become concentrated in the hands of a very few, who will rightly come to be regarded as foes of society, thus causing discontent among the people.

Chapter six on the "The Farmer," relates the story of two Norwegian emigrants to North Dakota, both equal in the beginning in resources, but one of whom, by his industry and study of agriculture through farm magazines and Government agricultural publications, became a flourishing farmer, while the other, careless and self-indulgent, made a failure of a similar homestead, and, becoming imbued with Socialistic ideas, turned on his fellow, and repaid the help which he had continually afforded him in financial crisis by calling him "a capitalist and a robber" for charging himself and other less provident farmers a higher rate than the market price of the ordinary variety for extra fine seed that he had grown by his care and intelligence.

Education Best Remedy.

In particular the Government should provide work for the unemployed. That it does not do so is probably because it has not at hand men of executive ability sufficient to cope with the great task. If this is so, how can the Socialists expect it to find proper managers to conduct the many and still more enormous affairs they would put in its hands?

In the ninth and final chapter, the author discusses his fundamental remedy—education. Practical morality should be inculcated, especially in the lower grades. Industrial schools of all kinds should be maintained, and manual training be a course in all the public schools. Civil government should be taught in concrete form by the organization of mock congresses, etc. "The stability of a republic rests on the morality and intelligence of its voters."

"A better state of affairs is sure to come on this earth. Its prospect is not altogether visionary, sentimental or esthetic, but reflects good, hard, practical common sense. We have the forecast in our natures now, but seek to hide it through false pride; yet there is surely a day coming when it will be a delight for one to permit his own inner self to come to the surface, and then we shall have more temperance, more courage, more justice and more wisdom.

"Do not think that society will ever become Utopia. Do not be extravagant in your expectations. We shall always attest human frailty, but things will be better, and the degree of melioration will depend upon the individual character of the people."

Last Public Organ Recital.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound o limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—ADV.

DON'T LET NERVOUSNESS RUIN YOUR HAPPINESS

VICTIMS OF NERVE SICKNESS

CADOMENE TABLETS

The Great Nerve Medicine

Nervousness deadens the brain and weakens the body. Nature needs real and harmless aid to overcome it.

Nature does her best to fight the evil effects of overwork, worry, dissipation and excesses on the nervous system. She fights to the last atom of her strength, but usually she has to have assistance to overcome the sluggish brain, weakened body, the sick headache, sleeplessness, flabby and degenerated muscles, that tired, all-in feeling, inability to act naturally, a feeling of fear, with pains in back, head and groins.

For this condition Cadomene Tablets offers the safest, most prompt and reliable aid.

Cadomene Tablets are vitally necessary for rebuilding the cells of body, brain and nerve tissues. Men and women, too, who are nervous, have starved nerves, and starved devitalized nerves need the elements of Cadomene Tablets to feed them. Cadomene Tablets are a combiantion that is easily picked up by the digestive system and most quickly appropriated. The nerve and tissue-building properties go quickly into the circulation and reach the spot. Cadomene gets at the bottom of the weakness or trouble because it directly feeds the blood stream, because it nourishes the nerve centers, because it does these things naturally and persistently and the sum total of such action must, cannot fail to produce a general uplift of body and mind, a thorough strengthening of the body's resistive force, a regaining of vitality and endurance—in a word: Renewed and complete efficiency of body and mind. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions from all live druggists.

Strassberger Pupils to Give Recitals.

The Strassberger Conservatories announce three recitals for their pupils, the first being on Tuesday night for the South Side branch, the second on Wednesday night for the North Side branch, and the third, on Monday night of next week, for the dramatic department, when Eleanor Maud Crane's two-act comedy, "The Rainbow Kimona," will be presented under the direction of Miss Olivia Gregory.

DIRECTOR HERE TO ARRANGE STAGE FOR "AS YOU LIKE IT"

Miss Anglin's Representative Says It Is One of Most Beautiful He Has Ever Seen.

SEATS BEING INSTALLED

Natural Scenery to Be Used Almost Entirely—Seat Sale Opens Tomorrow.

An order from the Business Men's League for 96 box seats for the community production of "As You Like It" and a prologue of May-Day dances of Shakspeare's time, at Forest Park June 5 to 11, in honor of the Shakspeare tercentenary, was received yesterday at the headquarters of the St. Louis Pageant Drama Association, 310-16 Security Building.

Simultaneously, Horace M. Swope, who, besides being chairman of the Admissions Committee of the association, is a member of the Membership Committee of the league, announced that two box seat tickets are to be awarded by the league to each of the four members of each of the twelve teams which, in the league's membership campaign next Tuesday to Friday, obtain the largest number of new members.

Box office sale of seats for the Shakspearean celebration will open tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock at 303 North Seventh street.

Miss Anglin's Director Here.

Livingston Platt, technical director for Miss Margaret Anglin, arrived in St. Louis yesterday to supervise the decorating of the stage. He spent most of yesterday at the auditorium, which is about 400 feet east of the old Pagoda Lake and about 400 feet upstream from the Forest Park stables. While Platt worked on the stage several men were installing the 10,000 seats. Platt declared the stage to be one of the most beautiful he had ever seen and said that he regarded the auditorium as the finest in the United States with the possible exception of an entirely natural one in California.

Platt said that a wardrobe staff would come to St. Louis from New York with the 200 costumes made especially for the St. Louis production.

The Forest Park production of "As You Like It" will be, so far as Platt knows, the most elaborate of that play ever given anywhere.

"I have never known more than 50 extra people to be used in 'As You Like It,'" Platt said. "Furthermore, it never before has been played outdoors by a well-known star, so far as I know.

Natural Scenery Used.

Very little artificial scenery is being designed for the St. Louis production, he said. Natural scenery is to be used almost entirely.

The Pageant Drama Association has obtained from Scout Commissioner Simmons assurances that the boy scouts will assist at the celebration, just as they did at the Pageant and Masque of St. Louis, in 1914.

John H. Gundlach, president of the Pageant Drama Association, expects Miss Anglin to arrive in St. Louis early this week and at once select the St. Louis members of the double alternating cast of 400 that will enact the play. Robert B. Mantell, who will play the part of Jaques, probably will not arrive until May 29, but most of the other professionals engaged by Miss Anglin are expected this week. Miss Anglin personally will rehearse the entire cast.

More Men Dancers Needed.

About 400 of the 500 St. Louisans who will constitute the double alternating cast for the prologue are rehearsing in groups in different parts of the city, under the direction of St. Louis dancing teachers. Men who can dance are still greatly needed, Mrs. Lawrence T. Post, chairman of the Dance Committee, reports. Men who can sing are wanted for the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society, of which Frederick Fischer is conductor. Several of the choruses in the play and also in the prologue will be by men alone, as will be the Morris dance in the prologue.

LOUISE ALLEN, CHILDREN'S FAVORITE, TO SAY GOODBY

Except for Park, Shenandoah and Grand Shows, Films Rule Indoor Houses.

Louise Allen, comedienne of the Park Opera Company, will make her last appearance with the company in "A Modern Eve," which opens at the Park Theater tomorrow night. Miss Allen has appeared in more than 50 productions since the week of July 27, 1914, when she played in "The Red Mill." Few women of the stage have ever had a larger personal following in St. Louis than she has built up. Young girls and children are perhaps her most enthusiastic admirers. Thursday night's performance will be a testimonial in her honor.

"The Wolf," by the Park Players, will go to the Shenandoah Theater tomorrow night. Other indoor shows are of the screen variety, except at the Grand Opera House, where the vaudeville bill will be headed by the Schwartz Brothers in "The Broken Mirror." The Columbia Theater will show the third chapter of Billie Burke in "Gloria's Romance," and two Triangle photoplays, and the King's Theater film program will be headed with "Susan Rocks the Boat." "Tangled Fates," with Alice Brady, will head the New Grand Central film bill. and P. G. Anton, 'cellist, will play there.

Recital by Leo V. Zumsteg.

Leo V. Zumsteg, pianist, a pupil of Samuel Bollinger, will give a recital tomorrow night at the Wednesday Club auditorium, Taylor avenue and Westminster place.

Oakville Ball Next Saturday.

The Oakville Farmers' Club will hold its annual "Strawberry Exhibition and Ball," next Saturday afternoon and evening, at the Park and New Hall, on Telegraph road, three miles south of Jefferson Barracks.

Boys 10 and 12 Run Away From Home.

William Duford of 5732 Cote Brilliante avenue, a painter, has asked the police to search for his sons, Willie, 12 years old, and Joseph, 10, who left home last Tuesday.

Pestalozzi School Picnic Tuesday.

The Pestalozzi School Association will give its annual picnic Tuesday at Forest Park Highlands. The children will leave the school building at 8:30 a. m., marching to Broadway and Chouteau avenue, where they will board street cars.

Do You Know the New Perfection of the Phonograph?

REALIZE that the "talking machine" with which everyone has become so familiar is not the height of present-day development of the tone-reproducing instrument. Great strides have been made in the past two years in scientific knowledge of phonographic principles and construction. And this new fund of exact information—developed largely in our own experimental laboratories—has been utilized to the utmost in the design and manufacture of the Aeolian-Vocalion.

Yet the new phonographic perfection so apparent in the Vocalion is still unknown to many people. They have not chanced to hear the Vocalion and simply take for granted the musical sufficiency of the instruments they are acquainted with.

Make this test with

THE AEOLIAN-VOCALION

"The Wonderful New Phonograph of Richer Tone"

Hear all of the other well-known phonographs—make certain that you have recognized all their good points and advantages. And then come to the Aeolian store and hear the Vocalion. It is only through such a searching test as this that you can conceive clearly and quickly the tremendous superiority of the Vocalion over the talking machines you have always known.

The indescribably richer tone—the exact re-voicing of the subtlest music tints and shades of expression—the delightful new privilege of perfect tone-control—possible only with the Vocalion, will impress you with the fact that the phonograph has acquired a new musical importance—has become an infinitely greater instrument than the talking machine of yesterday.

Get up-to-date on the phonograph. Make this test at once.

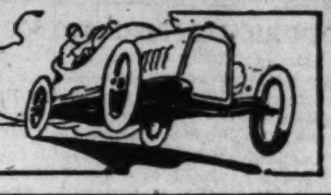
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



WITHOUT CLUTCH GAS ENGINE WOULD BE IMPRACTICAL

Proper Care, Adjustment and Control of Connecting Unit Explained by Post-Dispatch Expert.

By WILLIAM H. STEWART JR., Pres. Stewart Automobile School.

In automobile construction some form of friction clutch is necessary to couple the gas engine to the driving mechanism of the car. In vehicles propelled by electricity or steam this clutch is not necessary, due to the fact that the source of power is derived from the outside. This power when derived from the outside may be controlled and applied in the manner desired without transmission through a clutch.

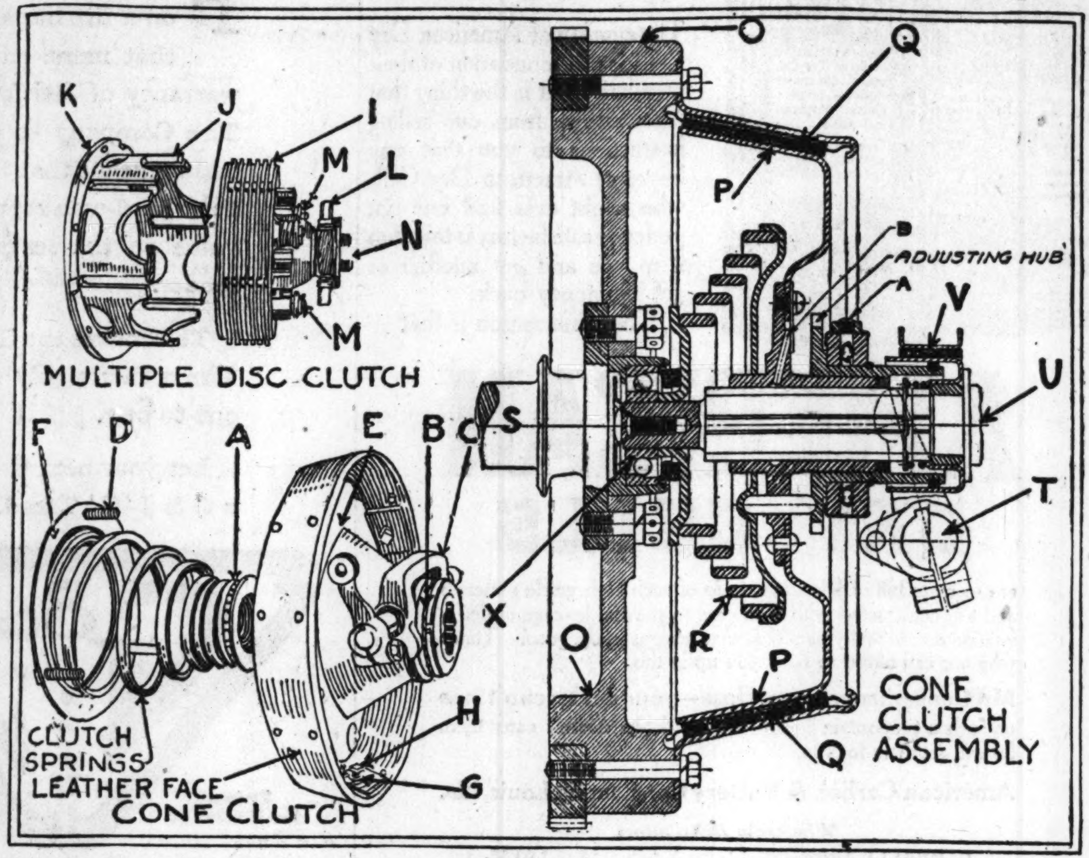
With the internal combustion type motor it is different. The driving energy is generated within the motor itself, and the power output is dependent upon the number of power impulses delivered to the crank shaft per minute.

To accelerate a load from a stand-still by means of a gasoline engine a certain speed of the motor must first be obtained before sufficient torque results to overcome the inertia of the load. It is obvious that this could not be done by means of a gas engine without the use of a clutch to separate it from the driving mechanism at will.

Many types of clutches are used to accomplish the desired result, but considerable ingenuity of design must be employed to produce satisfactory results. Such a device must be easy to operate, fool proof and positive in engagement. The clutch must be designed as a self-contained unit, eliminating as much as possible all thrust or loss of power. The various units between motor and driving wheels must be constructed in a manner to reduce loss of power through transmission to a minimum. The useful horsepower to the driver is not that developed by the motor itself but that delivered at the driving wheels. Therefore the units through which the power is transmitted must be well designed.

There are many types of clutches in common use. It is not the intent of this article to describe in detail all the types in use, but rather to give a reason for the necessity of a clutch and its application.

Charts Showing Construction of Clutch



A-B-X—Clutch thrust bearings.
C-L-T—Clutch release yokes.
D—Clutch spring adjusting studs.
E—Holes for clutch spring adjusting studs.
F—Clutch spring adjusting stud plate.
G—Adjusting screw lock nut.
H—Adjusting screw for small spring under clutch leather.
I—Clutch discs.
J—Grooves for flywheel discs.
K—Clutch shell fastened to flywheel.
M—Adjusting springs and nuts.
N-U—Shafts for transmission.
O—Flywheel.
P—Male member of clutch.
Q—Clutch lining or face.
R—Clutch spring.
S—Crank shaft.
V—Clutch brake.

In the upper lefthand corner of the drawing is shown a simple multiple disc type clutch. Below this is shown a disassembled cone clutch and to the right is shown a cone clutch assembly. Probably the cone type clutch and the multiple disc type clutch are most commonly used. The majority of manufacturers use these two types in their various forms more than any other. Engineers differ as to points of construction. The horsepower of motor and weight of the car determine to a great extent the design.

Let us refer to that part of the chart showing the cone clutch disassembled. When it is engaged the clutch spring must be compressed to hold the male member in positive contact with the flywheel and prevent unnecessary slipping. The chart shows spring extended, but when compressed the cltuch spring adjusting studs "D" enter the frame at "E" and are held in position by the nuts. By turning these lock nuts backward or forward the spring tension may be weakened or strengthened as desired. Under normal driving conditions with clutch engaged, the whole assembly turns as a unit. However, when the clutch is released by compressing the spring, considerable pressure results, which must be taken care of by thrust bearing "A." Likewise a thrust bearing is provided at "B" to reduce friction when clutch is released by yoke "C."

Many kinds of clutch facing are employed. Ordinarily leather is used for the cone type. However, raybestos is used considerably, especially with the multiple disc type. It is a matter of opinion as to which kind of material is most serviceable. The leather facing shown in the chart has several springs between it and the clutch body which are employed to facilitate gradual engagement. At "H" is shown one of these adjusting screws together with the lock nut "G." If clutch becomes fierce a slight adjusting of these will allow certain portions of the leather to come in contact with the flywheel preliminary to the main body. This adjustment, however, will not entirely prevent a harsh engagement. If the leather becomes dry the application of a little neatsfoot oil to soften it produces good results. On the other hand, if too much oil is used it may be necessary to clean with kerosene.

To the right of chart is shown the cone clutch assembly. The member "P" is disengaged when the release yoke "T" is pressed against resistance of spring "R." At "Q" is shown the clutch facing. Likewise at "X" is the thrust bearing.

In shifting gears it is necessary for the operator to judge the time when to make the shift in order to avoid clashing of the gears. The installation of a clutch brake, such as shown at "V," is often quite necessary. When motor is running and the clutch is disengaged its momentum may be controlled by the clutch brake. When this is properly adjusted shifting of the gears may be made without clashing.

In the multiple disk clutch the construction is somewhat different, but the results obtained are practically the same. At "I" is shown a number of discs, one-half of which are attached to shaft "N," the other half with extensions fitting into grooves "J." The clutch shell "K" is bolted to flywheel and is part of it. When engaged the whole clutch turns as a unit. When released by means of yoke "L" one-half of the discs turn with the shell "K," the other half with shaft "N." Sometimes this type of clutch is designed to operate in a bath of oil. In such a case very light lubricating oil is used, which will be forced out from between the discs when clutch is engaged, the body of the oil facilitating gradual contact of the discs. If the lubricant employed is too heavy, the clutch will slip. On the other hand, if the oil is too light gradual engagement will be difficult. At "M" are shown adjustment springs and nuts for the purpose of regulating the spring tension and adjusting for wear.

Whatever type of clutch may be used, reasonable care and attention must be given to it. The purpose, as stated previously, is to connect the power of the motor to the driving mechanism. If it slips not only loss of power results, but the clutch facings will be destroyed by the excessive heat caused by friction of slipping. Likewise if the engagement is fierce unnecessary strains are applied to the driving members.

MORE DRIVERS NAMED

INDIANAPOLIS, May 20.—When the entry list for the sixth annual international sweepstakes race to be held on the Indianapolis motor speedway May 30, closed at midnight May 1, with 30 cars entered, there were three drivers who were not named, although the cars were entered. Since then it is rumored that one of these cars, a Delage, owned by Harry Harkness of New York, will be driven by Jules Devigne. This information is not official, but it is accepted as a matter of course, because Devigne is to drive the third Delage car at New York. The other Delage drivers in this team of three cars are Jack LeCain and Carl Limberg. The second Sunbeam car, which was shipped from London for the Indianapolis race, is to be driven by an Italian, it is said, by the name of Aldo Franchi. This is a new name in racing circles of this country. Franchi asked for permission to show what he could do at the wheel of a Sunbeam recently and his performance was so successful that the driver of the other Sunbeam car, Josef Christiaens, immediately engaged him for Indianapolis; for the Sunbeam team expects to make a cleanup with their British cars containing aviation motors. F. S. Deusenberg of St. Paul is credited with having announced that Thomas Milton will be at the wheel of the third Deusenberg car. This is another driver who is practically unknown except in smaller barnstorming events, but the fact that Deusenberg has added his name to his team of three seems indicative of something in Milton that the public has not found out. The other two Deusenberg drivers are Wilbur d'Alene and Eddie O'Donnell, the latter having started in the 1916 season by winning at Carona. Milton replaces Tom Alley, who has entered a car of his own at Indianapolis, called the Ogren Special.

CADILLAC EIGHT SETS COAST-TO-COAST RECORD

New York City and Los Angeles were brought three days nineteen hours and twenty-three minutes nearer by automobile. E. G. Baker, accompanied by W. F. Sturm, an Indianapolis newspaperman, completed the cross-continent run in front of The Times Building, Times Square, in seven days eleven hours and fifty-two minutes. The distance covered was 3471 miles. Baker, who has made six trips across the continent, four times in automobiles and twice on motor cycles, broke his own record yesterday, made last year in eleven days seven hours and fifteen minutes in a Stutz. The car used this year was a fully equipped standard eight-cylinder Cadillac roadster.

A special ferry-boat transferred the car from Weehawken to West Forty-second street in close to three minutes. Three traffic policemen on motor cycles cleared the way along Forty-second street.

Baker, with eyes red from loss of sleep and the dust from the road, said of the trip:

"Our best day's run was 567 miles. We would have averaged over 500 miles a day if it hadn't been for the bad roads we struck in Missouri, from Kansas City to St. Louis. It took us eighteen hours to drive that distance, about 300 miles and it was rain and mud all the way. It took two hours to do ten miles, and at one place I pulled out into the field around five autos stuck in the road."

A postal card was handed to Baker.

"We beat it here" he exclaimed. "That postal was mailed just after we passed through Emporia, Kan. We beat it by nearly an hour. This is the second time on the trip that we got in ahead of the United States mail.

"Did you stop or sleep on the trip?" asked on of the reporters.

Baker ran over his fingers. "Nineteen hours all told," he answered. "I can't tell yet what our actual running time was. I'll have to figure it out after I get some sleep, but we did not waste much time by the way. All we did was to give the car 'gas' and oil and drive it to the limit."

"The engine didn't miss a shot, not even a spark plug needed cleaning. We never lifted the hood except for oil and once to adjust the carburetor."

The car was equipped with Exide batteries for starting and lighting.

BIG PAIGE DIVIDEND

Harry M. Jewett, president of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., announces that at a meeting held May 11th the directors of the company recommended a stock dividend of 80 per cent.

The directors also recommended an increase in the authorized capital stock from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 and the reduction of the par value of the stock from $100 par to $10 par.

Under the plan outlined by the company's directors, the stock dividend is to be 80 per cent of the present outstanding capital stock of $500,000 and will represent stock of the par value of $400,000 which it is proposed to issue from $500,000 of the present authorized capital that has been retained in the company's treasury.

These recommendations will be submitted to the stockholders at a special meeting called for May 24th and, of course, will undoubtedly be put through.

This 80 per cent stock dividend at the present market price means a value to the stock of over 3½ millions of dollars.

As the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. declared a 100 per cent stock dividend last August, the present action means 180 per cent in less than a year. The Company has been paying regularly 5 per cent cash dividends each month.

KANSAS TO ST. LOUIS IN RECORD TIME.

Activity in touring has already developed, and tourists are daily passing through St. Louis in various directions.

During the past week Leo Epstein reached St. Louis after having driven from Concordia, Kan. The party left Concordia in a Buick, model D-45, and reached St. Louis, a distance of 527 miles by road, in 24 hours and 20 minutes running time, making an average speed of 22 miles per hour. A careful record was kept of gasoline consumption and this averaged 21 miles per gallon. The roads were found to be in generally good condition, excepting in places where they had not been dragged, and these were found extremely rough.

Mr. Epstein reports a great deal of road activity all along the line and especially in Missouri, and states that the indications are the main thoroughfares will all be in good drivable condition in the early summer. Aside from the necessary stops for the taking on of fuel, no hold-ups occurred, as not even a puncture or a stop of any kind was made, or any difficulty experienced. After spending a few days in St. Louis on business, the party expects to drive back to Concordia.

Stewart Warning Signals

Motor Driven $6

Hand Operated $3.50

A Clear Road

Nothing adds to the pleasure and relaxation of driving an automobile like a clear road ahead.

In dense city traffic or on unknown country pikes a Stewart Warning Signal on your car will guarantee you a clear road every minute.

Don't sit tense and rigid every second trying to guess what others are going to do—and if you don't guess, have a smashed car—a lawsuit—a trip to the hospital—unnecessary trouble and expense.

And don't wait until after you have a serious accident to discard a weak little buzzer, or bulb horn.

Put a Stewart Warning Signal on your car today and countless times every day its penetrating, clear blast will command a clear road and safety for you, your family and your car.

The Stewart (hand) Signal was $5 last year. So many thousands were sold for safety insurance that our volume has been doubled and there has been a consequent reduction in price to $3.50.

Many prefer a motor driven signal. The Stewart has all the power, durability and features of any signal on the market—yet its price is only $6.

Any automobile equipped with Stewart Products has all around quality. In selecting your next car see that it is fully equipped with Stewart Vacuum System, Stewart Tire Pump and Stewart Speedometer. It will cost you no more.

PACKARD SENDS MEN AND TRUCKS TO MEXICO

The 82 men requisitioned by the United States Government to accompany 56 Packard motor trucks purchased for service on the Mexican border, left Detroit Monday night in two special Pullman cars for San Antonio. E. J. Heller, representing the War Department, arrived on an evening train and went directly to the Packard factory where the men were waiting to be sworn in. With the exception of four cooks, all were Packard employes. There were two truckmasters, six assistant truckmasters, two mechanics, two assistant mechanics and 66 drivers.

The order for the trucks and men was received at the Packard factory at 2:26 p. m. Sunday, May 14. All available men were pressed into service in the truck shops and at 10:30 o'clock Sunday night the trainload of trucks was started for San Antonio.

ARMY MEN CONFER WITH TRUCK BUILDERS.

A conference was held at the rooms of the Society of Automobile Engineers this week with representatives of the U. S. army, on revised annual specifications for military trucks of one and one-half tons capacity. Lieut. Col. Chaunsey B. Baker of the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. A., addressed the meeting. William M. Britton, electrical and mechanical engineer of the War Department, was also present, together with other S. A. E. members convened for the purpose of confering in an informal way on standard specifications as to quality of materials, interchangeability of parts, load capacity, road speed, location of control, ground clearance, engine capacity, suspension, electrical equipment and many other elements.

The meeting marks the beginning of the establishment of comprehensive S. A. E. military standards. Once the fundamental requirements for the service in mind become clear, any additional detail recommendations necessary can be formulated with due promptness. The work is of a very broad nature and must obviously be conducted carefully. The extremely hard conditions under which trucks operate at the front in time of war constitute a large study in themselves. The different divisions of the Standards Committee of the Society of Automobile Engineers will be assigned by the Society Council subjects within their jurisdiction and the scope of work extended as shall permit most thorough and effective deliberation.

President Huff expressed the view that in addition to the work of formulating ultimate standards the Society should through what might be called exigent committee work, give all possible advice on specifications submitted to it. Accordingly a committee was appointed this week to take up with the Government officials detail data considered pertinent to standard specifications for gasoline motor trucks of one and one-half trucks capacity. This committee, which has already held one long session, is constituted as follows: Coker F. Clarkson, (Chairman), B, B, Bachman, H. D. Church, L, P, Kalb, Wm. T. Norton. Jr., A. L. Riker, C. B. Rose, John Younger, G. W. Smith, W. R. Strickland, and A, Ludlow Clayden (ex-officio.)

CHALMERS IS PATHFINDER IN YELLOWSTONE TOUR

Announcement of the selection of the Chalmers Six-30 as official pathfinder for the sociability tour from Minneapolis to Yellowstone National Park, has been made by President W. W. Smith of the National Parks Highway Association.

With Driver W. S. Brooks at the wheel the Chalmers pathfinder left Detroit May 9 enroute for Minneapolis, from which city the start will be made on May 13. Three newspaper writers will make the trip, which is expected to take nine days.

The big tour is scheduled for July, the A. A. A. sanction calling for the start on July 20. The Chalmers 3400 r. p. m. touring car will go over the route twice, marking it so that a schedule of about 20 miles per hour will be possible for the tourists. The tour will traverse the difficult mountain ranges of the Northwest, in addition to crossing the prairie lands of Dakota.

The Yellowstone tour will mark the first visit of a large body of motorists as the famous National Park has only recently been thrown open for motoring.

SELLS AS HILL CLIMBER

Frank E. Stevens and Edgar Spencer of the Stevens Motor Car Co., local Lexington distributors made a trip through central Missouri this week, visiting sub-dealers in Columbia, Fulton, Jefferson City and California, Mo.

"There is a strong demand," said Mr. Stevens, "for the Lexington 'Minute Man' Six, especially in and around Jefferson City, where the hills make a purchaser appreciate the value of the Moore Multiple Exhaust System on Lexington cars.

"This system makes a clear increase of power 22.8 per cent on a given amount of gasoline.

"This saving is produced by eliminating the high back pressure in the exhaust line, caused by two cylinders exhausting at the same time into a common manifold."

BURBANK BUYS CAR.

One of the latest men of note to become identified with the great army of motor car owners is Luther Burbank, the wizard culturist.

Burbank, whose flower-laden home is in Santa Rosa, Cal., has just taken delivery of a Willys-Knight car.

It was the extreme quietness of the Knight motor, with its lack of ostentation that first attracted him to it. Then its simplicity of construction and operation was like an open book to his limited knowledge of motor construction.

After having had demonstrated to him practically all the high-grade cars on the market he returned to the Willys-Knight as the most satisfactory and coming nearer to his ideal than any of the other cars.

DODGE CAR CARRIES 3398 POUNDS COTTON

As a demonstration of the utility of Dodge Bros. motor cars, McFall Bros., dealers at Wichita Falls, Tex., in the heart of the cotton country, recently staged a unique parade.

A trailer loaded with two bales of cotton was attached to a Dodge Bros. motor car and a bale of cotton was placed on each running board of the car. Then four men got in and the streets of the Texas town were traversed.

The total weight of the cotton and the passengers and the trailer was 3398 pounds, but the Dodge Bros. motor car handled it easily, despite this enormous load.

MOTOR EMERGENCY CASE

One of the newest things in "preparedness" is a small, compact emergency case for automobilists, tourists, hunters and home use which is being sold by all druggists. It is called the Stearns Emergency Case and contains medical and surgical supplies to meet any ordinary emergency. The contents of the case cover headaches, cramps, toothache, cuts and bruises, eye trouble, acute indigestion, sudden colds, constipation and also carries court plasters, and absorbent cotton.

BODIES FOR URUGUAY

An export shipment of "Commercial Bodies" to Uruguay, South America, is reported this week by the Commercial Auto Body Co. This shipment as well as the receipt of numerous foreign inquiries is attributed to the Company's national advertising, on which it depends almost solely as a sales medium, said L. N. Coats, sales manager of the company.

Behind G & J Tires Stands the G & J Name

FOR many years the name "G & J" on a tire has stood for value. Today that name on a tire is practically a warranty of satisfaction. For the G & J Tire Company to place their name on a casing means that they are ready to stake their hard-won reputation for quality and value on the service that that tire will render.

This makes the G & J Tire a thoroughly safe one to buy.

Where to Obtain Parts for Orphan Cars

An Up-to-date List for Ready Reference

—ever see a better reason for buying a STUDEBAKER than THIS?

Just for a minute, let's forget this talk of Values and prices and "H. P." and "r. p. m." and all the usual reasons for buying this or that car. Let's take another angle on it—this "Directory of Orphans." And not from the "where to buy parts" side of it—that's only incidental—but from the big, basic, underlying reason that such lists have to be published—the very fact that there are so many car manufacturers who gave up business.

You can appreciate that to stay in this business, a maker of cars MUST give 100% value—and to give a 100% value, he must have the ideals, the resources, the manufacturing facilities. If he lacks them, he goes into lists like this.

And you can also appreciate that YOU, the buyer, with all of your knowledge of cars, have to take 90% of what you pay for in a car on the maker's say-so.

If that's the case, isn't this "Directory of Orphans" the strongest imaginable reason for YOUR buying a Studebaker—a car from a manufacturer who has been in business for 64 years—who ranks as one of the world's great manufacturing institutions—whose financial resources and manufacturing facilities are unexcelled by any other maker—and whose daily increasing VOLUME and sales prove VALUE as nothing else can?

We invite you to see the cars that will never be "orphans."

ALLEN A "NEAR SWIMMER."

The following account of an Allen car that went overboard convinces Joseph A. Schlicht of the Mound City Buggy Co., that the Allen car could swim if it wanted to swim, just as easily as it proved its lighting efficiency:

"Ike Levin, 2016 State street, Houston, Tex., went duck hunting Sunday morning, real early. Now he wishes he hadn't for he spent all day both Sunday and Monday fishing his automobile out of Cedar Bayou.

"With several friends an early start was made. In fact, it was so early when they reached the ferry that the lights on the car were still burning. When the other side of the stream was reached Mr. Levin started his car. Someone had forgotten to tie the ferryboat to the bank. The power of the wheels 'kicked' the ferry back and the machine went down into the water. When Mr. Levin saw what was impending he reversed his engine, but it did no good.

"Luckily, he was the only one in the car, and he scrambled out before it hit the water. The top was up and when the machine backed into mid-bayou the top was fully four feet under water. But, strange to say, the lights were still burning. Odder still, they burned all day and that night at 9, when the ferry passed over it, they still glowed bright eight or 10 feet from the surface.

"Monday night the car was towed into Houston, after six mules had dragged it out of the water, one wheel having been lassoed. The machine is an Allen car, the first one sold by Traweek & Whisenant after they secured the agency in Houston."

An Historical Achievement

NEW sales and performance records have been made in the epochal stage of the automobile industry ushered in by the Twelve-cylinder National. The Twelve is so great, so much better, that a great majority of car owners do not yet comprehend its limitless importance.

It is not the coming car. IT IS HERE. Its success is without a parallel.

Of ALL the better grade cars (over $1700) sold this year, more than 70 per cent. are of the Multiple-cylinder (V Motor) Type.

The Six was popular—the Twelve is a landslide. The single Four and single Six are all very well for small cars—but for larger cars the V-Type Motor was inevitable.

National built America's first Sixes; this same conservative institution produced the "Highway" Twelve.

National designed and builds its own Twelve-cylinder motors.

Only two other cars of the National "Highway" Twelve price (or better) have sold as many cars this year, as the sales of National cars—and both of these other cars were of the Multiple-cylinder construction (V-Type Motor) like the National Twelve.

America's Best-Looking Car

The Twelve is not a fad. It is the ultimate in all multi-cylinder efforts: it marks the apex; it reaches the highest peak in automobile efficiency.

National "Highway" Twelves have been in service more than a year. Are being driven today in every state of the Union. Not one National "Highway" Twelve owner is dissatisfied. Not one would go back to any other type.

You'll Own a Twelve Some Day—Why Not Now?

If you are an owner or prospective buyer of a better grade car there are only two reasons why you are not driving a Twelve today. Either because you don't really know how good it is, how far superior in every respect it is to any and all others, or else because you waited too long to get your order in.

It takes the intermission out of gasoline; makes a smooth, even, flexible power that flows without jerks or jumps.

It prevents the power from racking the machinery that creates it.

It exerts its power at every angle around the crank shaft; the balance of power being perfect. The cylinders are smaller and explosions are less terrific.

It eliminates vibration; it is not self-destructive.

It weighs less than a Six of equal piston displacement.

It makes the motor live longer; this means a longer-lived car.

It diminishes annual depreciation; it is more economical.

It gets away easier, quicker and better; it picks up faster and without fuss or effort; it is equal to every emergency, and is the world's greatest hill climber. It has Magneto ignition.

It has one carburetor in the middle of the "V," high, dry and warm always.

Only a demonstration will suffice to convey to your mind and body the unequalled service, comfort and satisfaction obtainable only from this Twelve.

Let us show you. Don't deprive yourself of the newest and maximum in motoring pleasure and comfort—the National "Highway" Twelve.

AUTO NEWS AND GOSSIP

W. I. Brown has joined the Scripps-Booth Co. in the capacity of assistant sales manager. He was formerly with the sales department of the Studebaker corporation.

J. G. Heaslet, vice president in charge of engineering and production of the Studebaker corporation, is still actively at work although he is said to have designed an automobile 19 years ago.

The Koehler Mfg. Co., 1424 Chestnut street, is putting on the market a simple and effective lock for Ford cars. It tightly locks the spark, gasoline control and steering wheel with one operation. It sells for one dollar.

An efficiency club has been formed by the local Ford factory employes. The initial meeting was held Tuesday night and addressed by Mayor Kiel and others.

O. C. Resel, assistant district manager of the Diamond Rubber Co., spent last week at the local Goodrich-Diamond branch.

A new Riker truck has been equipped by the local Locomobile branch with stake body in natural color hardwood for demonstrations.

James E. Newell of the Newell Motor Car Co. is visiting the Haynes and Dort factories.

The Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. has opened a branch in St. Louis at 813 Hempstead street for the Little Giant truck in charge of E. S. Cole.

The Kardell Motor Car Co. reports the sale and delivery of twelve Reo cars to individual buyers.

W. W. Ramsey, sales manager of the Case factory, visited Stephens, Ruhl, Adams & Co., local Case distributors last week.

J. L. Groover of the Jeffery Distributing Co. drove a Jeffery Four touring car for delivery to Caruthersville, Mo., Wednesday, making 170 miles the first day.

Earl J. Murphy has joined the sales force of the Park Automobile Co., Chalmers distributors. He was formerly with the Kardell Motor Car Co.

The Briscoe Motor Sales Co., 4160 Olive street, is showing the new Briscoe Clover Leaf roadster, a very novel car. Frank Bishop of this company has just returned from the factory at Jackson, Mich.

N. Walter MacIntyre, for many years associated with the William Young Carriage Co., has been made general manager of the plant of the Valley Steel Co., a corporation recently formed in East St. Louis. He is widely known to automobile interests and has also built himself a national reputation as a poet, gaining him the title "The Bobby Burns of St. Louis."

The Panama Rubber and Equipment Co., 1423 Locust street, has issued a handsome booklet containing map, street rules, etc., for free distribution. The company has changed the name of its product to Pareco Punctureless Cushions. It is a substitute for air in the tires and has made a great success.

F. C. Rhode is selling the Universal streamline hood and radiator shell, which is designed for 1915 and 1916 cowl dash Fords. This hood entirely changes the angular appearance of the Ford car. The radiator shell is made in black or nickel.

As a result of the tripled demand for Jeffery motor cars and trucks, the Thomas B. Jeffery Co. will add two big, ultra-modern shop buildings to their huge plant at Kenosha, Wis., this summer. Plans for the new structures are being rushed through to completion by a firm of Chicago architects.

Douglas Andrews, district sales manager of the King Motor Car Co., is spending a few days with the Johnson Automobile Co., local King distributors.

The Johnson Automobile Co. reports the delivery of King Eights to Ed. Glanzel of East Alton, Ill.; Mrs. P. M. Fink, 2748 Russel avenue; John Lyncy, Moberly, Mo., and J. B. Thomas, Quincy, Ill.

The Edison Automobile Co. reports the following sales last week: Marion touring car to Mrs. Anna Irwin, 814 Hamilton avenue; two roadsters to H. I. Himmelberger, Morehouse, Mo.; Davis companionable roadsters to C. F. Briner of Briner Electric Co., another to W. Weinzlinger, 3435 Minnesota; Davis touring car to Gus Wehking, 3316 South Jefferson avenue.

ALLMON NEW HEAD OF ACCESSORY BODY

At the annual meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis, Tuesday night at the Marquette Hotel, L. E. Allmon of the Missouri Auto Specialty Co. was elected president; E. S. Marvin of the Imperial Oil Co. to the vice-presidency; A. R. Baxter of the Phoenix Auto Supply Co., treasurer, and Robert E. Lee of The Auto Review was re-elected secretary for the sixth time.

The directors selected were F. M. Moore of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.; L. N. Coats, Commercial Auto Body Co.; W. L. Ferrier, Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co.; Louis Moller Jr., Rapp & Moller Carriage Co., and Allan H. Clark of the Vehicle Top and Supply Co. Mr. Clark had served the previous year as president and his election as a director was a compliment for his good work. George Schattgen of the Fisk Rubber Co. was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Moving pictures of the first games of the Automobile Baseball League under the auspices of the Motor Accessory Trade Association, taken by Albert von Hoffmann, were shown.

TOOK HIS DEALERS TO CHANDLER PLANT

With a party of 40 dealers and purchasers driving 30 new Type "17" Chandler touring cars and 4-passenger roadsters across country from Cleveland to Chicago, Thomas J. Hay, Chicago distributor for the Chandler Co., has gone on record with another of the unusual things which alert automobile dealers are doing these days.

Like other Chandler dealers, Mr. Hay has been selling more cars than he could get from the factory, but he got a nice big bunch of them all at once by arranging this "drive away."

Mr. Hay and his party in two special Pullmans arrived in Cleveland Sunday morning, May 7. They were met by Chandler Co. officials and department heads, breakfasted at Hotel Statler, and taken immediately to the factory where their cars, resplendent with Chandler banners, were awaiting them.

The Chicago tourists made the run to Toledo in the afternoon and into Chicago the following day, attracting great attention all along the line.

She starts like a Sprinter at the Crack of the Gun

Jeffery Six

INSTANT response—spectacular performance—riding comfort and driving comfort—surpassing simplicity of design—these have made the Jeffery Six nationally known as the car which teaches you what the word MOVE really means. Step on the accelerator and the car is off like a sprinter at the crack of a gun—like a FLASH.

She picks up speed in a distance so short that you can't believe your eyes. You hit forty miles before you think you've hit twenty—and then—

Step on the accelerator.

You'll have a new sensation. She literally leaps—like an eager thoroughbred—to tremendous speed in a moment.

And it's all velvety power and velvety speed. There is no vibration—no uncomfortable jolting—nothing but superlative riding comfort and driving comfort—because of the wonderful motor and simple chassis construction.

Have you seen the Jeffery Six? If you haven't, do it NOW. You gain nothing by delay. Our allotment is rapidly dwindling and the factory cannot increase its output. Come in and look it over—and ask us to demonstrate every claim we make.

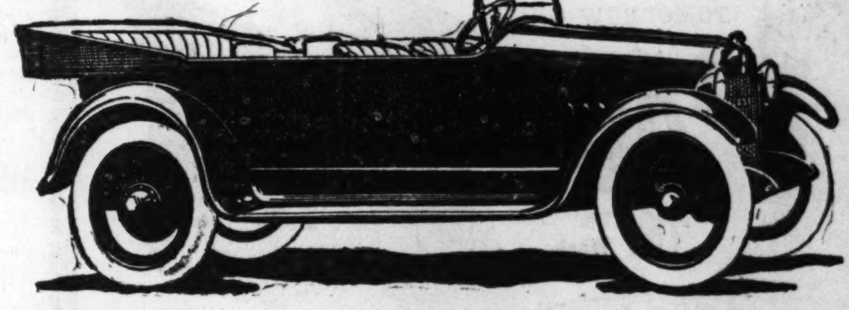
The New Case 40—$1190



Significant Superiorities

All wiring in the new Case 40 is housed in waterproof, rustless, flexible conduits. The body and chassis wiring systems meet at a six-way connector plug. These two items illustrate the care used in planning the details of this car, and are strongly indicative of its numerous other superiorities.

Such items as these prove that Case has put into the new Case 40 those qualities which we deem essential in building a car which will be of continuous satisfaction to the purchaser.

Such steadfastness to a 74-year-old principle has given Case cars their splendid reputation—world-wide. Owners throughout the country, yes, even the world, unite in proclaiming it a thoroughbred.

As you go over this car, studying its details, checking over its superiorities, you will find here a substantial sort of car which is bound to please you—good in line, finished in detail, worthy in construction. This car, we believe, is decidedly your opportunity. Where can you "come anywhere near it" at $1190, for comfort, power, endurance and beauty?

At your convenience we shall be delighted to point out in detail the significant superiorities in this new car. Or, if you wish, we will mail you an illustrated description.

G. B. COX, LONG A POWER IN OHIO POLITICS, DIES

Was Leader of Cincinnati Republicans and Factor in State; Theatrical Magnate.

CINCINNATI, O., May 20.—George B. Cox, 53 years old, politician and theatrical magnate, died at his home early today. He was stricken with paralysis Feb. 29, from which he never recovered, although death is said to have been from pneumonia which developed in the last few days.

Cox was one of the most widely known professional politicians in Ohio, a baseball magnate, a banker and part owner of one of the largest theatrical syndicates in the country. Born in Cincinnati, April 29, 1863, he began his career as a newsboy, and later became a saloon keeper at "Dead Man's Corner," as the locality at Carlisle and Central avenues, Cincinnati, was known because of the numerous murders in the neighborhood.

Became Political Leader.

He immediately became a leader in local politics and soon spread his influence until he virtually controlled the Republican machine in Hamilton County, obtained a powerful hold on State politics and wielded an influence in national campaigns.

Early in his political career Cox was elected to the City Council. That, however, was the only elective office to which he ever aspired. As leader of the Republican party in Hamilton County, he selected as his chief lieutenants August Hermann, now chairman of the National Baseball Commission and president of the Cincinnati baseball club, and Rud Hynicka, who later became closely associated with Cox in theatrical ventures.

Cox's work in connection with the candidacy of Taft for the presidency, occasioned surprise among political observers. When the former President was Secretary of War, he delivered an address at Akron, O., supporting Myron T. Herrick for Governor of Ohio. In this address he took occasion to say that if he voted that year he would cast a straight Republican State ticket, but would not support the Cincinnati city ticket placed on the ballot by the Republican organization. This was construed as a direct slap at the Cox organization, but contrary to expectations, Hamilton County was solid for Taft when he was a candidate for President a short time later.

Organization Later Defeated.

When Cox announced his retirement from politics in 1909, Hermann and Hynicka continued the organization until it was beaten in the mayoralty race in Cincinnati a little more than three years later.

Cox was president of the World Film Corporation, one of the largest picture producing and distributing concerns; chairman of the board of directors of the Shubert theatrical interests, vice president of the Marcus Loew amusement enterprises, and was interested in the Keith vaudeville circuits. He was president of the Cincinnati Trust Co. and held stock in various realty companies which have constructed theaters in New York City.

AMERICAN IN FRANCE WANTS U. S. FLAG TO HOIST JULY 4

Former St. Louisan Writes President of French Society for Large Emblem.

A request for an American flag to be hoisted in France July 4 and 14, the American and French national holidays, has been received by Gus V. R. Mechin, president of the Societe Francaise de St. Louis, from Emile Mercier, former secretary of the society, who is now living in Roanne. Mercier returned to France several months ago, after having lived in St. Louis for several years.

"Since President Wilson has taken a positive stand," Mercier said in his letter, "the Americans in France will again be able to hold their heads high. Please send me a little American bow to put in my coat lapel. I should also be very glad to have an American flag. Possibly you might discover some Old Glory somewhere and send it to me. One about eight feet by four will do."

Mercier said also that the goods sent to Roanne by the French Society were beginning to arrive and would be a great help to many poor people.

LET US STRIVE TO SET PEACE EXAMPLE PRESIDENT URGES

"When You Cannot Overcome You Must Take Counsel," He Says, in Carolina Speech; Would Remind Nations of "Still, Small Voice of Humanity."

TRACES GROWTH OF THE UNITED STATES

Declares Nation Has Devoted Itself Too Much to Material Things—Makes Plea for "Untainted Americanism" Before 100,000 Persons.

By Associated Press.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 20.—President Wilson, speaking here today at an anniversay celebration of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, told his hearers that America's example of bringing all the world together on terms of liberty, co-operation and peace was a prophetic sample of mankind.

Involved in the European struggle, said the President, is the very thing that has been going on in America—a competition of national standards, national traditions and national politics.

"Europe," said he, "has grappled in war as we have grappled in peace, to see what is going to be done with these things when they come into hot contact with each other. What you see taking place on the other side of the water is the tremendous—I almost said final—process by which a contest of elements may in God's process be turned into a co-ordination and co-operation of elements. For it is an interesting circumstance that the processes of war stand still. These hot things that are in contact with each other do not make much progress against one another. When you cannot overcome you must take counsel."

The reference was given significance by the President's hearers in view of recent discussion of possibilities of ending the war.

"I would like," said the President, "to think the spirit of this occasion could be expressed if we imagined ourselves lifting some sacred emblem of counsel and peace, of accommodation and righteous judgment before the nations of the world and reminded them of that passage in the scripture:

"'After the wind, after the earthquake, after the fire, the still, small voice of humanity.'"

About 100,000 persons attended the celebration.

Address of President.

The President's address follows:

"I do not know, my fellow citizens, whether I can interpret for you today the spirit of this occasion, but it is necessary when we get together in celebrations like this to take counsel together with regard to just what it is that we wish to celebrate. You will say we wish to celebrate the memories of that time to which we look back with such pride, when our fathers with singular wisdom of counsel and stoutness of heart undertook to set up an independent nation on this side of the water. But it is very much more important that we should remind ourselves of the elements with which our forefathers dealt.

"There were only three million citizens in that original republic of the United States of America. Now there are 100,000,000. It is a long cry back to these modest beginnings; a great period of time, not only, but a great period of profound change separates us from that time, and yet I would remind you that the same elements were present then that are present now.

"What interests my thought more than anything else about the United States is that it has always been in the process of being made ever since that little beginning, and that there have always been the same elements in the process.

"At the outset there was at the heart of the men who led the movement for independence a very high and handsome passion for human liberty and free institutions. And yet there lay before them a great continent which it was necessary to subdue to the uses of civilization if they were going to build upon it a great state among the family of nations. I heard a preacher once point out the very interesting circumstance that our Lord's Prayer begins with the petition for 'our daily bread,' from which he drew the inference that it is very difficult to worship God on an empty stomach and that the material foundations of our life are the first foundations.

Material Power Uppermost.

"What I want to call your attention to is that this country ever since that time has devoted practically all of its attention, perhaps too much of its attention, to the material foundation of its life; to subduing this continent to the uses of the nation and to the building up of a great body of wealth and material power. I find some men who, when they think of America, do not think of anything else but that. But, my friends, there have been other nations just as rich and just as powerful in comparison with the other nations of the world as the United States is, and it is a great deal more important

18 KILLED IN STORM NEAR DENISON, TEX.

Most of Deaths at Kemp, Ok., Town of 300, Which Is Reported to Have Been Destroyed

DENISON, Tex., May 20.—At least eighteen persons were killed in a terrific wind and rain storm which passed over the section just north of Denison shortly after 10 o'clock tonight.

The town of Kemp, Ok., two miles north of the Red River, is reported demolished. Most of the deaths are said to have occurred at Kemp. One small child was killed a mile north of Denison.

A relief train left Denison at midnight for Kemp. All wires are down north of here.

The tornado is said to have covered a wide territory, but its extent could not be ascertained here late late tonight.

The child killed north of Denison was the son of Dr. J. E. McCulloch.

The relief train from here carried several physicians and nurses. It is not expected the train will be able to communicate with Denison or points south of Kemp for several hours.

Heavy Damage Reported Elsewhere Than at Kemp.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., May 20.—Kemp, Ok., a town of about 300 inhabitants, has been wiped out by a tornado, according to railroad advices received here tonight. Between 15 and 20 persons were reported killed, and every one in the city injured. Not a building in the town escaped serious damage.

Heavy damage and loss of life is reported all along the Red River Valley, in that section. Reports from other sections of the State also tell of large damage.

At Woodward, Ok., more than a score of persons were injured when a chautauqua tent was blown down. Mrs. H. B. Peebles probably will die from injuries to her head. Many persons were trampled when the crowd rushed from beneath the falling canvas.

PRESBYTERIANS REFUSE TO EVEN EXCEPT SUNDAY GOLF

Report Condemning All Sorts of Amusements on Sabbath Adopted at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 20.—A spirited discussion over the discussion of Sunday amusements enlivened today's session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. It came when the recommendations of the Sabbath observance committee were being considered and a motion had been made for their adoption.

James Dewitt Andrews of New York Presbytery, who sees no harm in a Sunday game of golf, started things going when he rose and said:

"Does the General Assembly of 1916 want to stand on record as disapproving all sorts of Sunday games? In the old Scotch-Irish Church, golf playing was forbidden during the hours of church service on the Sabbath. But they played golf later in the day.

"Today there are many young men who have no opportunity to recuperate their health except on the Sabbth and ordinary rest is not enough. The prohibition of all games or sports is not a thing to advance our cause at this time."

The report of the committee was adopted.

SIX OF 100 "JENKS' BABIES" ACTIVE POLICE AFTER 40 YEARS

Night Chief Gillaspy One of Them, and Two Others Rose to Rank of Sergeant.

Forty years ago yesterday—May 20, 1876—the St. Louis police force was increased by 100 patrolmen. Today six of these 100 are active members of the department.

The men are Night Chief Christian C. Gillaspy and Patrolmen Tom Church, John J. Hays, Michael Doyle, William H. Bartley and Joseph Maher. Church, Hays and Doyle are still spry enough to walk beats and are doing so, while Bartley is an acting Desk Sergeant at the Deer Street Station and Maher is stationed at the Central Dispensary. Bartley and Doyle have held the rank of Sergeant.

The 100 men were known when they "broke in" as "Jenks' Babies," owing to the fact that Sergt. Jenks drilled them and instructed them in the duties of patrolmen. Night Chief Gillaspy is the only one of the 100 who rose above the rank of Sergeant. Sergt. Jenks was shot and killed about 25 years ago by a negress he had arrested.

BOY, 3, PLAYING IN STREET, KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Widow's Son Struck by Machine Driven by David Becker of University City.

Withrow Reed, 3-year-old son of Mrs. Eleanor Reed, a widow, of 6168 Bartmer avenue, was run down and instantly killed at Bartmer avenue and the county line at 9 o'clock last night by an auto driven by David Becker of 6741 Vernon place, University City.

The boy's mother had gone to a neighborhood store. He was playing with other children in the street. Becker was driving with his wife in the machine when, according to his story, the child ran behind another machine ahead of the Becker car and directly in the way.

Becker took the child to the office of a nearby doctor, who found life extinct. Becker was taken to the Page Boulevard Police Station, where he made a statement.

BOY'S FINGER AMPUTATED; TORN BY RING AND TETANUS RESULTED

City Hospital Physicians Operate After Injecting 9000 Units of Serum Into Lad's Body

Physicians at the city hospital yesterday afternoon amputated the fourth finger of the left hand of Philip Bova, 12 years old, of 1432 North Twelfth street, who was taken to the hospital earlier in the day, suffering from tetanus due to an abrasion caused a week ago, when a ring he wore tore the flesh of his finger.

At the hospital 9000 units of antitetanic serum were injected into his body and later the amputation of the finger was decided upon. His condition last night was said to be serious.

MACHINE "MADE" $20 BILLS

Illinois Buyer Has Five Alleged Sellers Arrested.

PEORIA, Ill., May 20.—Isaac Deutsch and Meyer Katz of West Frankfort, Ill., near here, are facing trial on a charge of operating a confidence game brought by Anton Sorchych of Depue, Ill., who claims Deutsch and Katz sold him a machine to make $20 bills, he paying them $5000 for the outfit.

According to Sorchych, the machine was to be operated by placing a $20 bill in an aperture and turning a crank. Scores of duplicate certificates came forth. Three thousand were "made" in two weeks. Armed with a shotgun, he is said to have guarded his machine for three days after the men left. He then discovered the device would not work and had the two men arrested.

SOCIALIST INTRODUCES A BILL

London Would Guarantee Wages for Bankrupts' Employes.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Representative London of New York, the only Socialist member of the House, today introduced a bill to guarantee payment of wages for an employer who goes into bankrutpcy. The bill is designed to prevent bankruptcy to avoid wage payments.

London said he expected many bankruptcies to result from the cloakmakers' strike in New York.

POLICEMAN KILLED BY SALOON KEEPER HE WAS ARRESTING

Louis G. Robers, of Mounted District, Shot by Joseph Ariotto in "Dago Hill."

SLAYER CALLS POLICE

Pepper Found on Dead Man Indicates He Was Blinded Before Pistol Was Fired.

Patrolman Louis G. Robers, 40 years old, of the Mounted District, who lived at 4540A Shaw avenue, was shot and killed at 11 o'clock last night by Joseph Ariotto, a "Dago Hill" saloon keeper, in a revolver duel in front of Ariotto's saloon, at Copper and Daggett avenues. He had attempted to arrest Ariotto for displaying a revolver, after having ordered him to light the lamps on his automobile, which was standing near.

A bag of red pepper was found in the front of Robers' collar, when his body was found by city firemen who went to the "hill" in response of a false fire alarm, sent in during the excitement which followed the shooting.

Grains of pepper were on the dead policeman's face, and it appeared that the pepper had been thrown into his face, to blind him or distract him with sneezing, as he advanced toward Ariotto.

Slayer Telephones Police.

After the shooting, while Robers, with three wounds, lay dying in the street, Ariotto went inside the saloon and telephoned to the police. He said he had shot Robers, and promised to wait at the saloon until policemen should come after him. He did so, and when the policemen arrived, he admitted the killing, and was taken to the Forest Park station. A number of witnesses, customers in the saloon, were taken to the station with him. They will be required to appear at the Coroner's inquest tomorrow.

Robers was due at 11, at the box across the street from Ariottto's saloon, to go on duty. On his way, he stopped in the saloon and told Ariotto that he must keep the lights burning on his machine, so long as it stood in the street. He then went to the box, where Patrolman McVey was waiting to be relieved, and he remarked to McVey that Ariottto and his bartender had displayed revolvers when he went into the saloon.

Starts Back Toward Saloon.

After McVey had left, Robers started back toward the saloon, apparently to make another complaint about the automobile lights. Ariotto appeared in a side door of the saloon with his revolver in his hand.

According to Ariotto and Harry Mariani of 2207 Cooper avenue, a witness, the policeman threw his club at Ariotto. An instant later, Mariana said, both were firing their revolvers, and he could not tell who began the firing.

The policeman fell, groaning, "I'm shot." He was wounded in the left side, in the center of the back and in the left hand, and he died before the firemen came. One of the bullets fired by the policeman entered Ariotto's icebox. There were 20 customers in the saloon, but they were not in the direct line of fire.

Ariotto told a Post-Dispatch reporter, at the station, that his lights were lit, but were too dim to suit the policeman He said he turned up the lights, but that, after Robers relieved McVey, he returned and called him a "Dago hound."

Says Policeman Drew Club.

"That made me mad," he related, "and I said something to him. Then Robers drew his club, and I jumped back inside and grabbed my revolver. He fired, and I fired, and I saw him fall. Then I went in. I thought at first I was hit, too.

"I am sorry I did it, but if another man called me a Dago hound, and threw a club at me, maybe I would shoot him, too."

Ariotto denied knowing anything about the red pepper found in Robers' collar. He said he had had trouble with the policeman, and that Robers was in the habit of speaking roughly to him, and had accused him of causing Robers to "get in bad" with the Police Board. Other policemen said they did not know to what this could have referred.

Robers had been on the force since 1904. He was separated from his wife, and is believed by his comrades to have been divorced. Ariotto has a wife and three children.

NEW BISHOP BECAME MINISTER AFTER LOSING $200 ON BLAINE

Iowan Tells of the Rev. Matt S. Hughes, Becoming Converted Following Following Loss of Election Bet.

DES MOINES, Io., May 20.—Loss of a $200 bet placed on James G. Blaine for President in 1884, started the Rev. Dr. Matt S. Hughes into the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, declared J. W. Jarnagin of the Iowa farmer, when he read that the native Iowan had been elevated to a bishopric of the church by the general conference at Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

"When Matt lost his money in the presidential campaign that year, he became disgusted," Jarnagin said. "He was completely downhearted and remorseful. Just at that time a religious revival was started in Poweshiek County by Sam Jones, the famous evangelist. Matt attended and was converted. Hughes and a brother entered the ministry.

17 OF ALLENDER'S MEN HIT BY BIG POLICE SHAKE-UP

Six Sergeants and Eleven Plain Clothes Detectives Go Back to Uniforms.

SOME WANTED CHANGE

Others Transferred to Precincts for Good of Service, Chief Young Says.

One of the biggest shake-ups in the history of the detective bureau of the Police Department occurred yesterday afternoon when Chief of Police Young announced the transfer of six detective-sergeants and 11 special plain-clothes men back to the uniform ranks. The detective-sergeants will command precincts in the districts to which they are assigned, and the others will walk beats. There is no reduction in pay.

"It was for the good of the service," was the Chief's only comment. "However, some of the men requested the change because they preferred regular police work."

Had Long Conference.

The announcement was made after a long conference between Chief Young and Chief Allender of the detective bureau. It has been known for some time that higher officials of the department have been dissatisfied with the work done by some men under Allender. That Allender himself was not pleased with the efforts of some of his subordinates was shown one day last week when he called his men behind closed doors, and informed them that the work of some was not efficient.

Chief Allender has been keeping an eye on various uniform men, and it is thought that six sergeants, who Chief Young announced would replace the detective-sergeants, will include several whom Allender desired. Nothing was said of the immediate replacing of the 11 special plain-clothes men, but it is thought their places will be filled within a few days.

Wants Desmond Man.

Among the men Allender is known to have desired was Sergeant James Moran, of the North Market Street District, who was formerly a detective-sergeant under William Desmond. Moran was among those named to work under Allender in the future.

It is also known that some of the men transferred were weary of the plain-clothes work, and desired to be back in uniform again. As detectives, they worked all hours of the day and night, and even on their days off were subject to call and had to keep in touch with Police Headquarters. Frequently they worked 12 and 16 hours, and sometimes longer, a day.

Men in this department are given a book containing 100 street car passes each month; after the 100 passes are exhausted they have to pay their own fares. Some said that they frequently paid as much as $5 a month for carfare themselves while on police duty. As uniform men they will ride free, and in addition work only eight hours a day.

The detective-sergeants transferred to the uniform ranks, and their district stations are as follows:

John Dotzman and J. Harvey James to the Carondelet district; William Flynn to the North Market; Eugene Gartland to the Soulard; Joseph E. Logan, Deer street; and Peter Wells, Wyoming.

Sergeants in Plain Clothes.

Uniform sergeants who will replace them, and the district stations from which they come, are: Michael Hendy and Fred Schiefelbein, Carondelet; Ernest Renz, Wyoming; John Brandenberger, Soulard; James Moran, North Market; John Crone, Deer street.

Special plain-clothes men who were assigned to the uniform rank and the stations to which they will go, are: Robert Antram and Edward Sullivan, Dayton street; Jeremiah Sullivan and William R. Walsh, Magnolia; Richard Lay, William Phust, and George Blair, Page boulevard; Edward Dowd and Tom Garvey, Deer street; George Dennis and Sam Robbins, Angelica street.

Other transfers announced in the Police Department were: Patrolman Jacob Lohse, from Angelica to North Market street district; Patrolman Fred Fricke from Deer street to Mounted; Patrolman Frank Ryan from Page boulevard to Mounted.

BILLY SUNDAY "COMES BACK" IN BALL GAME AT KANSAS CITY

Plays One Inning With Each of Opposing Rotary Clubs and Then Acts as Umpire.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—Billy Sunday "came back" at Association Baseball Park this afternoon. The former White Stocking star took in flies like a veteran before the start of the game between the teams of Kansas City, Kan., and the Kansas City, Mo., Rotary Clubs.

After a parade through the downtown streets in which Billy and "Ma" Sunday took part, the evangelist and his wife led the two teams into the park.

The evangelist was on the field in uniform when the crowd, following the parade, arrived. He was at his old position in center field warming up for some time before the bleachers discovered him. After that applause greeted his plays. The game was a Mercy Hospital benefit. Sunday played one inning with each team and umpired a part of the game.

SAVES $10,000 ON FAKE HORSE RACE BY OVERSLEEPING

Minnesota Farmer Missed Train at Council Bluffs on Way to Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb. May 20.—With $10,000 in his pocket to be bet on a fake horserace at Excelsior Springs, Mo., C. H. Kunz, a farmer of Worthington, Minn., overslept at a hotel in Council Bluffs, Thursday night, missed his train, and, after confiding to a detective the fact that he was to make a barrel of money on a sure thing, was warned by the police and his money was saved. Council Bluffs police, in co-operation with the Missouri authorities, are endeavoring to pick up the would-be swindlers.

Kunz, who is 65 years old, recently sold a farm near Dennison, Io., receiving $10,000 in cash. He deposited it in Dennison and went to Excelsior Springs for an outing. At a hotel there he fell in with two friendly strangers, and was told a story of a poor man having won $125,000 on a fixed horserace.

Then the strangers left town. The next day Kunz met two other friendly strangers who were just going to "get rich" on a fixed horserace. Kunz was promised a sight of the horserace. Then the strangers asked him to bet the money for them to prevent suspicion. Kunz says he actually held $105,000 of their money for several hours. The farmer grew excited and asked them to hold off the race until he went to Dennison and got $10,000, which he would put up. They consented.

Kunz got his money, but had to stay all night in Council Bluffs. He had the cash with him, but overslept and saved it. The race, he understood, was to have been run at Excelsior Springs. On missing the train Kunz telegraphed his racehorse friends that he had the money with him and to hold the race until he arrived. He confided in the operator and the operator told the police, who hunted him up to warn him. Then they started after the fakers, but the men had left town.

GERMAN BULLET SHATTERS CAMERA OF BELGIAN QUEEN

She Had Placed It on Parapet of First Line Trench After Snapshotting Soldier.

PARIS, May 20.—Queen Elizabeth of Belgium made an impromptu visit to the first-line trenches today, accompanied by Col. Roy De Blicquy. After snapshotting a soldier she placed her camera on the parapet of the trench.

Just then a bullet from a German trench less than 1000 yards away, shattered the camera. The Queen promised the soldier she would return and retake his pic

LYNCH'S SENTENCE TO BE LAID BEFORE PRIME MINISTER

Ambassador Page So Informed Concerning American Citizen Arrested in Irish Conspiracy.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Ambassador Page, at London, has been notified by the British Foreign Office that sentence of Jeremiah C. Lynch, a naturalized American, arrested for complicity in the Irish revolt, will not be confirmed until it has been submitted to the Prime Minister.

President Wilson had requested that execution of the sentence be delayed until the American Government had investigated. Ambassador Page will inquire into the case.

The Ambassador, reporting the notification to the State Department tonight, said that Consul Adams at Dublin had been informed officially that the sentence imposed on Lynch was 10 years' imprisonment. This dispatch added that no confirmation of this information was available in London. Reports to Lynch's friends in New York had been to the effect that he was sentenced to death.

$8,380,000 U. S. INCOME TAX FRAUDS ARE FRUSTRATED

Government Officials Find That Corporations Paid Their Expense Accounts With Many Thousands.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Attempted frauds and evasions of the income tax law aggregating $8,380,185 have been frustrated by the treasury department, during the first nine months of the current fiscal year, it was announced tonight.

The $8,380,185 has been added to the incorrect returns, assessed against the delinquent corporations and individuals, and will be collected. More than 80,000 individuals and corporation returns have yet to be examined before the total of the amount withheld can be ascertained.

By alleged evasion, omissions and direct attempts to defraud, corporations whose returns have thus far been examined are said to have failed to declare their correct taxes to the extent of $5,034,026, while individuals failed by $3,346,159.

The general method of making incorrect returns, it is said, has been to pad expense items which are deducted from gross receipts to determine net income. Few corporations or individuals, it is said, understated their gross incomes. Many are said to have added tens of thousands of dollars to their items of expense. Few, it is believed succeeded in covering up the real returns by this method.

AUSTRIANS TAKE ANOTHER POSITION SOUTH OF TRENT

Italians Evacuate the Col Santo, West of Monte Maggio, the Extremity of Ground Previously Given Up to the Enemy.

Vienna Claims Capture in Present Offensive of 13,000 Officers and Men and of 107 Guns.

Germans Make Gains and Later Are Thrown Back in Fierce Fighting in Le Morte Homme Region.

By Associated Press.

VIENNA, via London, May 20.—The Italian forces have been ejected from the Col Santo (southeast of Rovereto), according to the Austrian official statement issued today.

"Since the beginning of the Austrian attack," the statement says, "we have captured 287 officers, 13,900 men, 107 guns, 12 28-centimeter howitzers and 68 machine guns."

Rovertero, or Roverdero, is about 15 miles south of Trent, in Austria. An official communication issued in Rome Friday night admitted retirement from a position at Zegnatorta, in the Legarina Valley, south of Trent, and from the upper Aslico from Monte Maggio to Sagliodaspio, southeast of Trent.

Rome Declares Austrian Assailants Have Been Dispersed.

ROME, via Paris, May 20.—The great offensive of the Austrian forces so far has found such well-placed resistance that all the efforts have resulted, according to official communications, in heavy losses and the dispersal of the attacking troops. Several thousand prisoners with arms, ammunition and provisions, abandoned by the retreating Austrians, have been captured.

"Some of the fiercest fighting occurred on mountain heights, far above those on which any previous combats have taken place."

The official communication issued by the War Office today reads:

"In the Ortler zone minor actions resulted in our favor. Between the Adige and Terragnole Valley attacks in the direction of Marco and along the railway line were repulsed. The enemy then resumed a violent bombardment of our position on the northern slope of Monte Pasubio. The enemy used explosive projectiles and lachrymosal shells.

"In the zone between the Terragnole Valley and the upper Astico the enemy offensive is valiantly held back by our troops. An attack against Coston d'Laghi was repulsed. On the Asiago plateau attacks from Milgrobe and the Busaverle basin, although prepared and supported by the most violent artillery fire, were shattered against the solid resistance of our troops.

"In the Sugana valley the situation is unchanged. Along the rest of the front the enemy scattered the fire of his artillery without any precise objective. Our guns abstained from replying.

"A great aerial raid was attempted at dawn yesterday by the enemy at different points on the Venetian plain. There were few casualties but almost no damage. Enemy air squadrons which pushed on as far as Udine and Casarsa were driven back by the prompt intervention of our aviators."

AUSTRIAN CROWN PRINCE DIRECTING DRIVE AT ITALIANS

Archduke Charles Francis Only Recently Got His First High Command.

AUSTRIAN PRESS HEADQUARTERS, via Berlin to London, May 20.—The army of the Austrian Crown Prince, Archduke Charles Francis, who was only recently entrusted with his first high command, continues to force the Italians back toward the border in the southern extremity of Tyrol, and has strengthened and extended its hold on the sections of Italian territory.

This newest offensive by the Austrians is declared to be, like all the other offensive movements in this war, a further exhibition of the efficiency of properly handled artillery.

Numerous New Guns Used.

The Austro-Hungarians began their operations after assembling adequate artillery, which included numerous new guns of high efficiency. The order for the commencement of a bombardment of full intensity was given last Saturday with the result that the cannonading reached a degree of fierceness never heretofore experienced on this front.

The Austro-Hungarian guns succeeded in smothering the Italian guns in the sectors where an offensive was planned, and thus the infantry was able to begin work on Monday in the mountains between Brenta and Etsch (Adige) rivers. Since then, bitter mountain fighting has been continuous. Picked troops under the Crown Prince succeeded on Wednesday in throwing their opponents back across the border directly to the east of Rovereto, and occupying the outermost of Italy's permanent frontier support points. This position is especially important, since it commands Arsiero, which is a communication and assembly point for the Italians.

Italian Outposts Taken.

Repeated attacks of the Italians from the Sugana valley against the Austro-Hungarian left flank were beaten back and the Austrians captured Capomolon and Tabaro, both part of Italy's defensive outpost frontier line, and both highly important position since they are situated on elevations of respectively 1855 and 1899 meters.

The position at this point also enabled the Austro-Hungarian artillery to flank the Italian positions on Col Santo at an elevation of 2114 meters. Special troops of mountain soldiers were enabled to reach its northern slope.

These troops attacked and extended their efforts westward, clearing the valley on a line running from Caomolon to Marco and Mori, both of which the Italians were compelled to abandon.

The Austro-Hungarians estimate that the Italian losses here reached a complete corps.

Comparative quiet precails on other parts of the front, with the exception of an Italian attack to the west of Duino, on the Adriatic, where they attempted vainly to recapture Thurnbagni.

BRITISH CAPTURE RIDGE ABOVE LENS

BRITISH FIELD HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 20.—It has developed that the actions of the battalions of the North Lancashires and the Lancashire Fusiliers on the fifteenth was a singularly brilliant attack and gained a strategic point—the crest of the redoubtable Vimy ridge—the possession of which means the command of the plain of Lens.

Since the British took over this section from the French in the early stage of the battle of Verdun, the Germans had been holding stubbornly the vantage of the higher ground and inflicting heavy casualties on the British. After a successful explosion of mines just after dark, the Lancashires, who are made up largely of cotton operatives from Manchester, rushed from their trenches to the lips of the craters.

Every detail in the program of the operation was carried out successfully. Morning found the Lancashires thoroughly entrenched against a retaliatory German bombardment and had connected their old line by communicating trenches, six feet deep. Slight casualties were the cost of the night's success. The value of the ground gained is not to be judged by the 360 yards of front taken, but by the fact that the Lancashires are no longer on the downside of the slope with the Germans above them.

RUSSIANS HALTED BEFORE KHANIKIN

PETROGRAD, via London, May 20.—Having to cope no longer with the Kurdish mountain bands and isolated Turkish outposts and, instead, now being confronted with the regular Turkish army concentrated on the Turko-Persian border before Khanikin, the Russian-Bagdad expedition has come to a temporary standstill. The Turks are reported to be putting up a desperate resistance, apparently determined to delay at all cost a further advance of the Russian army.

The highest tributes are paid by all Russian observers to the courage and fighting ability of the Turks, who are defending with particular stubborness this entrance to Mesopotamia. According to recent details received of the battle of Serinal-Kerind, the Turks made almost superhuman efforts to prevent the Russian occupation of this fortification. The entire garrison died fighting, but without accomplishing its purpose, since after only a short delay the Russian forces swept onward toward Khanikin.

England Raided by 3 Seaplanes; Soldier Killed, 2 Civilians Wounded.

LONDON, May 20.—Three German seaplanes made a raid on the English coast last night, a British official announcement this afternoon states.

One of the aircraft was brought down off the Belgian coast.

The seaplanes dropped 37 bombs, killing one soldier and wounding two civilians.

The statement says: "A hostile air raid was carried out on the east coast of Kent last night by at least three seaplanes. The raiders made the English coast a few minutes past 2 o'clock this morning. One seaplane then turned north and dropped a dozen explosive bombs over the Isle of Thanet. Some windows were broken. There were no casualties and no other damage.

"Two seaplanes turned south and dropped 25 explosive bombs over Southeastern Kent. In one town a few bombs took effect. One soldier was killed, one woman and one seaman were injured, one public house was wrecked and several houses damaged. The remaining bombs caused no casualties or damage.

The raiders all made off as soon as their bombs were discharged. One of the raiding seaplanes was brought down by a naval patrol off the Belgian coast this morning.

Fighting Furious in Le Mort Homme Region at Verdun.

LONDON, May 20.—Infantry attacks by the Germans in the Verdun region, a French gain in the Champagne; a British success on the Vimy Ridge and further successful onslaughts by the Austrians in the Southern Tyrol are chronicled in the latest offical communications. After a period of inactivity by the infantry around Verdun, the German foot soldiers have been hurled against the entire French line in the Le Mort Homme region. East of Le Mort Homme, the Germans penetrated the first French lines, but were driven out with serious losses. To the west and on the northern slopes of Le Mort Homme, the Germans occupied a portion of a French advanced trench. Under a violent fire by French guns, the Germans are reported to have retreated from the position in disorder.

Artillery continues active in the other sectors about Verdun. The French have cleared a German trench in Champagne by a surprise attack. All the occupants of the trench are reported either to have been killed or captured.

Further north the British have withstood two German thrusts in the region of Loos and Wieltje, and the Loyal North Lancashires Lave recaptured a crater on the Vimy Ridge, the scene of much hand fighting in the past few days. The crater was captured by the Germans on May 18.

HUGHES FAVORITE; CHANCE OF T. R. LURES MOST BETS

Colonel's Supporters Gamble on His "Luck" and Possible Repetition of 1912 Split—Bosses Skeptical of Strength Against Wilson.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Reduced to sporting terms, speculation among professional politicians over the chances of the 15 men who are likely to figure in the contest for the "straight goods" Republican Presidential nomination at Chicago two weeks from Wednesday, justifies these odds:

Against Hughes	8 to 5
" Roosevelt	3 to 1
" Root	5 to 1
" Fairbanks	8 to 1
" McCall	8 to 1
" Burton	20 to 1
" Sherman	40 to 1
" Weeks	40 to 1
" Cummins	50 to 1
" Harding	60 to 1
" Borah	75 to 1
" Wadsworth	75 to 1
" Ford	150 to 1
" Du Pont	200 to 1
" Wood	200 to 1

Greatest Interest in Colonel.

Wagers have been made on the terms quoted above, the majority of them reflecting greater interest in the chances of Col. Roosevelt than in those of any half-dozen of the others.

While the Colonel does not rule the favorite in the betting itself, he is the subject of most of bets, for, despite the unmistakable hostile trend of public opinion, he still monopolizes the attention of the professionals.

His supporters refuse to be convinced that his "luck" will desert him when the conflict, which promises many a joyous thrill, actually starts. The discussion of the chances of any other man inevitably turns upon his plans.

Will he retire from the race? Will he accept Hughes, Root, Fairbanks or any of the others and call off his Progressives? Will his deep-rooted personal dislike for Mr. Wilson influence him to subordinate his personal ambition and induce him to take his place in the ranks? Will he refuse to do any or all of these things, and lead another revolt againsht the party that he ripped up the back four years ago?

Colonel Worries the Leaders.

The Colonel may not be the favorite in the betting, but he's worrying the regular leaders a lot. With his indorsement and support any one of the men whose names figure in the calculations of the bosses and convention delegates will be glad to head the assault on the Wilson administration.

Without his indorsement and support, none of them will waste any sleep over the nomination. The old line leaders who have most skilfully stacked the nominating convention against the Colonel may scoff at him they feared a few years ago and write his epitaph, but at the same moment they realize he is far from being "a dead one."

The dirft has been against him of late; there is no gainsaying the fact. But he remains the disturbing factor in the situation.

The more candid of the leaders who are apparently justified in their prediction that they have him beaten now privately admit they will have to take the man he proposes or face certain defeat in November. The Colonel's supportors are inclined to charge the opposition with bluffing, and the opposition leaders return the compliment. Unprejudiced observers, wise in the ways of politicians, accord each side a 50 per cent credit in this respect.

Logic Points to Hughes.

Admitting that the logic of the proposition points to the nomination of Hughes, there is actually little confidence that the Justice will finally be named, at least among the experts. An analysis of the figures seems to indicate the nomination of the Justice if popular sentiment counts for anything.

Every day brings additions among Republican leaders and workers among the rank and file—not delegates—to his standard. The West and North contribute most of this sentiment; the South very little, for the reason that the promoters of the movements for Roosevelt, Root, Fairbanks and one or two of the "favorite sons" have "sewed up" the delegates for them.

The relations of the New York leaders with the Justice when Governor were not of the sort that commends him to men who will look to him for favors in the event of his election.

The question of his availability is of less concern to them than the price he is to pay to them. They are confident that if they should finally decide to take a chance on the Colonel, after putting him through the "third degree," he would treat them fairly; they are sure Root would.

Consequently they would rather nominate Root than either Hughes or the Colonel, because then they would be betting on "a sure thing," as it were.

String on Bargain With Colonel.

They have the votes to "put Root over." There is no doubt of that. Leaders who have checked up the delegates are of the opinion that they can bring about the elimination of enough of the so-called "favorite sons" to give Root a clear majority of the delegates.

But they don't know that the Colonel will go behind him and are further skeptical of Root's value as a candidate against so formidable an adversary as Mr. Wilson.

O. R. C. VOTES DOWN MOTION TO TAKE HEADQUARTERS FROM HERE

Brandeis Indorsed as Candidate for United States Supreme Court; Adjournment Will Be Wednesday.

The Order of Railway Conductors, which has been in convetion in St. Louis for two weeks, last night at the Marquette Hotel voted down a motion to change the headquarters of the order from St. Louis to Indianapolis. The next convention in 1919, will be held in St. Louis.

A motion that Louis T. Brandeis of Boston be indorsed as candidate for the Supreme Court of the United States was carried without objection. All business went as far as the third reading and will be conclude at the business session tomorrow morning.

A party of 250 conductors departed last night for Highland, Ill., to visit the home for disabled and aged conductors and engineer. Adjournment will be taken Wednesday morning after the election of officers.

FOUR JURYMEN SWORN IN AT TRIAL OF YOUNG ORPET

Will Probably Take All Week to Fill the Box—Sweetheart to Be State Witness.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., May 20.—Four men were sworn into the jury today in the case of Will H. Orpet, University of Wisconsin student, charged with the murder of his former sweetheart, Marion Lambert. They were taken from 400 veniremen examined since the trial began before Donnelly last Monday. Each juror is married and has children. Another week, it was predicted, would be required to fill the jury box.

Celeste Youker of River Forest, to whom Orpet is engaged, will be called as a witness by the State, it is said.

"She will help to prove that Orpet killed Miss Lambert," said State's Attorney Dady.

"She may be a witness, but she'll do nothing of the sort," said Miss Youker's mother.

GERMAN PAPERS FORCED TO QUIT

Average Above Three Suspensions a Day Due to Financial Difficulties.

BERLIN, May 20.—Three thousand newspapers and publications in Germany have had to go out of business, generally on account of financial difficulties, since the war began, according to the newspaper lists for the Imperial Postal District.

The list for this year shows a falling off of 1255 publications from the list of 1915, or an average of more than three a day.

TAPPING OF SEYMOURS' WIRE AT MORGAN'S WISH, SENATOR SAYS

Federal District Attorney Says He Is Powerless Because of Refusal to Prosecute.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Notwithstanding the statement by United States District Attorney Marshall, Senator Thompson of the Legislative Committee, today reiterated there was no national interest involved in the Seymour & Seymour wire-tapping case. He asserted that the wire-tapping was done at the behest of J. P. Morgan & Co., and that it was unjustified. He almost in so many words, put it up to District Attorney Swann to take action. Swann answered with the statement that the Seymours had refused to go before the grand jury and thus he was powerless.

Information has been obtained that Senator Thompson is correct in holding that the tapping of the Seymour & Seymour wire was due solely to the complaint of J. P. Morgan & Co. After the police had been listening in on the wires for some days, it is stated, they began to get an entirely new lead, which had nothing to do, directly, with J. P. Morgan & Co., but which did concern a matter in which the Federal authorities were interested. Then it was that Marshall was informed of the developments, and it was only in connection with this second matter that he was interested.

MAJOR BEATEN 2 TO 1 IN OREGON PRIMARY, RETURNS INDICATE

Marshall Leading for Vice President—Hughes Is Choice of Republican Voters for President.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 20.—Incomplete primary returns from througout the State show that Thomas R. Marshall is leading for the Vice Presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket. Gov. Major of Missouri is second.

A few local names are written in. Marshall's lead will be about two to one over Major, it is indicated.

The Republican vote given Justice Hughes, for President was nearly twice the total vote given former Senator Burton and Senator Cummins. An increase is noted in the later returns in the number of Republican voters who had written in the name of Roosevelt as their choice for President.

OLIVER B. NIEDRINGHAUS DIES

St. Louisan Prominent In Granite City Business Circles.

Oliver B. Niedringhaus, factory manager and director of the National Enameling and Stamping Co. at Granite City, Ill., died at his home in the St. Regis Apartments, after a year's illness, yesterday morning.

In 1903 he married Miss Louise Riley. Mrs. Niedringhaus and one daughter, Mary Louise Niedringhaus, 10 years old, survive. In addition to his interest in the National Enameling and Stamping Co. of Granite City, he was a director in the Granite City Light and Fuel Co., the Granite City National Bank and the Granite City Realty Co

FRIENDS START A BOOM IN CHICAGO FOR GEN. WOOD

They Believe He Has Chance of Nomination if There Is Prolonged Deadlock.

CHICAGO. May 20.—Friends of Gen. Leonard A. Wood, it is said are planning to present his name to the Republican national convention as a compromise candidate for President. They believe that if there is a prolonged deadlock in the balloting he may have a chance to win. His supporters assert that he would be acceptable to Col. Roosevelt who would be urged to campaign for him.

John A. Stewart, former secretary of the League of Republican Clubs of New York State, said to be in charge of the campaign of Gen. Wood, arrived in Chicago today. Political literature has been sent to the convention delegates and it is said that headquarters for him will be opened in Chicago next week.

Mercer Vernon of Washington, D. C., arrived here today as the advance agent of the presidential boom of Senator John W. Weeks, of Massachusetts, and claimed that his candidate would have 175 votes on the first ballot in the convention. Weeks' headquarters will be opened here about May 25.

Secretary James B. Reynolds of the Republican National Committee yesterday began preparing the temporary roll of delegates to the convention.

The contract for the official program of the convention was awarded to a Chicago firm yesterday. The program will consist of 100 pages and contain photographs of members of the Republican National Committee and officials of the lcoal committee and the schedule of events at the convention.

The contract for the convention tickets with coupons for six days sessions, also was awarded.

An order for 100,000 campaign buttons bearing American flags and the inscription "Americanism and Roosevelt" was given yesterday for use during the Progressive national convention here. The order was given by a representative of the Porgressive National Committee.

The Progressive National Committee will meet in Chicago June 5 to complete arrangements for the party convention. Under the party rules the committee is required to meet 15 days prior to the national convention, but as there are no contesting delegations this meeting will be dispensed with this year.

Campaign headquarters will be opened in Chicago by a number of "favorite son" candidates for the Republican nomination before the end of next week.

Among the candidates who are expected to open headquarters here in the next few days are Elihu Root of New York, Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, Senator John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois, Senator Robert M. La Folette of Wisconsin and T. Coleman Dupont of Delaware. Headquarters for Col. Roosevelt were opened a week ago by the Roosevelt Nonpartisan League, which has planned a number of mass meetings in the downtown district, to be addressed by speakers of national prominence in the week previous to the Republican national convention.

CHICAGO PROGRAM OF PROGRESSIVES

CHICAGO, May 20.—Oscar King Davis, secretary of the Progressive National Committee, today completed the details of the order of proceedings of the Progressive national convention, which will open at the Auditorium June 7. The program announced is as follows:

Wednesday, June 7—Convention called to order at 12 noon by Victor Murdock, chairman of the Progressive National Committee. Prayer by Bishop William F. McDowell of Chicago.

Reading of the official call for the convention. Election of temporary officers of the convention. Introduction of the temporary chairman. Address by the temporary chairman. Selection of committees on permanent organization, rules and order of business, credentials, resolutions and miscellaneous business.

Thursday, June 8—Convention called to order at 11 a. m. Prayer by the Rev. John Timothy Stone of Chicago. Report of the committee on credentials. Report of the committee on permanent organization. Address by Permanent chairman. Report of the committee on rules and order of business. Selection of Progressive National Committee.

Friday, June 9—Convention called to order at 11 a. m. Prayer by Rabbi Joseph Stoltz of Chicago. Report of the committee on resolutions. Presentation of the names of candidates for Vice President. Appointment of committees to notify the nominees. Final adjournment.

NORTHWEST WANTS T. R., SAYS WOMAN PROGRESSIVE DELEGATE

CHICAGO, May 20.—Mrs. Sarah E. Flannigan of Spokane, Wash., a delegate to the Progressive party's national convention, arrived in Chicago today. She was the first Bull Moose delegate to report at local headquarters.

"If the Republicans get gay we'll fix 'em," said Mrs. Flannigan. "I've fought for Col. Roosevelt since the famous Aberdeen State convention in 1912. I've supported him when he was weak and when he was strong, and, believe me, he is not weak today. All through the northwest and Rocky Mountain States, the people, especially the women, want the man who can bring victory to the combined Republican and Progressive forces. There is only one man who fills the bill."

Mrs. Flannigan departed later for Oyster Bay, N. Y., to confer with Col. Roosevelt.

AVIATOR FLIES 400 MILES IN 4 HOURS WITHOUT A STOP

Victor Carlstrom, in New Curtiss Land Machine, Establishes a Record.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Four hundred miles in four hours, without a stop, is the air record established today between Newport News, Va., and New York by Victor Carlstrom and Capt. Ralph L. Taylor of the Connecticut Coast Artillery, in a new type of Curtiss land machine. Capt. Taylor weighs 200 pounds.

Leaving the North Atlantic Aeronautical Station at Newport News at 5:26 a. m., the flyers crossed over Chesapeake Bay and, at an altitude of 5000 feet, skimmed over the State of Delaware, along the Delaware River past Philadelphia and thence to New York and Sheepshead Bay to participate in the preparedness tournament. They landed in the race track inclosure at 9:37 a. m.

Two machines started at the same time, the other piloted by Steve McGordon, carrying a mechanician. McGordon became lost in a thunderstorm and had to descend from 5000 to 2000 feet to get his bearings. In this way he lost the companion machine and did not reach Sheepshead Bay until 10:12.

Carried Letters to Hawley.

Each pilot carried a duplicate of the following letter from Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, veteran aeronaut now in charge of the North Atlantic Aeronautical Station, from the Curtiss company:

"Alan R. Hawley, president.

"Aero Club of America.

"My dear Mr. Hawley: I am sending you this message by Carlstrom and McGordon, who will show tomorrow morning what air transportation really means.

"By boat and rail, making the most direct connections now possible between Newport News, and New York, we take 13½ hours to accomplish the journey that our airmen expect to make in about four hours. The all-rail distance via Richmond, Washington and Philadelphia is 416 miles. The actual running time of the fastest passenger train is nine hours and 15 minutes. The route chosen by Carlstrom and McGordon reduces the distance possibly to 400 miles.

Expected No-Stop Flight.

"I expect they will drive the two Curtiss tractors, one of them a twin engine of a new type, without making a stop in the 400 miles. Our telegraph messages usually reach us in about the time the distance should be flown.

"Tomorrow's performance should demonstrate what may be expected from the transcontinental aeroplane competition which the Aero Club has instituted upon the suggestion of Mr. Ralph Pulitzer. The trophy which he has offered for annual competition, together with the generous prizes the Aero Club is adding, should bring out the best motors, the best planes and the best flyers that this or any other country has produced. The cross-continent race is what has long been needed to develop flying in America.

"Yours very truly,

"THOMAS S. BALDWIN."

SEAT SALE OPENS TOMORROW FOR OPEN-AIR "SIEGFRIED"

Seating Capacity of Robison Field Grand Stand Will Be Less Than 9000.

Plans are being perfected for the open-air performance of Wagner's "Siegfried" at Robison Field, Tuesday night, June 13, the night before the opening of the Democratic Convention. Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mme. Johanna Gadski, Mme. Frieda Hempel, Albert Reiss, Clarence Whitehill, Carl Braun, Otto Goritz and Johannes Sembach will appear in the all-star Metropolitan cast and the performance, all in all, will be the same as was given at Harvard Stadium last June, except that Miss Frieda Hempel will sing the part of "Waldvogel" instead of Mme. Alma Gluck.

Only the grandstand at Robison Field, including a few chairs in front of the player's benches will be used. The seating capacity will be less than 9000. The stage will be placed less than 200 feet from the center of the grandstand. At Harvard 25,000 persons attended the performance, and the stage was more than 400 feet from the center of the Stadium. There are only 30 boxes in the grandstand, and the applications exceed the supply. None of the bleacher seats will be used.

Boxholders are Joseph R. Barroll, Sigmund Baer, Joseph D. Bascom, Mrs. Anna Bray, Mrs. Schuyler P. Britton, August A. Busch, Peyton T. Carr, L. R. Carter, Mrs. C. McL. Clark, Mrs. Ames Cushman, Mrs. John T. Davis Jr., A. C. Einstein, John Fowler, Mrs. D. R. Francis, Dr. William F. Frerichs, Benjamin Gratz, Mrs. D. B. Hussey, M. Kotany, William J. Lemp, Edward Mallinckrodt, George D. Markham, Richard McCulloch, W. H. Nolker, Dan C. Nugent, Henry W. Peters, Mrs. Samuel Plant, Joseph Pulitzer Jr., John C. Roberts, George W. Simmons, Mrs. Daniel G. Taylor, Rolla Wells, George K. Warner, M. L. Wilkinson, George W. Wilson, Mrs. Newton R. Wilson. The scale of prices will range from $1.50, $2, $2.50 and $3. The seat sale opens tomorrow morning at Famous-Barr, Vandervoort's, Grand-Leader, Nugents, and Conroy Piano Co.

SHAM BATTLE IN FOREST PARK

Sixty men of Company M., First Regiment, N. G. M., camped last night on Art Hill in Forest Park. This afternoon they will fight a sham battle for which 1000 rounds of blank cartridges have been issued. Today's program also includes a 15-mile hike and exhibition drills.

The company was recently recruited to its full strength of 78 men. It is commanded by Capt. J. J. Koch and First Lieutenant C. J. Soderman. A second lieutenant is to be elected at its next meeting that we should determine what we are going to do with our power than that we should possess it.

President Speaks on America's Example of Peace

You must remember, therefore, the elements with which we are dealing. Sometimes those of us who were born in this part of the country persuade ourselves that this is the characteristic part of America. Here more than anywhere else has been preserved a great part of the original stock which settled this country, particularly that portion of the stock which came from the British Isles (I am not meaning to exclude Ireland), and then I find a great many of my friends who live in New England imagining that the history of this country is merely the history of the expansion of New England, and that Plymouth Rock lies at the foundation of our institutions.

"As a matter of fact, my fellow citizens, however mortifying it may be to them or to us, America did not come out of the South, and it did not come out of New England. The characteristic part of America originated in the middle states of New York and Pennsylvania and New Jersey, because there from the first was that mixture of populations, that mixture of racial stocks, that mixture of antecedents which is the most singular and distinguished mark of the United States.

"The most singular fact about this great nation which we represent is that it is made up out of all the nations of the world. I daresay that the men who came to America then and the men who have come to America since came with a single purpose; sharing some part of the passion for human liberty which characterized the men who founded the republic, but they came with all sorts of blood in their veins, all sorts of antecedents behind them, all sorts of traditions in their family and national life, and America has had to serve as a melting pot for all these diversified and contrasted elements. What kind of fire of pure passion are you going to keep burning under the pot in order that the mixture that comes out may be purged of its dross and may be the fine gold of untainted Americanism? That is the problem.

"I want to call your attention to another picture. America has always been making and to be made, and while we were in the midst of this process, apparently at the acme and crisis of this process, while this travail of soul and fermentation of elements was at its height, came this great catacylsm of European war, and almost every other nation in the world became involved in a tremendous struggle which was what, my fellow citizens? What are the elements in the struggle? Don't you see that in this European war is involved the very thing that has been going on in America? It is competition of national standards, of national traditions, and of national politics—political systems.

"Europe has grappled in war as we have grappled in peace to see what is going to be done with these things when they come into hot contact with one another. For, do you not remember that while these processes were going on in America some very interesting things were happening? It was a very big world into which this nation came when it was born, but it is a very little world now. It used to take as many days to go from Washington to Charlotte in those days as it now takes hours.

"I heard an Irishman say ifthe power of steam continued to increase in the next 15 years as it had in the last, we would get to Charlotte two hours before we left Washington. And as these processes of intercommunication have been developed and quickened, men of the same nation, not only have grown closer neighbors with each other; and now that we have these invisible tongues that speak by the wireless through the trackless air to the ends of the world, every man can make every other man in the world his neighbor and speak to him upon the moment.

As Big as World.

"While these processes of fermentation and travail were going on, men were learning about each other, nations were becoming more and more acquainted with each other, nations were more and more becoming inter-related and intercommunication was being quickened in every possible way, so that now the melting pot is bigger than America. It is as big as the world. And what you see taking place on the other side of the water is the tremendous—I had about said final process—by which a contest of elements may in God's process be turned into co-ordination and co-operation of elements. For it is an interesting circumstance that the processes of the war stand still. These hot things that are contact with each other do not make very much progress against each other.

"When you can not overcome you must take counsel. See then ladies and gentlemen, what a new age we have come into. I should think that it would quicken the imagination of every man and quicken the patriotism of every man who cared for America.

"Here in America we have tried to set the example of bringing all the world together upon terms of liberty and co-operation and peace, and in that great experience that we have been going through, America has been a sort of prophetic sample of mankind. Now the world outside of America has felt the forces of America, felt the forces of freedom, the forces of common aspiration, the forces that bring every man and every nation face to face with this question, 'What are you going to do with your power?'

"Are you going to translate it into forces or are you going to translate it into peace and the satisfaction of the society? Does it not interest you that America has run before the rest of the world in making trial of this great human experiment and is it not the sign and dawn of a new age that one thing upon which the world is now about to fall back is the moral judgment of mankind.

Quotes Thomas Jefferson.

There is no finer sentence in the history of great nations than that sentence which occurs in the Declaration of Independence (I am now referring to the minor declaration at Philadelphia, not to the Mecklenburg declaration) in which Mr. Jefferson said 'A decent respect for the opinion of mankind makes it necessary (I am not now quoting the words exactly) that we should state the grounds upon which we have taken the important step of asserting our independence.'

A decent respect for the opinion of Mankind—it is as if Jefferson knew that this was the way in which mankind itself was to struggle to realize its aspirations and that, standing in the presence of mankind, this little group of three million people should say, 'Friends and fellow citizens of the Great Moral World, our reason for doing this thing we now intend to state to you in candid and complete terms, so that you will never think that we were merely throwing off a yoke out of impatience, but know that we were throwing off this thing in order that a great world of liberty should be open to man through our instrumentality.'

"I would like, therefore, to think that the spirit of this occasion could be experienced if we imagined ourselves lifting some sacred emblem of counsel and of peace, of accommodation and righteous judgment before the nations of the world and reminding them of that passage in Scripture, 'After the wind, after the earthquake, after the fire, the still, small voice of humanity.'"

Gets Big Demonstration.

President Wilson and his party arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning and left for the capital tonight. He first reviewed a procession and later made his open air speech. Visitors from all parts of the state packed the streets and gave the President a great demonstration. At the reviewing stand he was welcomed by Gov. Craig of North Carolina, Gov. Manning of South Carolina and their staffs.

The procession, headed by the North Carolina National Guard, took an hour to pass. It was made up of not only the military but of industrial floats and exhibits, veterans of the Civil War, fraternal orders and numerous other features representing phases of Southern life.

Among the marchers was a group of students from Davidson College, where the President attended. They stopped and gave the college cheed. Recognizing it, the President waved his hat.

Leaders of Republican Party Looking Backward, President Says.

SALISBURY, N. C., May 20.—President Wilson, addressing a large crowd at the railroad station here today as he passed through on his way to Charlotte, attacked leaders of the Republican party as men who are looking backward.

Members of the President's party declared he was referring to the fight led by Senator Gallinger, defeating the nomination of George Rublee to the Federal Trade Commission.

"There are very serious things to be done nowadays," said the President. "We are at the beginning of a new age for the world, and America will have to play a very great part in that new age. There are some men who now control the Republican party who are looking backward, not forward. They do not know the problem of the new day and whenever, for example, I try to show my sympathies for the forward looking men of their own party by nominating men of that sort, they at once try to block the progress."

MAJOR STILL IN TOWN, HIRES HOTEL SUITE FOR CONVENTION

Governor Will Receive Delegates and Supporters, but Has No Money for a Campaign.

Gov. Major, who has been in St. Louis all week on personal business, said last night, at the Jefferson, that he had engaged a suite in the hotel to receive delegates to the Democratic national convention and others who were interested in his campaign for the nomination for Vice President.

The Governor denied a report published yesterday that he intended to open headquarters. He said that he had no campaign fund and that he had neither solicited nor received any money to aid in his campaign.

Mrs. Major and her niece, Miss Elsie Smith, arrived from Jefferson City Friday and joined the Governor. They are shopping and, with the Governor, will remain in St. Louis until tomorrow or Tuesday.

DENIES CHARGES MADE BY GIRL

H. L. Davis Says $10,000 Suit Is "Hold-Up."

Harry L. Davis of 5736 Julian avenue, treasurer of the Tradesman Publishing Co., against whom Miss Lotta Sommers of 4442 Olive street, a stenographer, employed by the Frisco Railroad, brought suit yesterday for $10,000 damages for a "malicious assault" she alleges Davis made on her June 23, 1915, last night denied the woman's charge against him. "I deny that charge absolutely," said Davis. "This whole thing is merely a holdup."

Davis said that he knew the girl, but that in his dealings with her nothing had ever occurred that could form the basis of a charge such as she has brought against him. He is married and has a daughter 19 years old and a son 15 years old.

Miss Sommers would not discuss her suit against Davis. Her attorney, Charles P. Johnson, also declined to discuss the case.

P. D. C. BALL SUES FOR $3700

P. D. C. Ball, president of the St. Louis Browns ball club, yesterday filed suit for $3700 damages against Mrs. Laura E. Battle of 4505 Berlin avenue and her grandson, E. Battle Smith, alleging that his automobile was wrecked in a collision with an auto owned by Mrs. Battle on the Lucas and Hunt roads, St. Louis County, April 16.

The petition recites that the Battle car was driven by Smith and was going between 35 and 40 miles an hour when the collision occurred. Carelessness on the part of Smith is declared to have been the cause. The amount sued for is the valuation placed by Ball upon his car.

PLAN TO ELIMINATE SPECIAL TAXES IN NEW REVENUE LAW

Estimated That Emergency Measure Still Will Bring in $17,000,000 in 6 Months.

INCREASE IN RECEIPTS

Will Be Nearly $100,000,000 More Than Expected When Congress Convened.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Administration leaders, in framing the new emergency revenue law which they hope to have effective July 1, plan to eliminate the special taxes on documents, telegrams, telephone messages, negotiable instruments, perfumery and cosmetics, the special taxes on tobacco, bankers and brokers and theaters and other places of amusement. With the elimination of these features the leaders estimate the law still will bring $17,000,000 between July and January, when it would expire by limitation.

The special taxes on beer, wines, etc., would be retained.

Income Tax Increase.

The new bill is designed to produce $100,000,000 from the income tax law, by increasing the surtax and making it apply to all incomes over $10,000, and to raise $85,000,000, or $90,000,000 more by a tax on munitions and an inheritance tax. The bill will embody the tariff commission plan, without substantial change.

Treasury Department officials estimate that the Government's receipts during the current fiscal year ending June 30 will be from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000 more than estimated when Congress convened. Revised estimates today showed the increases approximately as follows:

Income tax, from $85,000,000 to $120,000,000, an increase of $35,000,000 over the original estimate; ordinary internal revenue receipts from $272,000,000 to $305,000,000, an increase of $33,000,000; customs receipts, from $190,000,000 to $215,000,000, an increase of $25,000,000. With these three principal sources of revenue showing an indicated increase of $93,000,000 over the original estimates, officials believe minor sources will help bring the total increase close to $100,000,000.

Customs Receipts Rising.

Customs receipts show that the Government already has collected duties aggregating $185,446,442, only $1000 less than the sum collected this time last year and within $5,500,000 of the sum originally estimated for the entire year. Customs receipts have been steadily rising since last December, and now have passed $20,000,000 a month. Continuance of present conditions for another year, officials believe, will result in the customs receipts nearly reaching the level attained before the war.

SEVEN BOYS WIN SCHOLARSHIPS IN ST. LOUIS U. HIGH SCHOOL

There were 136 From Parochial Schools in Competition for the Prizes.

The St. Louis University High School department yesterday announced the winners in the competitive examinations held last week at the university among the boys graduating this year from the parish schools of St. Louis and vicinity. Seven scholarships were the prizes for which 136 boys competed.

The grades were: William Igoe, 98¼, St. Theresa's School, of 6217 St. Louis avenue; Charles Dahm, 95¾, St. Barbara's School, of 5932A Plymouth avenue; David Moran, 95¼, Immaculate Conception School, of 2642 Allen avenue; Michael Knecht, 94, St. John Baptist School, of 4367 Delor street; Robert McCormack, 93, Holy Name School, of 4319 Warne avenue; Daniel Sheerin, 92¾, Maplewood, of 2603 Arthur avenue; John Ollinger, 92¼, St. Liborius School, of 1421 Monroe street.

A rule of the contest is that "No school will receive more than one scholarship." This rule works a hardship this year on two students, Theodore Weber, son of John D. Weber, 6017 Bartmer avenue, though he made 95, could not win because another from St. Barbara's School had a higher average, and John P. Murphy Jr., of 2815 Park avenue, whose average was 94, was surpassed by a classmate of the Immaculate Conception School.

MAN BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN DROWNED IN MERAMEC RIVER

Went in Swimming and His Clothing Is Found on the Bank—Search for the Body.

Charles Werstein, 25 years old, who made his home up to a few months ago with his cousin, John Bender, at 1432 Mallinckrodt street, this city, is believed to have drowned yesterday in the Meramec River near Eureka, Mo.

Werstein, who worked in Eureka, went fishing with John Bender Jr., who was visiting him. At 11 o'clock he told Bender he was going swimming. To avoid interference with Bender's fishing, he went some distance away. He did not return and Bender, searching for him, found his clothing on the bank.

Coroner Bopp was notified and went to the scene and a search was begun for Werstein's body.

GROSSMAN ELECTED SECRETARY

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 21.—E. M. Grossman of St. Louis was elected secretary of the Associated Harvard Clubs by the 800 members who attended the twentieth annual meeting here. Frederick W. Burlingame of Chicago, Ill., was elected president. The vice presidents elected were: Central Division, P. W. Herrick, Cleveland, O.; Western Division, H. A. Leekley, Muskogee, Ok.; Southern Division, P. S. McDonald, Memphis, Tenn., and G. C. Kimball of Pittsburg, treasurer.

The meeting closed last night with a banquet at which Major-General Leonard A. Wood was one of the principal speakers.

ARMY BILL, PASSED BY HOUSE, GOES TO THE PRESIDENT

He Has Signified That He Would Approve It — Carries by Vote of 349 to 25.

PROVISIONS OF MEASURE

Secretary Baker Already Has Taken Steps to Carry Out Its Features.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—By a vote of 349 to 25 the House today adopted the conference report on the army bill as previously adopted by the Senate. The measure now goes to the President, who has signified he would approve it. Steps already have been taken by Secretary Baker to carry out its provisions.

To complete the main elements of the program of preparedness on which the administration plans to spend more than a billion dollars within the next five years, Congress still has to perfect and pass the naval bill, embodying the navy increases and the fortifications bill, which includes provision for most of the equipment of the increased army.

Summarized, the army bill provides:

The forces of the United States shall consist of:

A—The regular army, including 64 regiments of infantry, 25 regiments of cavalry, 21 regiments of field artillery, 5 additional regiments of engineers, 2 battalions of mounted engineers, 93 companies of coast artillery, and 8 aero squadrons, with the necessary signal troops and departmental and administrative organizations, involving a total peace strength of 11,000 officers and 175,000 men of combatant troops, and 11,000 oficers and 200,000 men of all branches. The war strength under the regular organization would be 11,500 officers and 225,000 men.

Provides for Volunteer Army.

B—The volunteer army, comprising men trained at student and senior training camps under the Plattsburg idea, these camps to be designated by the Secretary of War, who is authorized to make whatever regulations he deems necessary and to supply students with transportation, uniforms, equipments, accoutrements, tentage, bedding and subsistence during their course of instruction.

C—The officers' reserve corps, composed of men commissioned by the President following examination as reserve officers of the United States, who shall be available for service when called upon, shall receive full pay when called into service, and who may be given a course of instruction at the higher military schools of the United States when designated, receiving full pay and privileges of their rank when receiving such instruction. The officers reserve provisions, designed to furnish approximately 50,000 effificers in five years, also extended to all colleges offering a military course as a part of the graduation requirements and giving them the advantages of the Morrell Acts in the matter of assignment of regular army officers for instruction purposes and the necessary non-commissioned officers. Graduates from such courses may be assigned as student officers with regular army organizations and while so serving may receive $100 a month, such service not to exceed six months.

Enlisted Reserve Corps.

(D) The enlisted reserve corps, consisting of regularly enlisted men and noncommissioned officers of the army who shall have served their three years with the colors of their seven-year term and shall have passed into the reserve, or shall have passed into the reserve after one year of service on the certification of their efficiency by their troop, battery or company commander. While in the reserve each man will receive $24 a year, payable semi-annually, and if called to the colors before the expiration of his term of service he shall serve for at least one year, and this shall not operate to shorten his term of service. If called to the colors the reservist shall receive a bonus equal to $3 for every month of service in the reserve. In addition to those furloughed to the reserve, regularly discharge enlisted men of the army are made eligible upon proving their fitness for military duty. The President is authorized to mobilize the reserve in whole or in part at any time for instruction purposes, the Government paying the necessary expenses of the men and full field pay.

(E) The national guard, which is "federalized" by requiring every beneficiary of the provisions of the act to take oath to support the President of the United States whenever called upon, by offering Federal pay to officers and men on the general basis of about one-fifth the pay for similar grades in the regular army—except during field encampments and maneuvers, when full pay is granted—by requiring the selection of officers under requirements approved by the Secretary of War and by increasin the Federal allowances for equipment, accoutrements, etc.

Besides the personal increases, the measure provides for a government nitrate manufacturing plant, to cost not more than $20,000,000.

In explaining the features of the bill Chairman Hay of the Military Affairs Committee said it provided for 175,000 fighting men.

"It has been stated," he said, "that this bill carries an enlisted force of 206,000 men and the inference has been drawn that they are all to be put in the army at once. As a matter of fact the increase of 35,000 fighting men is to be provided for in five annual increments, and the increase in the officers, with the exception of those officers who are to be used for the purpose of training the national guard and also to be added in five annual increments So, as a matter of fact, this bill provides for the next fiscal year, an increase of about 12,000 enlisted men and between 3000 and 4000 officers.

"The bill provides a standing army as large as can be recruited in this country under the volunteer system. It provides an organization which in time of war can be increased to an army of 216,000 men."

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts wanted to know if the bill increased the enlisted force of the army 12,000 men up to the first of July, 1917.

"About that, yes," replied Hay, "plus the 20,000 that were authorized in the joint resolution. We have on the statute books, placed there two years ago, a bill known as the Volunteer Army Bill, which would enable the President when authorized by Congress to raise as large an army as he wants if we should go to war. This is not an emergency bill, but a bill for future preparedness.

"This bill as far as the personnel is concerned would increase the expense of the army about $25,000,000. I think the army bill will be about $150,000,000 this year, but we are providing for a large reserve of ordnance, guns, ammunition and machine guns"

Hay Assails "Ignorant Editors."

Hay assailed "ignorant newspaper editors" for "criticism of the bill."

Representative Coady of Maryland asked Hay if there was any truth in the published report that a proviso in the bill had been put in for the specific purpose of providing a place for Judge A. C. Carson of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands and a native of Virginia, as Civilian Judge Advocate of the army, and asked if Judge Carson was not the only person who could qualify for that office under the bill.

"Yes," retorted Hay, "if that will give you any satisfaction."

Representative McKenzie of Illinois, Republican, supported the conference report, but Representative Gardner, Republican, insisted that the bill was so shorn as to be acceptable even to pacifists.

"If you want soldiers in time of peace go out and pay for them," he said. "Abandon the pterodactylic notion that Uncle Sam can get something for nothing. Men are not going to enlist for the pleasure of fighting cactus bushes and taking orders from boy officers, unless they get at least the pay of a 14-year-old girl in a sweated industry.

"For a nation as great as ours to support an army no bigger than we have today is as sensible as for Ty Cobb to attempt to hit Walter Johnson with a match instead of a bat."

Mann Attacks Bill.

Republican Leader Mann attacked the bill as inadequate and predicted that if war ever came "history would never tire of telling of the faithlessness of those who voted for the conference report."

Republicans who voted against the bill were Britten, Wheeler, Mann, Gardner, Gillette, Rodgers, Tinkham, Walsh, Guernsey, Hadley, Humphrey, Johnson (Washington), Husted, Platt, Sanford, Moore, Morgan, Nelson, Five Democrats, Buchanan (Illinois), Tavenner, Johnson (Kentucky), Thomas and Randall, voted against it as did London, Socialist and Schall, Progressive. Guernsey voted for the bill on the second roll call and later had his vote changed.

GERMAN BOAT U-18 ATTACKED SUSSEX, WASHINGTON IS TOLD

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Information received by the State Department from entente allies' sources, and made known for the first time today, is that the German submarine U-18, commanded by Lieut. Otto Steinbrink, was the submersible which destroyed the channel liner Sussex and brought the crisis between the United States and Germany to a climax.

News dispatches from Paris soon after the Sussex was torpedoed said the submarine commander had been decorated by Emperor William.

ERUPTION OF THE HAWAIIAN VOLCANO, MAUNA LOA, ENDS

Clouds of Smoke and Steam Rose to Height of About 20,000 Feet.

HONOLULU, May 20.—Positive information that the eruption of Manna Loa volcano, on the island of Hawaii, had subsided reached Honolulu tonight from Prof. Thomas A. Jaggar Jr., by radio from the Kilauea observatory, of which he is director. Prof. Jaggar reported that all signs of the eruption had passed away. Kilauea, he said, was unusually active and three earthquake shocks were felt between 1 and 3 p. m. today at Pahala. No damage was done.

The clouds of steam and smoke from Mauna Loa last night and today rose to an estimated height of 20,000 feet and were visible for hundreds of miles.

In former days, when Mauna Loa burst out, every five or ten years, its crater, 12,000 feet across, poured out floods of lava, destroying valuable forests, but of late the lava discharge has been neither great nor destructive, and the activity of the mountain is of interest mainly from a scientific and from a spectacular viewpoint. Unlike Kilauea, Mauna Loa is extremely difficult of access.

Kilauea, known locally as Hawaii's "tame volcano," is situated on the eastern slope of Mauna at an altitude of 4400 feet. It is one of the largest active volcanoes in the world. Within the memory of many persons living in the islands Kilauea erupted with great violence, sending a great river of molten lava down the mountain in the direction of Hilo, the chief city of the island. It seemed inevitable that Hilo would be destroyed. Princess Ruth, reputed among the natives to have great influence with Pelee, Goddess of Fire, hurried to Hilo, knelt in front of the moving stream of fire and prayed to the goddess to spare the city. Miraculously, it seemed to the natives, the river of fire split and the resulting twin streams passed to right and left. The lava came to within half a mile of Hilo.

Since that time the crater has never overflowed, though frequently the fire pit is brimful.

The crater of Manua Loa is near the summit of the volcano of that name, which is 13,675 feet high. When in violent eruption the smoke can be seen from Honolulu, nearly 200 miles away.

BOY SHOT BY GIRL WITH RIFLE

Charles Everett, 8 years old, was shot accidentally through the right thigh, Friday afternoon, while playing in front of the home of his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Roseman, 71 North Harrison avenue, Kirkwood, by Josephine Jenkins, 12 years old, a negress, who was shooting at a target in an adjoining yard.

The shot was fired from a rifle of small calibre and passed through the child's thigh. His condition was said yesterday to be serious. The Jenkins girl was not arrested.

AUTOIST WHO HIT UNLIGHTED DEBRIS LOSES 7-YEAR SUIT

Judgment of $430 Awarded to D. L. Solomon Reversed by Court of Appeals.

After nearly seven years of litigation, the St. Louis Court of Appeals, in a decision handed down yesterday by Judge Allen, overruled the action of the Circuit Court, which had awarded a judgment of $430 to David L. Solomon in his suit against Wayne A. Duncan, the Urbauer-Atwood Heating Co. and Morris Schweig as the result of an automobile accident, Dec. 2, 1909, when Solomon, in his automobile, ran into a pile of debris on Delmar boulevard, near Aubert avenue.

Judge Allen ruled that, although it was night and the pile of debris had no warning light on it, Solomon was chargeable with contributory negligence because he did not keep the speed of his machine under such control that he could stop quickly upon encountering an obstruction. The Judge quoted many similar decisions in other states.

Auto Badly Damaged.

Solomon in the lower court testified that he and a friend named Lukens were in the automobile, when they ran into the debris, on top of which was an iron radiator of the kind used for steam heating. The automobile ran upon the debris, struck the radiator and was badly damaged. Solomon and Lukens, testified the machine was going about eight miles an hour. Solomon said it was a foggy night, and, though he had powerful headlights he could not see the debris until too late to stop.

Other testimony indicated to Judge Allen that the automobile was going faster than eight miles an hour. It was shown that the force of the impact with the pile of debris was so great that Lukens was thrown from the automobile with such force that he slid 20 feet on the wet street.

In his opinion Judge Allen said he was not compelled to accept the statements of Solomon and Lukens as to the speed of the machine, but was only called upon to determine whether the driver of the car had exercised due care in view of the peculiar weather conditions.

The responsibility for the accident, he said, must rest on Solomon, who had testified that, because of the fog, he could not see far ahead. No automobilist, Judge Allen said, can be justified in rushing recklessly into the dark under such conditions and it plainly was Solomon's duty to run so slowly that, even through the fog, he could have seen any obstruction in time to stop his car.

In his decision Judge Allen called attention to the fact that, according to the testimony, Solomon and Lukens had spent the evening downtown, where they had "something to eat and something to drink" at McTague's cafe and that on the way west they stopped at Cicardi's, "another cafe where food and drink are served." They testified that they did not enter Cicardi's, but only stopped there.

Roy Britton, president of the Automobile Club of St. Louis, when told of the decision said it probably would be indorsed by many automobile owners, who recognized the fact that the carelessness of drivers often was the cause of serious accidents.

HULK OF OLD SHIP UNCOVERED

Thought to Have Foundered in North River 100 Years Ago.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Subway workers boring beneath the North River today uncovered the hulk of an old ship which is believed to have foundered about 100 years ago.

The craft was loaded with a heavy ore thought to be tin or lead. It had sunk through the mud of the river bottom to a depth of about 34 feet.

4 LIGGETT HEIRS TO GET $100,000 YEARLY INCOMES

Court Expected to Give Three Daughters and Grandson Control of Fortunes This Week.

HELD IN TRUST 23 YEARS

Estate of $6,000,000 Has Increased Through Investments in St. Louis Realty.

Three St. Louis women, and a young man now living in New York, are awaiting a decree by the Circuit Court, which probably will be entered this week, to come into complete control of fortunes which provide a yearly income of $100,000 each.

The women are the daughters of John E Liggett who died in 1897, after acquiring a fortune in the tobacco business. The settlement of his estate at this time is due to a provision of his will, dated June 5, 1893, requiring that his estate be held in trust until his grandson, John E. Liggett, Jr., became 30 years of age. A petition for the distribution of the estate was filed Friday in the Circuit Court. At the time of Liggett's death his estate was estimated at about $6,000,000.

Since that time the estate has increased in value so that Charles Wiggins, one of the trustees of the estate said yesterday that the three daughters and the grandson will have property that will produce an income of more than $100,000 annually for each.

The St. Louis women inheriting, each, one-fourth of the estate are Mrs. John Fowler of 35 Westmoreland place, Mrs. Charles Wiggins of 23 Portland place and Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick of 33 Portland place. Their husbands are the three trustees under the will.

At the time of Liggett's death he left his entire estate in charge of his wife, providing for the appointment of trustees at her death. The estate consisted of stock in the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco Co., cash, notes, stocks, bonds and real estate. The real estate was in St. Louis chiefly and the will provided that the trustees might make any sales of real estate or stock that they believed wise.

John Fowler, one of the trustees told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the trustees had endeavored to carry out Liggett's injunction in his will that "all monies are to be carefully reinvested in good securities."

As a result the trustees, since the death of Mrs. Liggett have acquired the ownership of the ground of the Hotel Jefferson, the Century Building, the Brown Shoe Co., the N. O. Nelson Manufacturing Co., the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., the Frisco Building and the International Life Building.

Fowler said that all of these investments have been made since the death of Liggett, from money secured from the income of the estate or the sale of other securities. The Century Building lot is valued at $877,500, the Hotel Jefferson site at $520,000, the Brown Shoe Co. site at $1,003,910, the Internation Life site at $460,000, the Ely & Walker site at $914,328 and the Frisco site at $1,010,000. In addition the trustees list the present holdings of stocks and bonds at upward of $500,000.

Wiggins a Trustee 11 Years.

Charles Wiggins has been a trustee of the estate for 11 years, following his marriage to Mrs. Ella D. Scott, whose husband was named originally as one of the three trustees. He said that the trustees in investing the money of the esate so largely in St. Louis realty believed they were following the wishes of Ligett to keep his money invested in this city.

Wiggins said that the estate has provided the money to erect several of the buildings upon the property acquired by the trustees and that arrangements have been made that the occupants of the property may acquire title to the buildings whenever they are willing to do so.

ILLNESS HASTENS WEDDING

Couple Married Last Night Had Planned Ceremony for June 1.

Miss Ruth Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Walton of 730 Belt avenue and Roland Hoerr of 3510 Shenandoah avenue were married at the Walton home at 8:30 last night. The Rev. Georg R. Dodson, pastor of the Church of Unity, Park and Armstrong avenue, officiated.

They had originally planned to be married on June 1, but advanced the date on account of illness of John Hoerr, brother of the bridegroom. The wedding was attended by only members of the two families. After the ceremony Hoerr and his bride departed for New York and other Eastern points for their honeymoon. They will return to St. Louis about June 1.

FED 4 DAYS THROUGH TUBE

Man Injured When Auto Strikes Car Dies at City Hospital.

John Hetje, 29 years old, a boilermaker, of 2206A North Market street, whose skull was fractured in an automobile accident at Garrison and Cass avenues Tuesday night, died at the city hospital shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon without having regained consciousness.

Hetje was unconscious more than 80 hours, and it was necessary to feed him milk and eggs, with the aid of a tube, through an incision made in his stomach. He was kept alive four days in this way, but there was little hope of his recovery. Five others were injured in the accident in which Hetje was hurt, but all have recovered or are out of danger. The automobile struck a Cass car.

DELEGATES TO CONVENTION TO BE WELL ENTERTAINED

Visitors to Be Given Moonlight Excursion and Be Elaborately Banqueted.

MANY AUTOS AT DISPOSAL

On River Boat Ride Negroes Will Sing Old Songs and Have a Craps Game.

When the Committee on Arrangements of the Democratic National Committee meets in St. Louis, June 2, to consider details of plans for the Democratic national convention, which opens June 14, it will find that the St. Louis Citizens' Committee has made more complete and comprehensive plans for the entertainment of the delegates and distinguished visitors than any other convention city ever attempted.

The Committee on Arrangements will be asked by the Citizens Committee to designate at least parts of two afternoons and two evenings for the entertainment of the delegates and alternates. Plans have been completed, subject to the approval of the Democratic National Committee, for the entertainment of the members of the committee at Sunset Inn, Monday night, June 12. An elaborate dinner will be given to the National Committee by the Citizens Committee, of which James E. Smith is chairman, W. F. Saunders, secretary and Richard S. Hawes, treasurer. Smith will be chairman of the special committee which has been appointed to have charge of the National Committee at this dinner and entertainment.

Moonlight River Excursion.

All the delegates to the convention will be guests of the Citizens' Committee at a supper to be given at five different points in St. Louis and St. Louis County upon some evening designated by the National Committee, and they will also be guests of the Citizens' Committee on a moonlight river excursion the following night.

Smith yesterday appointed J. E. Turner of the West End Business Men's Association, Richard S. Hawes, Charles E. Golterman, William E. Protzmann and George E. Black as a committee to make arrangements with Sunset Inn, the Riverside Club, the Century Boat Club, Cafferata and Cicardi's, for a supper for the delegates.

Smith said yesterday he did not know on what evening the supper would be given, as that would depend upon the arrangements made by the national committe or the convention. It is expected that the supper will follow a trip to the baseball game and an automobile tour of the city.

The moonlight steamboat excursion will be made one of the big events of the convention entertainment, Smith said yesterday. To many of the visitors the Mississippi River holds a sentimental interest, and it is expected that virtually all the delegates and their wives will be glad of an opportunity to spend an evening on the excursion steamer.

A dinner will be served on the boat free to the guests, and there will be a band on the upper deck, and an orchestra to play dance music on the main deck. A double negro quartet will sing the old-time river songs, and a dozen negro roustabouts will shoot craps on the lower deck, just as they do on the packet steamers between landings.

Many Autos Have Been Offered.

A committee comprised of John S. Blake, Street Commissioner Talbert and Jacob D. von Mauer has been appointed to select a route for the automobile tour of St. Louis and St. Louis County. Enough automobiles have been tendered to the committee to take every delegate and alternate over the houte. Robert E. Lee, Stephen A. Martin, Harris H. Johnston, George B. Hild and George T. Parker are making the arrangements for the steamboat excursion.

The Citizens' Committee already has made hotel arrangements for the delegations from 42 states, and Smith has sent a letter to the national committeemen and state chairmen in the other states to have the hotel reservations made for their delegations without further delay.

Smith said yesterday that there would be ample hotel accommodations for all delegates and visitors who wish to go to hotels. The Conventions Bureau is tabulating information as to boarding and rooming houses, where guests will be accommodated, and it will have an office at Union Station during the convention so that those who desire rooms outside of hotels may be sent direct to them from the station.

The members of the Young Men's Progressive City Association have volunteered their services to the Citizens' Committee. They will be assigned to duty at Union Station to meet all visitors and find out whether they have hotel reservations. The visitors who have not made their reservations will be directed to hotels where they may be accommodated, or to rooming or boarding houses.

Chief of Police Young was asked several weeks ago to make arrangements for the assignment of the police, and he is working out his plans.

In addition to the entertainment features that have been provided, special committees have been appointed to entertain the delegates and alternates from each state. These committees will have the use of as many automobiles as they require for the entertainment of delegates.

The care exercised in the selection of committees for the entertainment of visitors is illustrated in the fact that Chairman Smith has appointed men who can speak Spanish to entertain the delegates from Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and other Spanish-speaking possessions. J. B. Filsinger is chairman of this committee.

The Citizens' Committee will also provide the chaplains for the convention if the National Committee desires.

The Citizens Committee has not yet been notified by the National Committee how many seats will be allotted to it for the benefit of the subscribers to the $100,000 convention fund. Chairman Smith said yesterday he expected the committee would be allotted from 1800 to 2000 tickets. These will be apportioned, on an equitable basis, among the 4267 contributors to the convention fund.

The ticket question is causing the Citizens Committee and National Committeeman Edward F. Goltra considerable trouble. Goltra will not know until after the meeting of the Arrangements Committee how many tickets he will be allotted. The demand for tickets has been extraordinary, both upon the Citizens Committee and Goltra, despite the fact that the convention is not expected to be very exciting.

The national committee has indicated that the box seats will be reserved for distinguished guests, including members of the Cabinet, United States Senators, Governors and members of Congress, with probably a few boxes for the use of the local committees.

There are seats for 11,000 in the Coliseum. Only delegates, alternates and newspaper correspondents, and platform guests, will be admitted to the arena floor of the Coliseum. Spectators will occupy the boxes, balconies and galleries.

William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is chairman of the Committee on Arrangements The other members of the committee are Clark Howell, George; Charles Boeschenstein, Illinois; Thomas Taggart, Indiana; W. W. March, Iowa; Robert Ewing, Louisiana; E. O. Wood, Michigan; Edward F. Goltra, Missouri; J. Bruce Kremer, Montana; Eugene E. Reed, New Hampshire; Robert Hudspeth, New Jersey; Norman E. Mack, New York; E. H. Moore, Ohio, and H. S. Cummings, vice chairman of the committee; Rolla Wells, treasurer, and the secretary.

Nearly every business and civic organization and the State societies have volunteered to aid in the work of entertaining the delegates and visitors.

10TH CONTINUANCE TO BE LAST FOR C. K. D. WALSH, JUDGE SAYS

Court Declares He Must Appear When Speeding Case Is Called on June 3. Negress Aiming at Target Wounds Charles Everett of Kirkwood.

C. K. Dickson Walsh, son of Julius S. Walsh, banker and Terminal Association magnate, will have to appear June 3, in the Court of Criminal Correction, to settle a case in which he is charged with speeding, Judge Clark declared yesterday, after he had granted the tenth continuance in the case. The judge said it was the last extension of time he would grant in the case, which has been in his court since Dec. 9 last, and in which Walsh has pleaded guilty.

Walsh was arrested Nov. 23 on Lindell boulevard, between Spring avenue and Whittier street. The next day, Police Judge Hogan fined him $50 and costs, about $14 He appealed to the Court of Criminal Correction, and continuances were granted on Dec. 9, Jan. 6, Feb. 17, March 9, March 16, April 15, April 18, April 29, May 6, May 13, and yesterday.

William E. Baird, his attorney, filed a plea of guilty in his client's behalf March 16, but a stay of execution was granted for 30 days, and the continuances since that time have been in the nature of a stay of execution.

The reason given by Baird, in obtaining most of the continuances, as that Walsh was in New York. He filed a physician's certificate with the court Jan 6, that Walsh was being treated in New York for spinal adjustment, and would be unable to return to St. Louis for several weeks.

Yesterday's continuance, Judge Clark said, was granted because Baird was busy with a case in the Circuit Court. He said Baird telephoned to him that Julius S. Walsh had refused to pay the fine, and that Dickson Walsh would have to pay it himself. Dickson Walsh is 44 years old.

62 YOUNG GIRLS WITH BATTLE BANNERS TO MARCH WITH G. A. R.

Decatur Arranges Novel Feature for State Encampment to Open Tuesday.

DECATUR, Ill., May 21.—Carrying banners on which the story of the battles of the Civil War will be emblazoned, young girls, many of them daughters of veterans, will take their stations Wednesday along the route the G. A. R. State encampment parade here will follow.

As the procession passes each street corner the girls will fall in with the comrades, gradually adding to the ranks until 62 banners will flutter as they march, detailing each important battle in its turn.

The encampment will open Tuesday and close Thursday. Arrangements have been made to accommodate at least 10,000 visitors.

OPPOSES ROCKING BABY TO SLEEP

Educator Says It Creates Appetite for Vaudeville and Noisy Fun.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 20.—"Rocking the baby to sleep, feeding him at irregular hours, paves the way to a life of nervous restlessness and futile fussing," said M. C. Potter, Superintendent of Schools, today at the Baby week exhibit. "If you want your child to grow up with an eager appetite for vaudeville and noisy fun, rock him to sleep. But if you want him to grow up into strong manhood, with complete control of his nerves," continued Potter, "put him to sleep on a bed that does not move, give him plenty of fresh air and feed him at regular times—not between meals."

In the education of a child, he declared, the kindergarten year in the most important.

MISSOURIANS INDORSE FEEHAN

Representatives Want St. Louisans on Court of Claims.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Missouri delegation, with the exception of Representative Borland, who is out of the city, filed an indorsement with Attorney-General Gregory this morning on behalf of Edward Feehan of St. Louis, whose name has been submitted for appointment as Judge of the United States Court of Claims. The Representatives acted at the request of Representative W. L. Igoe.

Senator Reed also called in person on the Attorney-General with Igoe and urged Feehan's appointment. Senator Stone had previously filed his indorsement of Feehan.

DEBS ASSERTS HE'D HANG BILLY SUNDAY HIGHER THAN A KITE

Former Socialist Nominee for President Passes Day in St. Louis With Friends.

"A HARLEQUIN FOR PAY"

Says 8-Hour Movement Among Railroad Men Is a Most Humanizing One.

Eugene V. Debs, former labor leader and lecturer on labor and Socialistic subjects, passed yesterday in St. Louis with friends while waiting for a train to take him to Terre Haute, Ind., his home. Debs is running for Congress on the Socialist ticket in the Fifth Indiana District. He has just completed a six-weeks' tour of the coast. In many campaigns he was the Socialist presidential nominee.

While dining with Phil Wagner, owner of the National Rip Saw, and Harry Tichenor, editor of the Melting Pot, Debs took occasion to express his contempt for Billy Sunday, who was conducting a revival in Kansas City during his stay there.

"I noticed while in Kansas City," Debs said, "that a good many large employers of labor seemed solicitous for their employes to hear Sunday. Now, when employers of labor, those who make wealth by the sweat and blood of employes, begin to concern themselves about the employes' spiritual welfare it is time to look out.

"Prince of Vulgarians."

"This harlequin for pay, Sunday, is the prince of vulgarians. If I had my way I'd hang him higher than a kite. If I said half the things he says to the poor mits of humanity that he bulldozes at his meetings they would lynch me, but Sunday can rave and snarl and jump on chairs and consign his hearers to hell with impunity.

"All this is done by Sunday in the name of Christ, and then he stuffs $23,000 down in his pocket. Imagine Christ on earth preaching for pay. Christ never hobnobbed with the rich in his life. Sunday sent a man to me to tell me he wanted to see me. I told him to tell Sunday to go h—."

Debs believes that the outlook for labor in this country is most promising. He said labor was awakening and was beginning to speak and to think. Debs, who had a hand in the organization of most of the railroad brotherhoods, is in favor of the eight-hour day now being demanded by the railroad workers of the country. He said the eight-hour demand was a most humanizing movement. He declared it was in harmony with the progressive spirit of the times, and that men, particularly railroad men, should not be required to work more than eight hours.

"The tendency to reduce the hours of labor," he said, "making it possible for all to work and all to have enough leisure time to enjoy relaxation, is but a movement for the people to know the real meaning of civilized life.

Economic and Moral Question.

"If the railroads will exclude from their financial operations the watered stocks, the fictitious investments which never have been made, they will have no difficulty in meeting the demand of their employes. It ought to be considered in this connection that this is not merely an economic question, but a moral question; it is notorious that the railroad employes have been overworked and consequently unfitted in many ways to rise to their full stature and express the highest order of citizenship.

"With reduced hours and resultant leisure, these men will become more competent and reliable as employes and they will certainly reach a higher standard of manhood and citizenship.

"Leisure is as necessary to life as work, and unless a man may enjoy both, he will certainly fail in his duty to himself, his family and his State."

CARRANZA TO SEND U. S. A NEW NOTE ON BORDER SITUATION

Indications Are It Will Be Friendly and May Propose Definite Understanding.

MEXICANS NOT SO BITTER

Obregon's Report on the Conference With Scott Creates a Better Feeling.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The State Department was officially advised today that it might expect soon a new note from Gen. Carranza regarding the border situation. Indications are that it will be of a friendly character and it is thought possible Gen. Carranza may propose the framing of a definite understanding along the lines of the unwritten agreement reached by the military conference at El Paso between Gens. Scott, Funston and Obregon.

Special Agent Rogers at Mexico City reported today that there were evidences in many quarters of increasing friendliness toward the United States. Optimistic expectations as to the purport of the new note are founded on these statements. Officials here believe the change is directly due to Gen. Obregon's report of his discussions with the American chief of staff and border commander.

Rodgers reported that Mexican officials felt that the critical stage resulting from the Columbus raid had passed, and that tension was greatly relieved in the Carranza capital.

Gen. Scott told Gen. Obregon at El Paso that American troops would not be withdrawn from Mexico so long as danger of new raids existed and an understanding was reached that American and Mexican troops would co-operate in Northern Mexico until such time as the American forces could be safely withdrawn.

Gen. Obregon issued orders to Gen. Trevino to begin clearing up the territory south of the American forces at Namiequipa and placed 10,000 troops at his disposal. Reports from the border and from Mexican towns indicate that Trevino is carrying out his instructions promptly. He was said to have reached Chihuahua City in person today, prepared to occupy territory recently held by Pershing's men, but taking care not to so dispose his forces as to allow any possibility of a clash with American troopers.

Langhorne and Sibley Columns to Unite and Return to Border.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 20.—Major George Langhorne and the two troops of the eighth cavalry he led 135 miles south of Boquillas in pursuit of the bandits that raided the Texas border, were fifteen miles beyond the little command of Col. Sibley today. Col. Sibley reported to Gen. Funston that he had gone into camp forty miles south of the border and would wait there until Major Langhorne came up, when the entire force would return to the American side of the line.

Gen. Funston today asked the War Department for more coast artillery for duty where the line from one end of the "band" to the other is 390 miles long Fifty Per Cent of New Mexico National Guard Physically Unfit.

COLUMBUS, N. M., May 20.—Physical inspection of the New Mexico National Guard, which is rapidly nearing completion, has disclosed that approximately 50 per cent of the militiamen examined are unfit for service, it was announced tonight. As a result, mustering officers predicted that not more than two battalions of infantry and a battery of field artillery will be mustered into the United States army for border patrol.

H. T. Herring, Adjutant-General, left for San Antonio for conference with Gen. Funston in an attempt to have the physical examination waived.

Chihuahua Pleased With News of Withdrawal of Troops.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, May 19, via El Paso Junction, May 20.—News that a regiment of American troops had been withdrawn from Mexico was received with delight here.

Gen. Jacinto Trevino, who arrived in Chihuahua City today to take charge of the campaign against the bandits of Chihuahua and Coahuila, declared that now he had a free hand and he will be able speedily to eradicate the bandit menace. He said he hoped Americans would not misconstrue the northward movements of his troops.

Sixth Cavalry Goes From Columbus to Big Bend District.

EL PASO, Tex., May 20.—Movement of the Sixth Cavalry from Columbus, N. M., to the Big Bend district, for the announced purpose of reinforcing the border patrol was begun tonight. The entire detachment should detrain at Marathon by Monday morning, and from there will ride 95 miles to Boquillas, its point of distribution. The censorship was on at Columbus today, and news of the troop movement came from railroad officials. The fresh activity of the Columbus censor was not clearly understood here. Military observers conjectured, however, that it might have connection with further movements northward by units of Gen. Pershing's expeditionary force.

Marion Letcher, American Consul at Chihuahua City, who came to the border several days ago under orders from the State Department, left for Washington this afternoon, to report to the Government on conditions in his consular district.

The body of Sergt. Harry G. Furman, who was shot on Mexican soil by a Mexican customs guard, Thursday, was shipped to Brooklyn, N. Y., late today, after a military funeral.

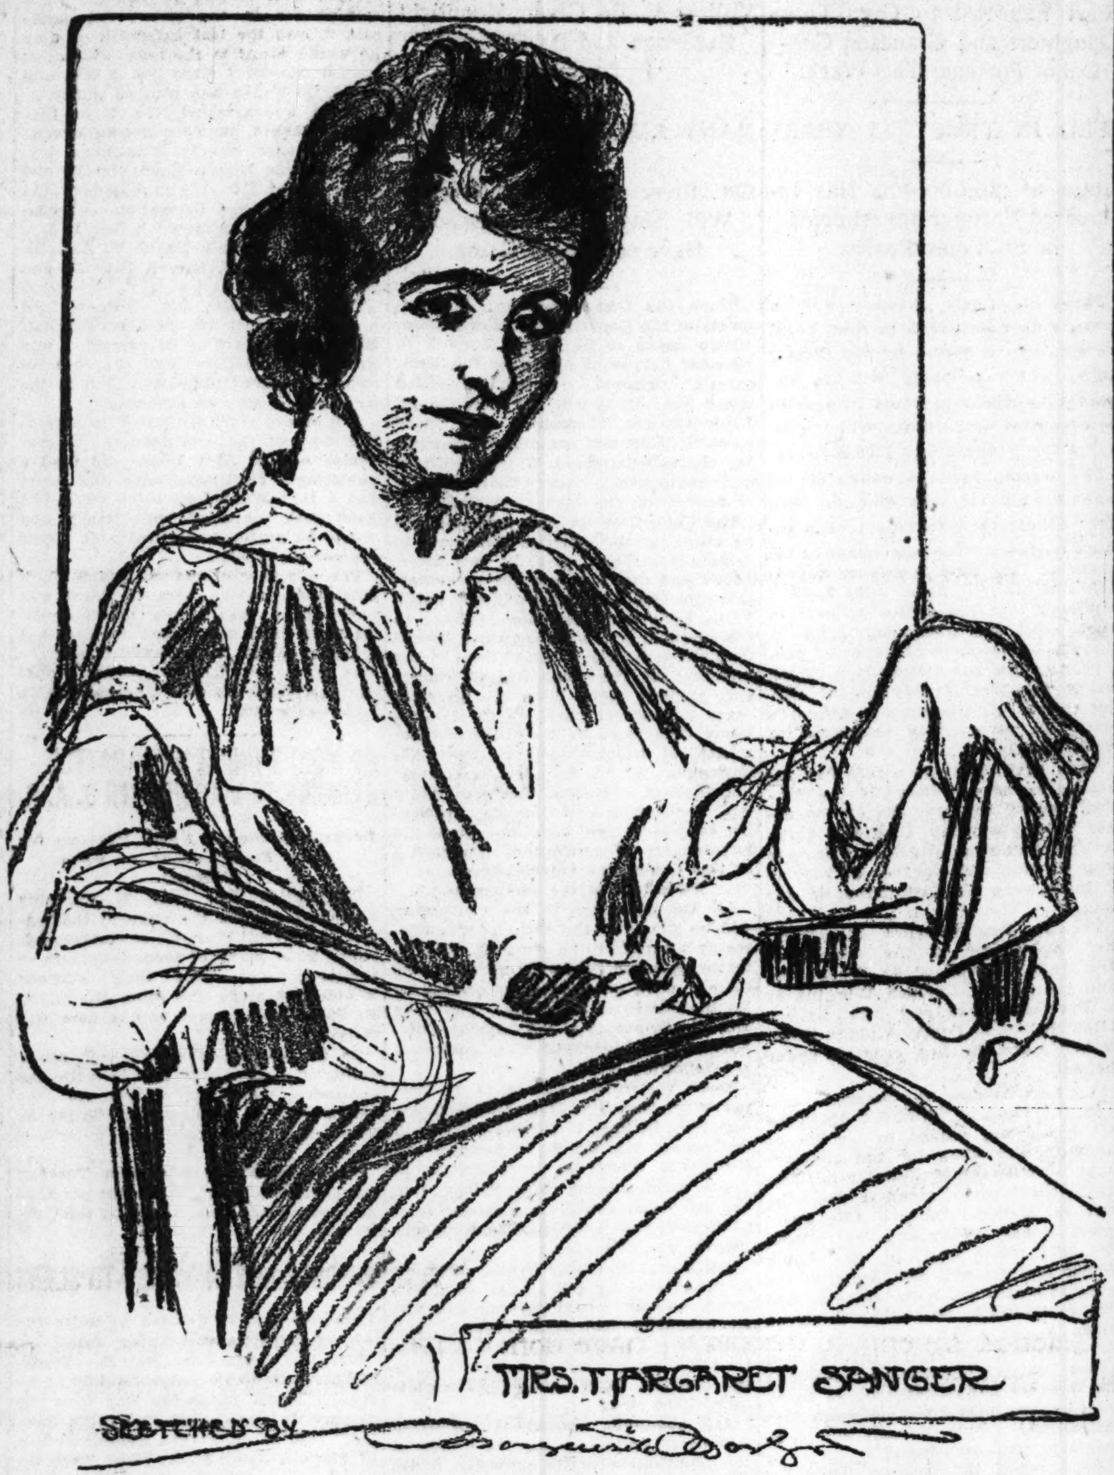
Mrs. Sanger, Who Defies Federal Law, Outlines Her Work for Birth Control Among the Poor

Has Formed a National League With 1000 Members



New York Woman Tells Marguerite Martyn of Her Experiences and Why She Is Pushing Forth Her Theory, That She Hopes Will Be a Benefit, Despite the Possibility of Going to Jail.

By Marguerite Martyn.

ALL alone, defying a Federal law; all alone, arrayed against a Biblical injunction; all alone, attempting to erase a point of ethics from the strict code of the medical profession; all alone, denouncing a tradition so firmly established in society that none dared oppose it save in whispers—stood Mrs. Margaret Sanger, outspoken and unafraid, when she began disseminating information on birth control and advocating the limitation of families.

She stood for a time with a jail sentence dangling over her head in New York City. But that was months ago.

Thus far she has kept out of jail. Thus far she has seen the National Birth Control League of 1000 members, men and women, of the medical or allied professions, come into being through her teaching, and thus far in her first lecture tour she has left in every city visited a committee and gained the indorsement of social organizations of highest standing. At the National Conference of Charities in Indianapolis the introduction of her subject and its indorsement by most of that serious-minded group was regarded as a most important development of the conference.

Coming to St. Louis to give three lectures—Monday night at Victoria Theater, Tuesday noon at the City Club, Tuesday evening, the Town Club. Mrs. Sanger is managed by a committee whose personnel is a mystery. They dare not stand beside her openly. But possibly that may be changed before she departs.

May Be Hailed as Pioneer.

FOLLOWING the progress of her endeavors over the few short months it looks as if Mrs. Sanger might be the fulfillment of a long-felt though unuttered demand. In years to come, who knows but that she may be hailed as a pioneer in an humanitarian field?

In years to come it may be history will have it that here was a woman especially endowed and especially called to the delivery of a message. Undoubtedly her personality has gone far to lend conviction of her sincerity.

Yet when I met her in her room at the Jefferson she did not seem exceptional in any particular.

She has small, delicately modeled, but not especially regular, features; a high, smooth brow, under a wealth of silky blue-black hair. Her hair and long dark lashes are most attractive. She has a calm, assured, unhurried manner. Her speech betrays the idiosyncrasy of dropping the final gs. As the publisher of her magazine, called the "Woman Rebel," you'd never identify her.

"Be sure to say that I am married and have three children," was her first remark. "My husband is an artist. When we were first married he still was having quite a struggle to get along. So I continued at my profession and we waited five years before we decided to have a baby.

Arms Yearned for Baby.

"MY husband's mother came to live with us then, so I could go on working. We waited another five years before we asked for and received another baby. By this time we had become so safely established that as soon as my arms began to yearn to be filled again, inside of 20 months, our last baby was born.

"I have no message for the rich woman or the middle class woman," said Mrs. Sanger. "They already find information on this subject easily available through their doctors. It is the poor woman, the one whose income is still too limited to provide properly for a child, and the woman already overburdened with children, whom I seek to relieve and to whom I feel responsible."

"How do you limit the channels into which your information shall go?" I asked of her.

"With the organization of responsible committees, who can investigate each individual case," she responded.

"Personally, I think everybody is entitled to all the knowledge that is available, as it is abroad.

"It is therefore necessary that these committees be comprised of reputable physicians or nurses. I prefer nurses as disseminators of the information myself, because they have the opportunity for more individual observation. But medical men object.

Wants Doctors' Support.

"AND my great aim, of course, is eventually to get the indorsement of the National Medical Association.

"It was in my work as a trained nurse I so often was confronted with this problem that I decided finally to rebel.

"Much of my work was in the slums. It seems to me the responsibility is ours, not the ignorant mothers' nor the brutal fathers'," she said.

"It is becoming more and more customary for women of the working class to continue at their wage earning after marriage. And surely this is an improvement upon the day when women were obliged to marry in order to be supported. Why shouldn't the young wife as well as the young husband help in the first establishment of a home? The birds prepare their nests together.

"And you observe, too, they do not think of having a family without a nest to rear it in.

"I have been watching with great satisfaction the outcome of my theories among many happy young pairs in the factory towns where I have talked or sent my pamphlets."

"Isn't there always the danger that the wife may become reconciled to her childlessness and the husband reconciled to her contributing to the income, and the possibility of a family become more and more remote?" I suggested.

"No," she responded, her eyes suffused with tenderness, even a little blinded, I thought, by sentiment.

"On the contrary, every normal married couple want children. A child planned for and prepared for and waited for until a full sense of responsibility is arrived at, is certainly appreciated."

MANAGER OF ROE ESTATE DIES

James T. Sands Dead Several Hours When Found in Hotel.

James T. Sands, manager of the Roe estate, was found dead in his room at the Buckingham Hotel yesterday morning. Phpsicians said he had been dead several hours and that they believed he had died from heart disease.

He had been sick for several months and recently had seldom left his room in the afternoons or evenings. He was 72 years old. He is survived by two sisters in Chicago.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

ENGLAND GOT UP AN HOUR EARLIER THIS MORNING

Clocks Pushed Forward Last Night Under the Daylight Saving Act.

LONDON, May 21.—Great Britain lost an hour this morning between 2 and 3 o'clock through the inauguration of the daylight savings experiment. Two o'clock Sunday morning was chosen as the time for the change on the representation of railroad companies, as fewer trains are then running. At that hour clocks in stations, signal boxes and telegraph offices throughout the country were changed by the men in charge. A few long-distance trains which were running at the time of change, will arrive an hour late, but connecting trains at junctions are to wait for them.

The change was welcomed generally, though there were some minor inconveniences in London yesterday when alterations to thousands of public clocks began and continued throughout the night.

The fact that neither France nor America adopted the scheme caused novel complications in newspaper offices, news from both these countries having the appearance of being delayed an hour. The French official communications and financial cables from America, for instance, did not appear in the customary editions of the Sunday papers, but the authorities are making every effort to expedite these messages and the difficulty is expected to be adjusted within a few days.

The only opposition to the change comes from the farmers in Northamptonshire, who at a meeting yesterday recommended that the new system be ignored as far as possible in working farms, but not to the extent of defying the railroad time tables.

Norway Legislature Passes Daylight Savings Bill.

CHRISTIANIA, May 20.—The Legislature has passed the daylight savings bill, advancing the clock one hour. The new regulation comes into effect on May 22.

The passage of the daylight savings bill by Norway makes the new time system common to all Northern Europe. Germany adopted the new schedule on May 1 and was followed by England, France, Holland and the Scandinavian countries.

Advantage to Post-Dispatch Readers in Advance of English Time.

The advancing of time by one hour in England, this summer, will increase the difference in time between London and St. Louis from six to seven hours. When it is noon in St. Louis it will be 7 p. m. in London, instead of 6, as at present.

This change will mean earlier work, by one hour, in the task of gathering and transmitting European news, for which London is the great distributing center. The work of collecting and writing the news of the war will be done an hour earlier than now. The Post-Dispatch, as an afternoon newspaper, will be in the best position to give its readers the benefit of this earlier news. The marked advantage which afternoon papers have had, since the war began, in the matter of war news, will then be greatly increased.

If the clock should be set ahead in St. Louis it would make considerable difference in the distribution of the workingman's summer day. At present the average man goes to bed at 10 p. m., sleeps till 6 a. m., works from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and recreates from 5 to 10 p. m. More than an hour of broad daylight is included in the time for sleep, and his recreation period includes a good portion of darkness.

If the clock were set ahead one hour he would go to bed at 9 o'clock, but he would call it 10 o'clock as he does now. Work would extend from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m., with an hour out for lunch, and recreation from 4 to 9 p. m., a recreative period of 8½ daylight hours, as against 2½ daylight hours under the present system.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN DIES ON EVE OF GETTING AN ARMY PENSION

Miss Maurer Had Tried for 26 Years to Get Recognition From the Government.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Senate today struck from an omnibus pension bill an item granting a pension to Mrs. Elizabeth Maurer of 1717 South Jefferson avenue St. Louis. Mrs. Maurer has died since the bill passed the House.

For 26 years Mrs. Maurer had been trying to get a pension. Former Representative Bartholdt and other St. Louis Representatives tried in vain to have a bill put through for the relief of this soldier's widow. Some evidence always was lacking. Mrs. Maurer married again after the death of her soldier husband, Frederick Neigeman, which helped complicate matters.

Lieut. Neigeman's widow maintained that his death was hastened by his service in the army, although it was not due to wounds or disability directly incurred in the service.

Representative Igoe introduced a bill for Mrs. Maurer about three months ago, and had it passed through the House. Today he received a letter from her son-in-law, Harry Sailer, advising him of the death of Mrs. Maurer.

Miss Hildenbrandt President.

Miss Jennie Hildenbrandt was elected president of the Council of Mothers and Parent Teachers' Association of St. Louis and St. Louis County of the National and State Congress of Mothers in a meeting at the Public Library Wednesday. She will succeed Mrs. William Blodgett, who is moving to New York. Mrs. J. Addis was elected recording secretary and Mrs. J. H. Bels corresponding secretary.

SMITH Form-a-Truck

It is eclipsing, in speed, economy and service, every other known method of transportation.

It Built this guaranteed One-Ton Truck

The Smith Form-a-Truck is a big, substantial one-ton truck. Wheelbase is 125 inches; loading platform is 108 inches long, accommodating any type of body, standard or special, you may want to use.

Rear wheels are 32x3½ inches; big, substantial Firestone, pressed on, rear truck tires. Rear wheels are of the artillery type, with twelve spokes, 2 inches square. That means strength.

Rear axle is a drop forged piece of steel, 2¼x1¾ inches. More strength.

Frame is cold rolled steel; channel section 4 inches deep, with extra wide web. This means the most rigid construction.

This frame is wider than the Ford chassis up to the point where it tapers in to fit the Ford chassis, and extends to extreme front end of the Ford frame, to which it is securely bolted.

Drive is double chain and sprocket; universally accepted as the maximum in drive efficiency. The rear axle of the Ford becomes the jackshaft without a single change. This is real motor truck construction.

The work of installation can be done in a few hours by two men, or we will do it for you.

You can change your entire equipment from horse-drawn service to Smith Form-a-Trucks without losing a minute; without carrying two investments, while the work is going on.

And we are all ready to make immediate deliveries of these Smith Form-a-Trucks. We challenge you to place your order and ask for immediate delivery. We can do this, and we are the only dealers here that can.

Millions of dollars' worth have been sold in the last few months. This is the phenomenal sales record of the Smith Form-a-Truck.

For three years it has been giving unequaled economy and service all over the country, in practically every form of industry using delivery service.

The Smith Form-a-Truck production will be 50,000 this year to take care of business already in sight—this is over 40 per cent of the entire production of motor trucks for the United States and is equal to the combined total production of all makes last year.

This is the biggest proof we can offer that the Smith Form-a-Truck is the real solution of economical delivery.

MISS MOENTMANN, WITH $16,000, IS PLANNING CAREER

Girl Who Lost Arms Considers Being Saleswoman for Artificial Limb Firm.

$100,000 SUIT SETTLED

She Now Has One Fiber Arm and Can Open Doors and Put on Cloak With It.

Marie Moentmann, 15 years old, of Michigan avenue, yesterday was given a cash settlement of $21,000 in Circuit Judge Taylor's court for the loss of both arms Nov. 5, last, in an accident in the Fulton Bag & Burlap Co.'s factory.

Miss Moentmann sued for $100,000. The trial of the case had begun and she had testified as to how the accident occurred before the settlement was announced. Her mother, Mrs. William Moentmann, was appointed executrix in the Probate Court, under $32,000 bond.

Of the $21,000, Miss Moentmann will receive $16,000. Her parents will receive the remaining $5000, out of which they will pay their daughter's hospital expenses, and the fee of their attorney, Edward W. Foristel.

Foristel had a contract calling for one-fifth of what was received as his fee, which would have been $4200, but tore up his contract when the agreement was reached. Miss Moentmann said he rendered a bill of $3500.

Mother to Invest Money.

Under the orders of the Court Mrs. Moentmann is required to keep the money invested for her daughter until the latter is of age. At her home Miss Moentmann told a Post-Dispatch reporter that she was pleased with the settlement, but added:

"But you know all the money in the world won't pay me for my arms."

Miss Moentmann said she intended to keep the money in a bank or invested in real estate or some sound security after she reached her majority.

She wore an artificial left arm, with which she displayed her ability to open doors, and put on her cloak.

"I've had it only two weeks, and I'm already learning to write with it," she said. "I made a trip to Kansas City for it, and it has helped me lots. Why I can almost dress myself with it."

Within a few days she intends to make another trip to Kansas City and be fitted with a right arm. She said she was considering becoming a saleswoman for the limb company which fitted her.

Decided Not to Study Law.

The artificial arm is made of fiber, and attached to the shoulder. By certain movements of the shoulder she can open and close the fingers.

"I thought that I might study law, and fight for people who became unfortunate like myself," she said, "but I decided that it would not be practicable. You see, it would take such a long time, and I haven't had much school work."

She explained that her "new arms," as she calls them, which cost $250 each, are being purchased out of the $1700 raised for her by St. Louisans last fall. More than $1200 was obtained by a group of St. Louis women under the direction of Mrs. William Walker, wife of the manager of the Planters Hotel.

"And no one can ever know how thankful I am to those good persons," she said.

Enjoys Moving Pictures.

Miss Moentmann said that since being able to go out she had greatly enjoyed going to moving picture shows.

Friday has played a peculiar, and mostly tragic part in her life, she said. She was injured on Friday and three subsequent operations were performed on Fridays. A skin grafting took place on Friday. She was discharged from the hospital on Friday, entered St. John's Hospital for another operation on Friday, her artificial arm was fitted on Friday, and her case in court was called on Friday.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

HOUSE PASSES ADMINISTRATION SHIPPING BILL

Measure Designed to Build Up Merchant Marine and Strengthen Navy.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The administration shipping bill, designed to upbuild the merchant marine and strengthen the navy, passed the House today by a vote of 211 to 161, virtually in the form it introduced.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where a combination of Democrats and Republicans defeated a similar measure a year ago.

Republicans voting for the shipping bill were: Dillon, South Dakota; Young and Norton, South Dakota; Moss, West Virginia; Cary, Wisconsin; Miller and Farr, Peensylvania; Mooney, Ohio, and James, Michigan. Progressives: Martin, Louisiana; Nolan, California, and Schall, Minnesota. Two Democrats, Olney of Massachusetts and Slayden of Texas, voted against the bill, and Kent, the California independent, for it.

The bill proposes to appropriate $50,000,000 to be raised by Panama bonds, for the purchase, charter or lease of ships by the Government. These ships would be sold or leased to private capital as rapidly as possible, with the Government reserving the right to call them back into service as naval auxiliaries. The operation of such vessels as the Government was unable to lease or sell would not extend beyond five years after the close of the European war.

A shipping board of five members, empowered to prevent rate discrimination and unfair practices by all ships plying American water, and to fix maximum rates would be created. The bill now goes to the Senate.

Republicans, who yesterday delayed the vote by offering more than a hundred amendments, made no further attempt to amend the measure. Democratic Leader Kitchin and others who opposed the bill last year were won to its support by the clause limiting Government operation of ships to five years after the close of the war.

SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIANS WON'T LET WOMEN PREACH

General Assembly Decides Proposal Is Opposed to Advancement of True Piety.

ORLANDO, Fla., May 20.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States voted down here today a proposal to permit women to preach in Presbyterian churches, as "opposed to the advancement of true piety and to the promotion of the peace of the church."

In adopting the majority report of a committee that studied the question, the assembly declared that the Scriptures forbid ordination of women. The votoe was 130 to 80.

BOOSTS "GOLDEN LANE" PARADE

Brunswick (Mo.) Suffragist Addresses College Club in Central High.

Miss Alma Sasse of Brunswick, Mo., member of the Equal Suffrage League of Missouri, yesterday addressed the College Club of St. Louis at Central High School in behalf of the suffrage demonstration to be held in St. Louis during the Democratic national convention. She urged members to take an active part in the proposed "golden lane" of women who will greet the delegates.

Miss Sasse is an alumnus of Missouri University and organizer of the Missouri University Suffrage School. She is also a member of the Brunswick Suffrage League. She is assisting Mrs. Florence M. Updegraff, national organizer, who is here boosting the suffrage demonstration.

LAUNDRY MEN PICK KANSAS CITY

E. T. Beasley of St. Joseph, Elected President.

The Missouri Laundry Owners' Association, which ended its tenth annual convention in St. Louis Friday, voted to meet next year in Kansas City.

E. T. Beasley of St. Joseph was chosen president, George T. Textor, St. Louis, first vice president; B. Jacobson, Kansas City, second vice president; W. A. Roberts, St. Louis, secretary and treasurer, and George F. Gillpatrick, St. Louis, sergeant at arms.

Last Week of Furniture Profit-Sharing Sales.

The management of the Prufrock-Litton Furniture Co., yesterday announced this week as the last of the profit-sharing sale the store has been conducting. The sale will end next Saturday. Although furniture costs have been steadily advancing, this store, during the profit-sharing sale, has been selling high-grade furniture at reduced prices. During the sale, to date, the store has been crowded with eager purchasers throughout the business hours of each day, but it is expected the present week will bring even larger numbers of purchasers.

"YIDDISH MARK TWAIN" FUND

St. Louisans' Give to Benefit for Wife of Dead Writer.

Subscriptions are being received by Rabbi Leon Harrison of Temple Israel to a fund for the benefit of the wife and children of "Sholom Aleichem" (Solomon Rabinowitz), the Yiddish author, who died in New York a few days ago. He was known as "the Yiddish Mark Twain." His family was left penniless.

The first subscription to the St. Louis fund was received from Ben Altheimer, who is in New York, and who forwarded $50 to Dr. Harrison, expressing his belief that at least $1000 would be raised in St. Louis. The Jewish Voice, published by Rabbi M. Spitz, subscribed $10.

BAPTISTS CHEER NAME OF HUGHES FOR TWO MINUTES

Northern Convention Indicates Approval of Him as Candidate for the Presidency.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 20.—The Northern Baptist convention, took occasion here today to indicate approval of the proposed candidacy of Justice Charles E. Hughes for President of the United States, by rising and cheering for two minutes when reference was made to the Justice as a possible member of the commission, which will settle controversies between the different Baptist societies. It was an enthusiastic demonstration. The reference was made by President Shailer Mathews of Chicago, who indicated that he might name Justice Hughes, for a place on the commission.

Politics also appeared in the convention when several groups of delegates began activities in behalf of candidates for various offices in the convention proper and co-operating societies, in anticipation of the report of the Committee on Nominations, Monday.

Informal protest was made against the election system, which, it is asserted, gives control over all offices of Baptist societies to 30 men.

The Nominations Committee is understood to have agreed upon Dr. C. A. Barbour of Rochester Theological Seminary for president, and the renominations of Dr. A. J. Rowland, treasurer of the American Baptist Publication Society and of Dr. H. L. Morehouse for corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society.

Union of Northern and Southern Methodists May Come in 1918.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., May 20.—Physical union of the Methodist Episcopal churches of the North and South may be effected in 1918, or two years sooner than had been expected, if a resolution introduced in the General Conference today is adopted. It was referred to the Judiciary Committee for decision on its legality.

The proposal is that when this General Conference concludes, probably next week, it adjourns not for four years as always has been the custom, but to meet at the call of the Board of Bishops. Such action would permit a session in 1918, when the conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is to meet to take action on a plan for unification to be agreed upon by the representatives of the two churches, within the next two years.

The conference decided to postpone balloting for missionary bishops until Monday, because many of the delegates declared they required more time to obtain information about the candidates.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey
All a Benefit to Mankind

Science, invention, discovery, have done much for mankind in the last century. More wealth, improved living conditions, and higher civilization have resulted.

With all the great strides made, health and longer life—the greatest needs of all—seem to have been slighted. Improvements in this direction have not kept pace with the added strenuosity of the age. Science has contributed one discovery which has endured the test of time during the generation—

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

For nearly 60 years Duffy's has been made for medicinal purposes. During all these years, thousands of genuine facts have been gathered to prove its positive medicinal value. Its beneficiaries include every walk of life, from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf. These people have highly praised Duffy's as a pure tonic stimulant to assist nature in its important duties of maintaining health and overcoming illness.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey stands supreme because of its absolute purity. The elimination of any possible distasteful and foreign by-product leaves an article of extreme wholesomeness—possessing a delightfully fine malty flavor, yet with all the necessary and stimulating properties ever present. Once it is tried—seldom is anything found to take the place of Duffy's—its friends are lasting. It serves the requirements of the medical profession for an excellent stimulant. The laity also finds Duffy's Malt Whiskey a household necessity which no medicine cabinet should lack in emergency.

Taken in tablespoon doses before meals and on retiring, Duffy's gently stimulates the stomach to healthy action, improving the digestion and assimilation of food and in this way enriches the blood and brings strength and vigor to the system.

HULL OF HOODOO VESSEL TO BE RAISED AND REPAIRED

"Forest City" With $125,000 Palm Oil Cargo Burned and Sunk New Year's Day.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, May 20.—The hull of the ill-fated American schooner Forest City, known among shipping men along the Atlantic coast as a "hoodoo" ship, is to be raised from the bottom of the bay here and rebuilt. The Forest City was burned on New Year's day, the blaze being extinguished, by the sinking of the hull. The hull will be rebuilt at a cost of approximately $86,000.

The Forest City, disabled by storms and with more than half of her crew of 11 ill of beriberi, was brought into port on Dec. 13 last, after having been out 71 days from Calabar, on the West Coast of Africa. The schooner was in distress when towed into port.

Her cargo of palm oil, valued at $125,000 was being unloaded here when she took fire. The fire was not her first bit of ill-luck.

Relief in Pulmonary Or Throat Troubles depends largely on the sufferer's ability to upbuild a weakened system, and thus hasten a return of normal body functions.

In this effort much depends on fresh air—night and day—and rest and good food. The patient should refrain from work that overtaxes, and all sanitary precautions should be taken. These common sense measures do not always achieve the desired results unless aided by proper medication.

Historical Pageant to Be a Feature of Big Episcopal Convention

Triennial General Gathering of Church Here in October, 2040 Partcipants in Odeon Production

A pageant with 2040 participants, setting forth church history from the Day of Pentecost, in 33 A. D., to the present time, will be presented at the Odeon two nights next October, as the principal public feature of the triennial General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The convention will open Oct. 11, in Christ Church Cathedral.

Every parish, every mission and almost every member of the Episcopal Church in St. Louis has been called on to take some part in the pageant. The work of authorship and designing is actively under way, and persons of literary distinction, both in and outside St. Louis, have been called on for help in this work. Both in authorship and in production, it is intended that the entire work shall be done by members of the church, and that it shall be done without charge. If professional actors take part, they will do so as a matter of loyalty to the church, and without compensation.

Authors to Aid in Work.

Among those who have consented to help in the literary work, each taking some definite assigned part, are Hamilton Wright Mabie, noted author and critic; Winston Churchill, famous novelist and native St. Louisan; Thomas Nelson Page, United States Ambassador to Italy; Octave Thanet, Mary Roberts Rinehart and Basil King, novelists; George Wharton Pepper, lawyer and civic leader, of Philadelphia; Clinton Rogers Woodruff, magazine writer; Miss Vida Scudder, professor of sociology at Wellesley College; Prof. Louis Stockton, a writer on church history; and the Rev. Dr. F. F. Cramer of the Seabury Divinity School, Faribault, Minn.

The preparation of the book is in general charge of Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick, librarian of the Public Library, who performed a somewhat similar task in connection with the Pageant and Masque of St. Louis two years ago. He is assisted by Henry L. Chase of the Chase Bag Co., and L. B. Woodward of the Wodward & Tiernan Printing Co., who will supervise the final publication.

Supervision of Production.

The Rev. George Long of Warsaw, Ill., who is experienced in pageant work in this country and in England, will have general supervision of the producing end of the work. He will spend much of his time in St. Louis this summer, in the work of preparation. The Rev. Henry W. Mizner of St. Stephen's Mission, Sixth and Rutger streets, is to be his chief assistant. In the staging of the production at the Odeon, E. H. Dyer of the Mound City Paint & Color Co., will have general command, as master of assembly.

Every article of costuming or furniture is to be correct historically. Every garment worn, every weapon carried, every bit of ornamentation or utensil of any sort must be in accord with the order and the custom of the time pictured.

As now planned there are to be nine distinct grand groupings, with a finale that is intended to show the Church Militant, on earth, and the Church Triumphant, in eternity.

Tableaux, dramatic episodes and, in one place, moving pictures, will make up the effects.

Outline of the Pageant.

The outline of the pageant, by groups, is as follows:

Group 1—The Church Begins Her Work: (a) The Day of Pentecost, A. D. 33, the descent of the Holy Ghost on the Apostles; (b) the Council of Jerusalem; (c) St. Paul at Athens.

Group 2—Alliance of Church and State: (a) The Vision of Constantine; (b) The Council of Niceae; (c) St. Ambrose and Theodosius.

Group 3—The Ancient British Church: (a) The Martyrdom of St. Alban; (b) The Alleluia Battle; (c) St. Columbia in Iona.

Group 4—Conversion of the English: (a) St. Gregory in the slave market at Rome, viewing the English prisoners and resolving to send the gospel to their home; (b) St. Augustine and the British Bishops; (c) St. Aidan and St. Oswald.

Group 5—Birth and Loss of Liberty: (a) Martyrdom of Becket; (b) Signing of Magna Charta; (c) John surrenders the church to Rome.

Group 6—Ecclesiastical Liberty Restored: (a) Caxton's printing press; (b) Henry VIII repudiates Papal supremacy; (c) The coronation of Edward VI.

Group 7—The English Church Regains Autonomy: This is to be probably the grandest scene presented, and it will be produced by members of St. Peter's parish; (a) Elizabeth receives news of her deposition by the Pope.

This scene will open with a stately dance, Queen Elizabeth presiding. In the midst of the dance, her chamberlain approches and signifies that he bears documents of state of vast importance. The dance is stopped, and the bearer of the papal decree advances and hands it to the Queen. She reads the words, withdrawing from her the recognition of the Church of Rome, hesitates a few seconds, and then, tearing the document to pieces, she signals that the dance shall proceed, thus "forever throwing off the yoke of Rome, but holding still to the Holy Catholic Church."

Group 7 concludes with (c) the Savoy conference and the Prayer Book.

Group 8—Evangelization of America: (a) Preaching at Drake's Bay, Cal.; (b) Jamestown; (c) Bishop Seabury's return to America. There will be difficulty in handling this group with entire satisfaction, since it will be necessary to have representations of Indian life, and yet it is desired to avoid "Wild West" effects.

Group 9—The Church in Modern America: (a) The First General Convention in Philadelphia; (b) Meeting of Bishops Chase and Kemper; (c) The Convention of 1916. This last will be shown in moving pictures of scenes that will have taken place during the sessions of the convention here, such as the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies at work, the Woman's Auxiliary and the procession through the streets to Christ Church Cathedral.

The Church Triumphant.

These nine groupings will be followed by a grand finale, in which it is planned to include the entire 2040 actors, with Bishop Tuttle. By an arrangement of lights and transparent curtains, the spectacle, as the chorus sings the "Hallelujah Chorus," will appear to fade into the future—the Church Triumphant.

Perhaps the most important individual role will be that of Queen Elizabeth. This will require a woman of commanding stage presence. Three women are now being considered for this role.

It will be noted, from the outline given, that the pageant sets forth the idea that the Protestant Episcopal Church of today is the same church that was planted in England by St. Augustine in 597 A. D., and that it did not, as is often said, begin with the break between Henry VIII and the papal authority, or with Elizabeth's refusal to obey the Pope. These occurrences of the reformation period, according to the view of Episcopal historians, were mere incidents in the history of a church that traces its origin back to the Apostles.

Episcopalians Coming Here Partly as Honor to Bishop Daniel Tuttle

THE forty-fifth general convention of the Episcopal Church, which will open in Christ Church Cathedral Oct. 11, will be one of the most important religious gatherings ever held here.

The convention, which is a triennial gathering, never met in St. Louis before. Its coming here at this time was in part due to the fact that Bishop Daniel Sylvester Tuttle of St. Louis, Presiding Bishop of the convention, will celebrate, within the next year, the fiftieth anniversay of his consecration as a Bishop.

Philadelphia, which entertained the first convention, has had the convention 18 times, New York 13 times, including the last convention, in 1913; Baltimore, 3 times; Boston, Cincinnati and Richmond, twice each, and Chicago, Washington, San Francisco, Minneapolis, New Haven, Wilmington, Del., and Trenton, N. J., once each.

The business of the convention is handled by the House of Bishops, in which all the 122 Bishops of the church in the United States sit, and by the House of Deputies, which consist of clergymen and laymen. Among the matters to be considered at the St. Louis gathering will be the revision of the Book of Common Prayer, and the unification of Christianity, both in foreign mission fields and in the United States.

Two thousand women are expected to attend the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, which is simultaneous with the convention. The number of persons who will come to St. Louis in connection with the convention may exceed 5000.

CATHOLICS ADVOCATE PEACE

Union at Meeting at Cape Giradeau passes "Resolutions of Patriotism."

The Catholic Union of Missouri, at its twenty-fourth annual convention, held at Cape Girardeau, Mo., May 14 to 16, adopted "resolutions of patriotism" in which, after saying that every intelligent and moral citizen will be devoted to the country whose blessings and whose protection he enjoys, it is set forth that "whenever the representatives of public authority advocate anything that is manifestly unjust or wrong, we cannot expect that intelligent citizens will give their approval, although harsh criticism should be avoided."

The resolutions advocated the preservation of peace "because we consider an unnecessary war the greatest calamity that could befall this our beloved country."

Births for Week Lead Deaths by Six.

There were 212 births and 206 deaths reported in the city last week. Tuberculosis and Bright's disease caused 21 deaths each. Pneumonia caused 30, cancer, 12; whooping cough, 5; measles, 4, and diphtheria, 2. There were 2 suicides, 4 homicides and 3 accidental deaths during the week.

BOSTON, Mass., May 20.

THROUGH the spike-scarred marshes of right field, Harry Hooper splashed in the murky gloom of today's chill afternoon out at Fenway Park. High in the air a baseball was whistling along through haze and shower. In the big stands some five or six thousand chilled, but faithful, souls held their breaths.

Around the muddy base lines over the rain-soaked hassocks, a flock of Browns sped. Skimming over a puddle with the grace of a swallow, Harry stuck up his hands. He snatched the hurtling baseball out of murk. He turned and pegged the baseball into Jack Barry.

The five or six thousand in the big stands roared applause, the champions happily marched into the bench, and the Jones-Browns promenaded sadly to the outposts. All of this happened in the early evening seventh inning and because it happened, the Red Sox course of defeat came to a summary halt and the upward career of the Jones-Browns was suddenly stopped. Harry's great catch, one of the greatest he or anybody else ever made, practically ended the most spectacular game in the somewhat long history of the human race. The champions defeated the hyphenated invaders, 3 to 1.

Storm Delays Start.

That game was remarkable for more things than one. To begin with, it didn't get going until sometime after 4 o'clock. Half an hour before regular time, a young cloudburst deluged the field and the fans thronging thereto. The umpires came out and looked things over and consulted as umpires will. Then they nodded sagely and the young army of the groundkeeper paddled forth with their broom and bags and everything. For a solid hour they fought the floods and sufficiently conquered to them to enable an athlete to cross the field without running imminent danger of drowning. So the game started.

Scarcely was it on when everybody knew it was going to be one of these base-on-balls affairs. Davenport for the hostiles and Ruth for the defenders of local glory were wilder than the laments had been shortly before.

Dave Is Sent to Shower.

Long Dave staggered along until the thick of the fourth session, when he was mercifully derricked. Husky Babe survived till midway in the sixth when he base-on-balled the Browns almost to victory. Then he had the unusual experience of retreating to the showers though he had not been dented for a single safety.

Struck out—By Davenport, 1; by Ruth, 4; by Mays, 1. Umpires—Nallin and Dineen. Time of game—2h. 16m.

After Davenport had departed, young gentlemen who hope to be known to fame later as Park, Fincher and McCabe tossed baseballs at the Red Sox with more or less success. Underhanded Carl Mays succeeded Ruth, and though the Browns got their two stingy hits off him, managed to wriggle through with the aid of Harry Hooper.

Sensational Work of Hooper Helps Carrigan's Hurlers in the Victory

FOR three innings the game progressed scorelessly. Albeit very slowly, both Ruth and the tall Davenport persisted in getting every batter the well known three-and-two stage before snuffing him out. Both cut loose in the fourth frame. Ruth gave the Browns a flying start when he passed both Shotton and Johnson. That is, he passed them according to Umpire Nallin, though the Red Sox didn't agree for a minute on the fourth ball decision stuff. After Catcher Thomas had been banished and Agnew stepped in, George Sisler suicided his pals along. On Miller's smash to Barry, Shotton was torpedoed at the saucer, Johnson meantime trotting to third. Then the two Browns started a double pilfer. Agnew pegged to Janvrin, who was so busy chasing Miller that he forgot all about the chap on third, who naturally took advange and scored.

Doctor Hoblitzel led the Carrigan assault by clipping a one shot past short with one dead in the locals half. Walker waited and walked and Gardner mobbed the mattresses by jolting a safety to left. Davenport proceeded to hoist himself by his own petard, as Shakspeare would say, giving Janvrin four bad ones, thereby pushing Doctor Dick over the rubber. Agnew sort of got even with the Browns for letting him go, hoisting a lofty and long fly to Shotton and so enabling the other old Brownie, Clarence Walker, to roam home.

Sam Agnew Gets Even.

The fifth and sixth rounds were fairly tame through a nifty running catch and a sharp throw to first by Marsans snuffed out two Carrigans in the latter chapter and killed an embryo rally.

It was in the earlier part of the same inning that no-hit Babe Ruth took his balloon ascension and jammed the bases by a hectic spell of wild flinging and was accordingly removed.

After Hooper had quelled the Browns with his startling catch in the seventh, the champions rose up and got themselves another counter. Agnew worked a stroll and Mays laced a torrid single through the box. Hooper banged a long fly to left, but Barry filled up the bases with a blow over short. A Lewis slash to short resulted in the death of McNally, vice Agnew, at the plate, and Sisler spilled the beans by dropping Hartley's perfect throw for an easy double killing. Then McCabe, who had been sent in to hurl, passed Hobby and pushed another run at the Red Sox.

The Browns made a game but futile bid in the eighth, but the shadows of night were glooming up the stands and intermittent cold breezes and showers made everybody uncomfortable. Shotton got the first St. Louis hit, a grounder to Hobby, because nobody covered the bag.

Then Johnson dropped a puny Texas Leaguer back of second just out of everybody's reach. Sisler was sent up to bunt, but popped a foul right at Larry Gardner. Tobin lofted gently to Lewis and Pratt was called out on strikes, though he wailed long and loud at the ultimate decision. The Sox in their part got Larry Gardner around as far as third, but Mays couldn't rescue him. Still he made up for it by sending down Jones' men in order and sending the crowd away happy, though cold and hungry.

McKinley Takes Slug Fest From Cleveland Team

South Siders Remain in Pennant Chase by Winning 20—11 Contest.

The batters of the Cleveland and McKinley High School nines had a field day at the expense of the pitchers in yesterday morning's High School League contest, which the McKinley team won 20 to 11. The game was the biggest slug-fest of the I. L. season.

The South Siders did the greater part of their scoring in the early innings, while Coach Midkiff's charges were unable to touch "Rube" Wallace until the latter part of the game. However, when they did start matters looked bad for the second placers.

McKinley scored 9 runs in the first two inning and 8 more in the fourth, slamming the offerings of Pitcher Schultz to every corner of High School Field. The score remained 17 to 0 until the sixth inning when Cleveland scored seven runs. Both nines scored in the seventh and eighth. Freis of McKinley was the hitting hero of the day with four hits out of six attempts. Reed connected safely three times.

PRINCETON NINE YIELDS TO MAHAN IN LOOSE GAME, 9-5

Tigers Collect Twelve Hits Off Harvard's Grid Hero, but Can't Win.

ERRORS PROVE COSTLY

Crimson Players Acquire Most of Their Runs on Bad Field Breaks.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 20.—Harvard's baseball nine continued its triumphant march at the expense of Princeton here today, winning by the score of 9 to 5. It was the opening game of the series between the two teams.

Loose fielding and heavy hitting featured the game, with the Tigers doing the brunt of each. Princeton found the ball for a safe hit in every inning except the last, pounding out 12 hits off the delivery of "Eddie" Mahan. But the Tigers threw away the game in the field, making six costly errors. With fewer hits to their credit, the Harvard men found the ball at the right time. They made nine safe drives off the offerings of Link and Thompson.

The Crimson nine got the run habit early in the game, scoring one tally in the second inning when Hahan drove out a triple with Harte on base. Princeton then went in the air for the rest of the game and booted the ball around, while the visitors carried the paths.

In the third inning, Shea let an easy grounder roll through his legs and both Feld and Coolidge came home. A similar error by Law in the fifth let in another run and two errors by Driggs in the seventh let in two more runs and paved the way for a third.

Errors Help Harvard Nine.

Harvard's other runs came as the result of clean safeties. Abbott was sent home in the fifth by Mahan's second hit of the game and Harte scored in the seventh after reaching first on Drigg's error when Beal tapped the ball for a hit. The last run came in the final round. Harte opened with a vicious drive to right field for three bases, and trotted home on a single by Beal.

With the score 5 to 0 against them, the Tigers found the plate in the fifth inning for three runs. Law singled, stole second, went to third on a passed ball and registered the first run when O'Kane, batting for Link, lifted a safety over first base. With Lee safe on Beal's error, Douglas drove the ball over second base, scoring two runs. Princeton added her last two runs in the eighth on two hits an error and a base on balls. After Scully had walked, Law singled to center, and on a wild throw Scully scored and Law went to third. He scored on a hit by Lee.

TRISTAM SPEAKER.

CLEVELAND, O., May 20.

WEATHER conditions permitting the Cleveland Club will play before the largest crowd tomorrow that ever saw any professional baseball club in action in Cleveland.

For over a month the Cleveland officials have been besieged with requests for reservations. One week before the sale of reserved seats even was announced applications had been filled by mail for a greater number of seats than the club had reserved for the occasion.

Every railroad and interurban line running into Cleveland had advertised special rates tomorrow from points as far distant as 150 miles. Special reservations have been made for fans from Akron, Canton, Youngstown, Milan, Sandusky, Elyria, Lorain, Ashtabula, Conneaut and, in fact, every city within a radius of 100 miles. Tonight the hotels are jammed with prospective fans.

The situation is one of the most novel in the history of baseball. Rarely has a world's series created more excitement. Business Manager Robert McRoy tonight asserted:

"I'm confident if we had the capacity we would have a crowd of 50,000 tomorrow. I've never seen enthusiasm like that which exists here. We've been forced to turn down requests for thousands of seats."

The largest crowd that ever witnessed a league game in Cleveland numbered 25,018.

Kansas City Seeks Record Entry for State Golf Meet

By Holding Championships at Later Date, June 19—24, This Season, a Better Standard of Play Is Looked for at Blue Hills Club.

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed and the entry blanks are out for the annual state golf championships for both men and women, which will be held in Kansas City next month, in dual manner, as was the case when St. Louis entertained Missouri's title seekers, last year. The men's tourney will be played in its twelfth renewal, while the winner in the women's competition will be but Missouri's second champion.

The Blue Hills Country Club course has been chosen for the men's play, while the feminine stickers will traverse the links of the Mission Hills Club. The play will be inaugurated with the qualifying round an Monday, June 19, and will continue through Saturday the 24th.

Date Pleases Players.

This is about three weeks later than it has been customary to hold the tourney. Last year the medal play was held on Decoration day and match play was completed during the first week in June. The arrangement, however, proved unsatisfactory as the contestants had been unable to get enough practice and consequently the play did not come up to the standard. Then the courses had not become sufficiently firm following the rains of April and early May.

It is doubtful if the entry for the 1916 play will reach the total of that for last year, when 308 State golfers competed, smashing to atoms the former record. Two hundred and twenty-seven of these were male players, while the women's total reached 79. It is believed that a much larger number of women will play this year, but that the 227 of the men will hardly be equalled.

The reason for the prevalence of this idea is that a much larger number of St. Louis women will play in Kay See, than represented Kansas City, here last year, which was the first women's State tourney held in Missouri.

Cy More Is Champ.

Last season the men's matches were held on the Glen Echo links, while the ways and greens of the Bellerive Club were used by the women players. Cy More, at that time of Normandie, but now a Country Club member, gained the title by defeating A. W. Warren of St. Joseph in the finals play. Miss Grace Semple landed the ladies' title, winning over Miss Laurie Kaiser.

There are 28 country clubs in the Missouri Golf Association, this being one of the largest State associations in the country. Eleven are in and about St. Louis, four in Kansas City, two in St. Joseph and one from Excelsior Springs, Hannibal, Jefferson City, Joplin, Trenton, Sedalia, Springfield, Sappington and Columbia.

Four Classes This Year.

The tourney will as usual be divided into four classes, the Championship, B. C. and Special. The best 32 scores will qualify for the title flight, the next 16 in each B and C and the following 32 for the Special. This applies to both men's and women's meets.

Two features of the week's festivities are a club team-contest and the mixed foursome handicaps. Each club will be allowed a four-man team, the aggregate medal qualifying scores of the quartet to represent the total of the club being represented. A large trophy has been donated for this event by the Springfield Country Club. The names of the four individuals and the club represented will be engraved on the cup, which becomes the possession of the winning team until the next annual tourney. The cup becomes permanent possession upon being won four times.

Two Records Fall as Western M. A. Runners Win M. C. Track Meet

Western Military Academy won the Madison County Interscholastic Track meet on the Western field at Alton Saturday afternoon, records being broken in the shot put and pole vault. The final score was Western, 47 2-5; Alton High School, 30 1-5; Collinsville High, 8 1-3; Granite City High, 7 1-4; Edwardsville High, 5 3-5. Western also won the relay.

The shot put record was broken by Cadet Eyermann of St. Louis, who heaved the shot 43 feet 4 inches. The former record of 42 feet 11 inches was made in 1909. Cadet Waugh of Eskridge, Kan., cleared the bar in the pole vault at 11 feet, breaking the old record of 10 feet 1½ inches, made in 1913. Summary:

100-yard dash—McLain, Western, first; Southerd, Edwardsville, second; Tipton, Alton, third. Time 10 2-5.

220-yard dash—McLain, Western, first; Tipton, Alton, second; Southern, Edwardsville, third. Time 23 1-5.

Discus throw—Brady, Collinsville, first; McLain, Western, second; Eyermann, Western, third. 101 ft. 4 in.

High jump—Vaughn, Granite City, first; Ohmsorg, Alton, second; Edwardsville, Granite, Collinsville and Western tied for third place, 5 ft. 4¼ in.

Broad Jump—Vance, Western, first; Tipton, Alton, second; Waugh, Western, third, 20 ft. 2 in.

Pole vault—Waugh, Western, 11 ft., first; Rembe, Western, 10 ft., second; Alton, Edwardsville and Collinsville, 9 ft. 6 in., tied for third place.

IMLAY STARS IN MEET WASHINGTON LOSES TO ROLLA

Gridiron Hero Takes First in 100, 220 and Broad Jump and Second in Shot.

PEMBERTON DOES WELL

Pikeway Athlete Lands 440 Yard Run and Is Second in 100 and 220 Dashes.

ROLLA, Mo., May 20.—The dual track meet between Washington University of St. Louis and the Rolla Miners here this afternoon resulted in a 69-52 victory for the Miners. While no records were broken the times in the different events were very good.

One of the feature events of the meet was the 100-yard dash, which was a neck and neck affair between Jack Imlay, the football star, representing Rolla and Pete Pemberton of the Pikers. Imlay finally was returned the winner by a nose in the fast time of 10 seconds.

The athletes of Bill Edmunds' team carried off only three firsts. Stites landed the 120-yard hurdles in the slow time of 17 1-5 seconds; Pemberton was first in the 440, while Brady finished first in the half-mile. The Piker runners also won the half-mile relay.

Pikers Win Relay Race.

The individual star of the meet was Jack Imlay, rated as the best football player in the State two years ago. Besides landing the 100 yards dash, Imlay was first in the 220 and broad jump, while he carried off second honors in the shot put.

For Washington Pete Pemberton was the leading point scorer, with one first and two seconds. It was the final test for the athletes of the two schools before the Missouri Valley meet in Columbia next week.

The summary:

100-yard dash—Imlay, Rolla, first; Pemberton, Washington, second; McSorley, Washington, third. Time, 10s. flat.

120-yard hurdles—Stites, Washington, first; Kammerer, Washington, second; Scruby, Rolla, third. Time, 17 1-5s.

Mile run—Murphy, Rolla, first; Leopold, Washington, second; Neuman, Washington, third. Time, 4m. 52 3-5s.

440-yard dash—Pemberton, Washington, first; Heman, Rolla, second; Harvey, Washington, third. Time, 54 2-5s.

220-yard hurdle—Brazill, Rolla, first; Ald, Rolla, second; Stites, Washington, third. Time, 27s.

Half-mile run—Brady, Washington, first; Neuman, Washington, second; Gill, Rolla, third. Time, 2m. 9 2-10s.

220-yard dash—Imlay, Rolla, first; Pemberton, Washington, second; Goodman, Rolla, third. Time, 22 3-5s.

Two-mile run—Murphy, Rolla, first; Greene, Washington, second. Time, 11m. 11 2-5s.

Half-mile relay—Washington, first. Time, 1m. 31 2-10s.

Pole vault—Scruby and Peterson, Rolla, tie for first; Mitchell, Washington, third. Height, 10 ft. 6 in.

Discus—Wilson, Rolla, first; Bubb, Washington, second; Hackman, third. Distance, 100 2-10 ft.

High jump—Scruby, Rolla, first; Peterson, Rolla, second; Mitchell, Washington, third. Distance, 5 ft. 7 in.

Shot put—Wilson, Rolla, first; Imlay, Rolla, second; Hackman, Washington, third. Distance, 36 ft. 8½ in.

Broad jump—Imlay, Rolla, first; McSorley, Washington, second; Peterson, Rolla, third. Distance, 20 ft. 10½ in.

Soldan Defeats Yeatman, 6-3, for 6th Straight Win

West Enders Tighten Grip on I. L. Pennant by Upsetting North Side Team.

Ability to hit both Pitchers Simons and Fagan at will, and some clever twirling by Pitcher McQuoid of Soldan, enabled the league leading West Ender to defeat the Yeatman High School nine, 11 to 3, at High School Field, yesterday afternoon, and add the sixth victory to their unbroken chain. Incidently the defeat was the seventh straight for the North End tossers.

Right Fielder Alfred Olin was the brighest among a host of lights in yesterday's contest. Olin was up at bat five times and did no more than to connect for a single, a triple and a home run, besides getting a walk. The other time at bat, he got to first safely when a Yeatman fielder muffed his fly. Olin also swiped two bases and scored three runs.

McQuoid Goes Over.

McQuoid was the third pitcher to break into the Soldan victories, the win over Yeatman being his first league attempt of the season. Previously, Coach Cook had shown only Harrison and Brockmeyer to the "prep" fans, both of those twirlers showing to advantage. The West End trio of twirlers is as effective a staff as has shown in I. L. for many a day.

Yeatman started out well, scoring a pair of runs in the opening session on 2 singles, a sacrifice, and a stolen base, mixed with two infield outs. The lead was short lived, however, as Cook's charges came right back with two. Yeatman took the advantage again in the third when it scored one tally. This was the last scoring off of McQuoid during the game. Soldan forged ahead in the same inning with two markers. The game was put on ice in the fourth when a trio of West Enders flitted over the plate.

MATHEWSON HURLS GIANTS TO TENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Cards Yield to "Old Ironsides," 4-1—Makes Fifth Successive Defeat for Hug's Team.

By W. J. O'Connor.

A LARGE but funereal delegation of Cardinal players went to Union Station last night to see the Giants off. They wanted to make sure that McGraw and his merciless minions left town. For it is established almost beyond peradventure that unless the Giants departed the Cards would lose their jobs, having already lost everything else, including yesterday's game, 4—1. This was the fourth successive slam from McGraw, and the tenth titanic triumph for New York.

"Old Ironsides" Mathewson caused most of the woe and weal yesterday. Old Ironsides "came back" so hurriedly that he knocked the Cards over and walked on their smooth, but elastic necks, yielding nothing like a run until two were out in the ninth.

Shut-Out Is Spoiled.

Then Chief Wilson smote a single to center, scoring Bescher with the only Cardinal run—a run that the fans didn't seem to appreciate in view of their repeated applause for Old Ironsides.

There was a strong wind sweeping across the field from the southeast yesterday and experts argued that it proved a great help to Matty, who was pitching with the wind. However, the Old Master didn't seem to need much outside assistance. He held the Cards to six hits and walked only two. He was never in trouble.

And this ancient bird—he was born Aug. 12, 1880—just about added the final punch to McGraw's club. A continuation of anything even half so good as he served up yesterday will make Matty a winner with that ferocious gang of horsehide assassins from Upper Broadway. And one more pitcher is all McGraw needed to share the burden with Anderson, Tesreau, Ferritt and Benton, all of whom are traveling like flames across a parched prairie.

Still a Great Pitcher.

Mathewson is not the Mathewson of 1911. Hardly that. But he's Mathewson, the pitcher, again and even his name inspires fear in the hearts of the second-division upstarts. He is now serving his sixteenth season with McGraw. In the span that reaches back to the year when he was a blushing debutante from Bucknell, he has managed to win a paltry total of 370 games, which is balanced in bold relief against an ensemble of only 182 defeats. He has pitched for a winning percentage of .670 and has made fame and a fortune for the New York club.

Last year's record was his worst. He won eight and lost 14. Once before, in 1902, he lost more than he won, the count being 13-18, but in his big years he always was good for 25 or more victories. If he can pinch off as many as 20 this campaign the pennant is McGraw's, positively, sure.

He's using a spitball now and that's a slight confession of retrogression. They go in for the moistened pill when they're slipping. However, Bill Rariden said after yesterday's game that Matty served up only five spitters, relying at all other times on his perfect control and his uncanny cunning.

Giants Are "Class" of League.

There wasn't much else to the game. The Cards put up a weak, but terribly earnest fight but were at all times out-classed. Hug's entry hardly measures up to this juggernaut from Coogan's bluffs, by all odds the best National League club that has come this way in several years.

It was defeat No. 5 in the string of defeats being acquired just now by the Cards and it opened the door to seventh place, a drop of two floors for the Cardinals. McGraw moved into fifth place and then started for Cincinnati where he expects to maintain his great drive to the top.

The Giants grabbed their runs in a matter-of-fact sort of a way. Merkle brought home the first one in the second inning when he got a life on Corhan's error, stole second and went to third on McKechnie's out. Rariden then walked and on a double steal, Corhan made a late return to Gonzales and Merkle meandered home.

Hi-ram Jasper pitched for the Cards and aside from this break in the defensive he was not seriously harassed until the eighth when McGraw hauled his heavy guns into position and began heavy cannonading. Burns opened with a single. Robertson drilled out another single and Burns beat it for third. Robertson swiped second, upset Corhan who fumbled and then Burns trekked in. Doyle's double scored Burns and Capt. Barry went to third on Kauff's out. He scored on Merkle's liner to Smith, after Fletcher had been beaned.

Not until the ninth did the Cards have a chance and Matty was loafing when the locals sneaked their only mark across.

Braves Here Today With a Losing Streak and Captain John J. Evers

BEGINNING at 3 p. m. today, the Cardinals will be hosts to some erudite athletes from Boston, who will tarry for four days with the approval of Chief Young.

The next set of visitors are none other than the Braves, who are tipped to fight it out with John McGraw for the old, but highly prized pennant. The Braves have been bumming around Cincinnati in a rather lose way and lately have contracted a losing streak which reached a total of three yesterday, when Herzog choked Dick Rudolph, 6—1.

Mr. John J. Evers is captain of the invaders who will storm the ramparts of Robison Field this afternoon. That fact alone is enough to drag a big crowd in at the gate, because there are some belligerent bleacherites who live for the chance to fight with Evers. No ballplayers in either league is more attractive on the ball field than Evers. He's a fighter and a show unto himself. Never a dull moment with Capt. John on the job! And it will be doubly interesting today because both the Cards and Braves are nursing large grouches because of recent developments in the New York camp.

Stallings is showing practically the same club he had last season with the exception of Ed Koney at first base. The Big Train is doing splendidly in his new berth and has contributed more than his share of hits so far. Another newcomer appears in right field, where a gink named Wilhoit is holding out. However, Wilhoit is merely subbing for Sherwood Magee, another spark plug, who is injured.

The Braves haven't been getting much pitching of late and their Western trip so far could not be called a howling success. And if they think they are going to feast on the Cardinals they will soon have another think coming. Hug intends to start Bill Doak and it is not unlikely that George Stallings will lead up George Tyler, who always was a thorn in Hug's side.

Rogers Hornsby must show signs of a hitting streak soon or he will be lowered in the batting order. Since being promoted to the cleap-up berth he has fallen off apallingly, going 16 times without the semblance of a safe slam, until Friday. He couldn't nick Matty yesterday and his batting average is shrinking in an alum bath.

ANDERSON-HANLON BOUT TO FEATURE A MEDIOCRE CARD

Several Unknowns Are Matched for Tuesday Night's Show at Future City A. C.

BOXING IN THE 'TRENCHES'

Special Fund Being Maintained by London Sportsmen to Supply Soldiers With Gloves.

By Harry S. Sharpe.

Judging from the programme presented by the Future City Athletic Club for its show next Tuesday night, boxers available to that institution must be very scarce.

There is not a boxer on the program of more than ordinary reputation. Bobby Anderson of Duqoin, Ill., is matched with Jimmy Hanlon of Denver, Colo.; Billy Cole of Winnipeg, Canada, is matched with "Young" Leach Cross of St. Louis, and then there are a couple of preliminaries.

Of the boxers mentioned, Anderson is the best known here of them all. His reputation was made in St. Louis, and he has done exceedingly well for a beginner.

Not much is known of Hanlon. He may be a very good boxer, as he claims to have recently won a 10-round bout from Benny Palmer, the Mexican boxer who was beaten here by Paddy Kelly.

Of the preliminary boxers, Harry Gerber is matched with Sam Biddle. Gerber is the boxer who tried to palm himself off as an amateur at an amateur tournament last winter given by the Columbia A. C.

Jim is matched with Johnny Berry. Necla was stopped in one round last week by "Young" Leach Cross.

Another Way to Fight.

Boxing gloves are in great demand by English soldiers on the firing line and hundreds of sets are being sent them. In London there is what is known as the Boxing Glove Fund, and to this fund contributions are made of gloves, or the equivalent thereof in cash. Great care is exercised in guarding this fund and every penny of it is devoted to the purchase of gloves for the absent soldiers.

Some of the letters from the front acknowledging receipt of gloves are humorously enthusiastic, while others are pitifully pathetic. In some instances the letters arrive after the writers' names have been listed among those killed in action.

Boxing gloves were in use almost 100 years ago, as indicated by an account of a bout which took place at Aix-la-Chappelle, France, on Oct. 8, 1818, as follows:

"Yesterday a great exhibition was made by English boxers. The two champions were built like Hercules, and were naked to the waist. They entered the place with their hands guarded with huge padded gloves. After a severe contest, one of them, more adroit than his rival, struck him so violent a blow on the breast that he fell, and victory was thus decided."

In the olden days of bare-knuckle fighting wrestling was permitted, but it must have been confined to the Graeco-Roman style, according to the following section appearing in one of the earlier sets of rules governing prize fights:

"That no person is to hit adversary when he is down, or seize him by the hair, the breeches, or ANY PART BELOW THE WAIST."

What a Pleasant Sport.

Wrestling was very much depended upon by fighters of the old school, and was expressly provided for by the "London Prize Ring Rules." The idea was to throw a man with such force as to disable him, but some of the fighters cunningly contrived to fall on top, and in such manner as to contribute additional injury; as, for instance, bringing the knee down on the face or to the pit of the stomach, or falling with the forearm or elbow across the throat or jammed in the stomach, or with an opponent's arm doubled under.

Technically these methods were foul, as boxers were not supposed to do more than throw their opponents, but when they went beyond that they pleaded accident or claimed they were unable to prevent it, whenever they were called to account by the referee. Some of them resorted to these methods so often, however, that there ceased to be a doubt that it was intentional and they were frequently disqualified.

The Good Old Days.

An Englishman by the name of Palmer, making a tour of the United States and Lower Canada, in 1817, upon his return to England, wrote of rough-and-tumble fighting in the States, as follows:

"The question is generally asked: 'Will you fight fair, or take it rough-and-tumble? I can whip you either way, by damn!'

"The English reader knows what fair fighting is, but can have little idea of rough-and-tumble; in the latter case the combatants take advantage, pull, bite and kick, and with hellish ferocity strive to gouge or turn each other's eyes out of their sockets. I saw two men who had been injured by this method of fighting—one had almost lost an eye, and the other, a free negro, was nearly or totally sightless. They both lived on the banks of the Ohio, where this dreadful art is most practiced."

Baseball claims Billy Sunday, the noted evangelist, as its own, and pugilism had his counterpart, though of less polish and education, in the person of William Thompson, whose fighting name was "Bendigo."

In the early part of the nineteenth century "Bendigo" held a high position as a fighter in England. On one occasion the great fighter had been sentenced to a short term of imprisonment for a breach of the peace. During his incarceration he listened to a sermon by the prison chaplain, who took for his subject the famous battle between David and Goliath.

"Bendigo" was deeply impressed by what he heard and asked for an interview with the chaplain. As a result of that talk, the fighter abandoned the prize ring, gave up drink, and started out on a tour of the provincial towns as an evangelist. Uneducated, he was unable to exhort in polite diction, but his arguments were forcible and he succeeded in making many conversions.

MINNESOTA WINS FROM NEBRASKA TRACK TEAM

LINCOLN, Neb., May 20.—The University of Minnesota won the annual dual track and field meet with the University of Nebraska today by a score of 73¼ to 48¾. The track was slow and no records were broken. Minnesota took first in the hammer throw, high jump, javelin throw, 100-yard dash, mile run, 220-yard dash, 120-yard hurdles, two-mile run and 880-yard dash. Nebraska took first in the shot put, pole vault, discus throw, broad jump, 440-yard dash and 220-yard hurdles. Minnesota forfeited the mile relay.

Two No-Hit Games Feature Final Round of Preliminary Series in School League

Seven Teams Qualify for Elimination Contest Next Week

Harry O'Malley, Pitching for Cote Brilliante, Holds Ashland Nine Hitless and Fans 25 Batters for League Record.

THE first elimination contest to decide the champion of the Public School Baseball League and the winner of the Post-Dispatch trophy, now held by the Benton School, will be staked next Saturday. Six of the seven divisions wound up their regular campaigns yesterday afternoon. The other group, A, which stages its battles on weekdays, still has two battles to play before the regular season is completed.

Benton, the champions in 1915, will not get another chance to land the Post-Dispatch trophy. This club was put out of the running in the first game of the campaign, when it was beaten by Cote Brilliante, the 1916 title winner of Group G.

Shaw Team Wins.

Shaw, which reached the final round in 1915, was again the winner in Group B; Madison landed the pennant in Group C for the second time; Emerson romped off with the honors in D; Columbia went through Group E without losing a game, while Harrison yesterday clinched the Group F honors.

When the teams get together in the elimination battles some close contests are looked for, as each one of the six winning nines decided to date, owns a star flinger.

Two 0-Hit Games Pitched.

Yesterday in the final division contests some good pitching efforts were uncorked. Chief among these was the work of Harry O'Malley of the Cote Brilliante team. Hurling his mates to the Group G title, he beat Ashland, 16-0. His rivals did not make a single hit, while O'Malley set the season's record in the Public School League by whiffing 25 of the Ashland clouters, in nine innings. At the bat he also starred, smashing out a home run with the bases full.

George Uhl, the right-hander, who last season pitched the Benton School to the Post-Dispatch trophy was another to get his name into the hall of fame yesterday by twirling a no-hit game. Uhl uncorked his hitless battle against Harney Heights and was the winner, 24-2. The two tallies for the losers came as a result of Uhl's wildness. It was the first game this year in which Uhl exhibited any of his 1915 form.

Irving Team Protests.

The Irving team has protested the victory of Bryan Hill, because two balls were in play at the same time. In the ninth frame, Irving, trailing 12-5, had the bases full and two down. At this point it was found that both the pitcher and second baseman had a ball. The hurler for Bryan Hill started to wind up.

At the same time, the Irving runner on second left the bag and was tagged by the pivot station guardian. Umpire Harrehill called him out. Harrehill told the Irving players after the game that he would sign their protest if it was sent in.

The contest has no bearing on the pennant winner of Group F and probably will be overlooked by the league officials.

Gallagher Whiffs 25.

James Gallagher, the star southpaw of the Harrison team, was a bit off color yesterday, but managed to win. It took his team 14 innings to down Ames, though. Coming to the ninth inning, Ames was five runs to the good. Harrison never stopped until it had put a quintet across the plate, Gallagher himself driving over the tieing markers with a double. The double was one of the three hits for Gallagher. He whiffed 25 batters. A homer by Haly won the game for Harrison and gave them a chance to play in the elimination battles.

Although Penrose failed to cop any pennants, the team made a good showing throughout the campaign. Yesterday with Brine on the hill, they downed Rock Springs, 9-3. Brine was in great form allowing six hits and fanning 16 batters. At the plate, he rapped out a home run and single. Other features of the Penrose's play were the fielding of Fahey and Murray, the batting of Rost, and Cumming's work behind the bat.

Shaw had things its own way yesterday and after counting 12 runs in the first two frames, Grant forfeited the game to them, when one of their players quit the field and no substitutes were on hand. In the two frames, the Grant fielders made 16 errors, a season's record.

J. Ritzer, who twirled Emerson to the Group D title was in great form yesterday. He held Laclede to two scattered bingles and whiffed 16. At the bat, Ritzer also was a star, getting five blows in six tries.

Marshall and Crow set the season's record for the longest game. When the pair went 15 rounds before the former team was returned the winner by a 9-8 count.

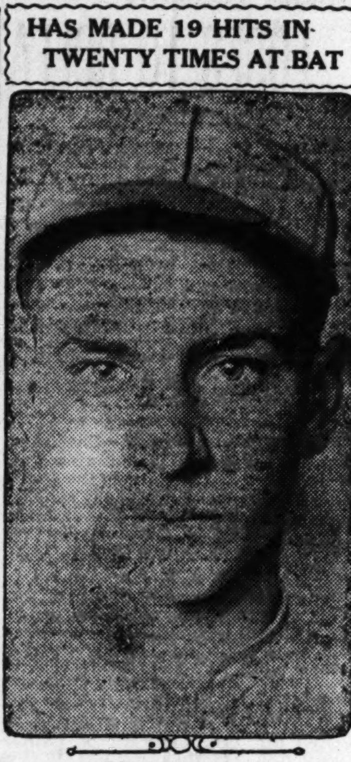
HAS MADE 19 HITS IN TWENTY TIMES AT BAT



HARRY ENGLISH.

AS well as being one of the best fielding shortstops in the Public School League, he also is one of the hardest hitters in the circuit. In the five games played by Shaw he went to the bat 20 times and cracked out 19 bingles for an average of .950. In his collection were four doubles, five triples and a home run. He pilfered 21 bases this season. English is 16 years old and lives at 5716 Old Manchester road. He is manager of the Shaw outfit.

Georgia Peach Fans Twice With Men on the Bases in 2—1 Contest.

CALDWELL IS IN FORM

Although Forced to Retire With Split Finger He Takes First Home Game.

NEW YORK, May 20.—New York won a close game from Detroit here today, 2 to 1. Caldwell won his first home game of the season, but was forced to retire in the seventh inning on a peculiar play. In handling Walters' return, Caldwell caught the ball on the end of his finger and it opened an old cut which had retarded his pitching this spring. Cobb struck out twice in the pinches. Score:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 20.—Chicago drove Crowell off the rubber in three innings today and defeated Philadelphia 11 to 0. Sheehan, who took Crowell's place, blanked the visitors until two men were out in the ninth when they hammered out three runs. The home team could not hit Benz's delivery with runners on the bases, and had 11 players left on the sacks. E. Collins led in the hitting with a trple and two singles, while Felsch made three singles. Score:

SPORT SALAD

BY L. C. Davis

In Boston.

AN air of gloom pervades the town
In Boston.
On every forehead there's frown
In Boston.
The skies are overcast and gray,
The rooters are no longer gay
Since Tristram Speaker went away
From Boston.

The joy of life has lost its zest
In Boston.
The fans seem worried and depressed
In Boston.
The atmosphere is dark and blue—
The beans have lost their flavor, too—
Since Tristram Speaker up and blew
From Boston.

The statues wear an air of gloom
In Boston;
And all is solemn as a tomb
In Boston.
The fans no longer rush the gate,
But simply bow their heads to fate
Since Tristram Speaker pulled his freight
From Boston.

The Indians, on the other hand,
In Cleveland,
Just smile and smile to beat the band
In Cleveland.
At home they play before a mob
That doesn't care a rap for Cobb
With Tristram Speaker on the job
In Cleveland.

Why Pick on Sam?

Sam Crawford, who has been whaling the cover off of the pill for the Tigers for 13 years, is threatened with a bench warrant because of a little batting slump. If old Wahoo isn't entitled to a slump once in a while we'd like to know who is.

But they used to him 'em harder in those days.

HARVARD CREWS WIN TWO RACES FROM ITHACANS

Crimson Victory in Varsity Event Is Decisive, but Freshmen Have Keen Struggle.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 20.—Harvard's varsity and freshman crews defeated Cornell in two races in the Charles River basin today. In the varsity race the crimson held the advantage from the first stroke, while the freshman contest was more equal.

When the varsity crews settled down after their sprint from the mark, Harvard's shell was a quarter of a length in front. Rowing a stroke or two higher than their rivals, the crimson forged steadily ahead until they flashed by the finish flag a little more than two lengths ahead. The official time for the mile and seven-eighths was: Harvard 9:47, Cornell 9:54.

The freshman race was exciting from the start with never half a length difference between the boats. The official time was: Harvard 9:59, Cornell 10:01.

A Big "Red" Day.

Harvard made a clean sweep of the regatta by taking the minor events easily. In the Harvard-Yale championship class crew race, Harvard's sophomores led the Yale juniors by about four lengths. Harvard's time was 9:56, Yale's 10:17.

In the single scull race N. P. Darling of Harvard won by more than two lengths, in 6m. 52s. for the mile. S. G. Gaillard of Yale was second, G. F. Talbot of Harvard third, and H. F. Duncombe of Yale fourth.

HALE AND PANGMAN REACH FINALS IN ALGONQUIN MEET

They Defeat A. C. Lueking and E. M. Cain, Respectively, in Semi-Final Round.

F. O. Hale and C. C. Pangman reached the final round of the annual opening day tournament of the Algonquin Club, when they gained victories over A. C. Lueking and E. M. Cain. Hale had a real match on his hands in opposing Lueking and eked out a victory, 1 up. E. M. Cain lost his chance to enter the title play when he dropped his match, 3 down, to C. C. Pangman. The match for the club championship will be played next Saturday.

Both Class B semi-final matches, played yesterday, resulted in ties after 18 holes of play. The play will be continued today, S. U. Busch meeting L. C. Turner and G. M. Williams playing E. C. Curtis. Results of the Class C matches are as follows: J. F. Oberwinder defeated E. F. Haskins, 4 and 2; W. M. Smith defeated W. C. Doerring, 2 up; C. S. Brown won from C. H. Schlapp, by default; C. K. Utrecht defeated L. R. Milliken, 3 and 2.

Match Play at Midland.

The initial round of match play in the spring handicap tournament of Midland Valley Club was also in order, yesterday. The feature match of the day was won by Williamson; he defeated Dickey, 1 up on 20 holes. O. C. Smith also had to struggle before he eliminated E. C. Sullivan on the nineteenth green. Other scores were as follows: DuBois defeated Hitching, 2 up; Eanter defeated Jenkins, 2 and 1; Balsberry defeated Shaver, 7 and 5; Hill defeated Kilgen, 7 and 6; and Eaton defeated Whipple, 1 up.

Although the final match between Ed Schiell and Virgil Loeb for the spring championship of the Westwood Club had been scheduled for yesterday, it was decided by the contestants to play today. Matches in the semi-finals in the other classes will also be played today

The Normandy Club announces the pairings of the semifinals matches of the annual spring tourney, which will be played on or before next Wednesday, in order that the finals may be played on Saturday. T. McGeorge will meet Frank Fitzgibbons and E. C. Robinson plays J. B. Rule.

In Class B, G. F. Powell plays R. H. Rhodes and G. B. Sweitzer meets J. B. Hollin. The Class C matches will bring together E. F. Spencer and H. W. Ruedinghaus and Charles Gilpin and B. F. Babbit.

Superbas Chase Packard and Win

CHICAGO, May 20.—Every Brooklyn player got a hit or two off a trio of Chicago pitchers and thereby they hammered out an 8-to-5 victory in today's game. Packard, who beat the league leaders on Wednesday, was routed with five hits in the second inning. Hendrix's wildness helped the Dodgers to two runs in the third, and Cub errors were responsible for two more. Dell pitched a fair game. Score:

Hoyt, Star of Grinnell Track Team, Breaks One Record and Ties Another

DES MOINES, Io., May 20.—Iowa State College of Ames won the twenty-fourth annual track and field meet of the Iowa College Association held today at Drake Stadium with a total of 56 3-4 points. Drake was second with 41 3-4. The other schools finished as follows: Grinnell 19 3-4, State University of Iowa 18, Coe 8, Cornell 9, Highland Park, 6, Des Moines 3, Simpson 2, Morningside 1 3-4.

Hoyt of Grinnell established a new record of 21.3 in the 20-yard dash. He equaled the State record of 9.4 in the century dash. Erwin of Drake went 11 feet 7 inches in the pole vault, a new record. Dutton of Iowa hurled the discus 129 feet 6 1-2 inches for a new record.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED AT INDIAN PARK TODAY

CLEVELAND, O., May 20.—With every reserved seat sold for Sunday's game between the Cleveland and Washington American League teams here, arrangements were made today to take care of the largest crowd that ever saw a game in this city. Additional turnstiles were installed and new gates provided for taking care of the fans.

With the two teams leading the league and with Walter Johnson scheduled to pitch, the fans were at a fever pitch of excitement. Large delegations from many surrounding cities were prepared to attend.

WOMEN SWIMMERS WILL START BUSY CAMPAIGN MAY 29

On That Date First of A. A. U. Championships, the 220-Yard Will Be Held.

U. S. OWNS MANY STARS

Grace Stewart of St. Louis Is Rated as One of Best Over Long Distance.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The 220-yard national A. A. U. indoor swimming championship for women, to be held on May 29, in the pool of the Hygeia Bath, at Atlantic City, will serve as a curtain raiser to a season for fair natators which promises to be the most brilliant in history.

Tremendous strides have been made since the governing body granted registration to women paddlers less than two years ago. In almost every section of the country athletic clubs immediately thereafter opened their pools to ambitious mermaids and offered them the encouragement of frequent meets, and the result is that today there are in the field a number of girls of championship caliber who threaten to shatter every existing record.

During the coming months the leaders of all A. A. U. districts will be brought together for the first time in actual tests of supremacy and there is hardly a doubt that in the battles for laurels all previous performances will be eclipsed.

A few days after the opening meet, on June 3, the 50-yard national dash will be decided in the pool of the Philadelphia Turngemeinde; next will come the fancy diving championship at the Los Angeles A. C.; then the 100-yard national swim in the Sutro Bath, San Francisco, under the direction of the Arrow Swimming Club, on July 4. These are all indoor fixtures.

Outdoor Season to Be Busy.

The outdoor ones will begin on July 16, when a six-day water carnival at Put-in-Bay, Ohio, will gather candidates from seven states to bid for the first district title events ever held for the women of the Middle West, and there will follow in quick succession the district championships of other sections.

Plans for the national open water contests have yet to mature, but it is the intention of the authorities to award sanctions where the strongest entrants for each event are thought to be, and to have the races run off in August and September, at sufficient intervals to enable all aspirants to train especially for every one.

Marathon swims will be a feature. Most of the cities where aquatics are popular have listed one or more, and the fair exponents of water endurance are also booked to attack many records for classic long distance courses.

Water polo is to be a novel and entertaining part of the summer activities. A number of teams have recently been formed, and the girl players will engage in frequent games throughout the season.

Fancy diving and plunging, of course, will have their usual place on the program and remarkably clever work should be witnessed.

Competition at distances greater than one mile is usually held in running water, so that times made are quite useless for the purpose of comparison, but competent judges place among the best in the country: Miss Grace Stewart of St. Louis; Miss Helen Rubican of Philadelphia; Miss Marion Gibson of Boston; Miss Aileen Allen of Los Angeles; Miss Belle Wright of San Francisco; Miss Freeman of Bath Beach and Miss Galligan.

Three Marks Go As Illini Stars Beat Wisconsin

Mucks Breaks World's Record in Discus, While Mason Lowers Two Standards.

MADISON, Wis., May 20.—In the fastest dual meet ever held here, Illinois cinder path men beat Wisconsin by the score of 72 to 63 points.

Arlie Mucks broke his own world's record in the discus event when he threw the plate 155 feet 8 inches. The former was 145 feet 11 3-4 inches.

Mike Mason of Illinois broke the conference records in both the mile and two mile runs. In the mile he went it in 4:18 1-5, bettering the former record by one second. He cut one-fifth of a second off his own conference record in the two mile.

Hohman of Illinois won the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes, meeting with stiff competition from Carter of Wisconsin in the latter event. Mucks was the individual star with 13 points. Ames of Illinois won both hurdle events.

Daubert and Speaker Set Batting Pace in Majors

Cleveland Star Has American League Field Distanced With a Mark of .398—Daubert Wrests Leadership From Chase by Climbing to .384.

TWO of the greatest players in the national pastime are now the leaders in the race for the batting supremacy in the major leagues, Tris Speaker, former Red Sox outfielder, is showing the way in the American with an average of .398, while Jake Daubert, rated by many as the greatest of first basemen, is out in front in the National with .384.

The other recognized clouters also are slowly coming into their own, while the "morning glories" or early season hitting phenoms are dropping back. In the National Daubert is followed by Zimmerman, Robertson, Schulte, Hinchman, Burns, Cravath and others. The following averages include the games played last Wednesday:

Giants Are Hitting the Ball.

If hitting counts for anything, then the Giants are going to make a lot of them hustle. Right now McGraw has four regulars clouting over .300. They are Robertson, .357; Rariden, .336; Burns, .323; Kauff, .309, and Doyle, .301. The other regulars of the team have the following marks: Fletcher, .285; Merkle, .247, and McKetchnie, .222.

Who said Frank Schulte was all in. The old boy may be slowing up a bit, but according to early season figures his batting eye is still there. At present he's fifth among the regulars with a mark of .334.

Two .300 Hitters for Mack.

Connie Mack owns just two .300 hitters. They are a youngster named Stellbauer, who is pushing the leaders with a .346 average, and Amos Strunk, who is clouting .333. With a total of five, Amos also is well up in base stealing.

Although Jennings owns such swatters as Crawford, Cobb, Veach and Heilman, the Tigers have not cracked out a home run this year. They are the only club in the major leagues that has no circuit clout to its credit.

HOLY CROSS STAR EQUALS RECORD IN 100-YARD DASH

Andrew Kelley Covers Distance in 9 4-5 in Meet Won by Dartmouth.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 20.—Dartmouth College today won the annual championship meeting of the New England Intercollegiate Athletic Association. The games were marked by four new records. Andrew B. Kelly of Holy Cross broke the mark for both dashes, winning the 100-yard event in 9 4-5 seconds and the furlong dash in 22 4-5 seconds; W. A. Savage of Bowdoin, cleared the barriers in the 220 yards low hurdles event in 24 3-5 seconds.

In the broad jump, H. L. Worthington of Dartmouth leaped 24 feet 3 inches, surpassing his previous record, but because the wind assisted the record will not be allowed to stand.

Dartmouth Wins Easily.

Dartmouth's winning total of points was 50½. University of Maine finished second with 32½; Holy Cross and Bowdoin scored 18 points, sharing third honors. Massachusetts Institute of Technology was fifth.

Other colleges who figured in the scoring were Colby, Middlebury and Trinity, three each; Wesleyan, Tufts and Brown, 2 each and Worcester Polytechnic with one point.

The summary:

100-yard dash—Caesa B. Kelley of Holy Cross, first; C. A. Rice of Maine, second; D. W. Coakley of Dartmouth, third. Time—9 4-5s., a new record.

Shotput—W. H. Allen of Maine, first; distance 45 ft. 2 in.; C. W. Spears of Dartmouth, second; K. B. Thorndyke of Tufts, third.

120-yard high hurdles—F. A. French of Maine, first; A. A. Grady of Dartmouth, second; F. D. Trenholm of Dartmouth, third. Time—15 3-5s.

Two-mile run—H. H. Brown of Williams, first; F. L. Jones of Middlebury, second; W. O'Brien of Colby, third. Time—9m. 52 4-5s.

High jump—W. A. Sullivan of M. I. T., first, height 5 ft. 10¼ in.; G. C. Palmer of Maine and G. V. Rector of Dartmouth tied for second at 5 ft. 9¼ in.

Pole vault—G. V. Rector of Dartmouth, first, height 11 ft. 3 in.; H. W. Johnson and J. W. Emery of Dartmouth and H. H. Sampson of Bowdoin, tied for second at 11 ft.

880-yard run—J. T. Higgins of Holy Cross, first; R. W. Bell of Maine, second; R. L. Holbrook of Dartmouth, third. Time—2m. 3-5s.

220-yard dash—A. B. Kelly of Holy Cross, first; C. A. Rice of Maine, second; G. K. Hayes of Williams, third. Time—21 1-5s., a new record.

Discus throw—G. W. Leadbetter of Bowdoin, first, distance 130 ft. 11¼ in.; C. W. Spear of Dartmouth, second, distance 129 ft. 10⅛ in.; T. L. Cotton of Dartmouth, third, distance 127 ft. 2½ in.

Final, 440-yard run—B. C. Riley of Dartmouth, first; J. L. Higgins of Holy Cross, second; C. I. Guething of M. I. T., third; L. Lagay of Dartmouth, fourth. Time—49 4-5s.

One-mile run—Roger Bell of Maine, first; R. G. Brown of M. I. T., second; K. D. Tucker of Dartmouth, third; M. Thompson of Colby, fourth. Time—4m. 29 1-5s.

220-yard low hurdles—W. A. Savage of Bowdoin, first; F. A. French of Maine, second; L. L. Williams of Wesleyan, third. Time—24 2-5s., a new record.

Broad jump—H. L. Worthington of Dartmouth, first, distance, 24 ft. 3 in. (a new record); W. Bjorn of Trinity, second, distance 22 ft. 1⅞ in.; P. G. Nordell of Dartmouth, third, distance 21 ft. 9½ in.

Hammer throw—G. W. Leadbetter of Bowdoin, first, distance 145 ft. 9⅞ in.; C. A. Pudrith of Dartmouth, second, 134 ft. 7½ in.; W. F. Stanley of Maine, third, 131 ft. 3 in.

M'GRAW STUCK TO ROBERTSON OWING TO HIS CLOUTING

When Youngster Injured Shoulder Wise Ones Said He Would Be No Good.

STARTED AS A PITCHER

Game Lost a Great Southpaw, When He Was Forced to Go to Outfielding.

By Robert Edgren.

NEW YORK, May 20.—"Demon Dave" Robertson, whose heavy hitting has started the Giants climbing out of the cellar, is the sensation of the early baseball season. And Dave Robertson is the best answer to the arguments of those who think John McGraw is a baseball Dodo. "Demon Dave" was under age, studying veterinary surgery and pitching in a tide water league club down in Virginia, when McGraw first got a line on him. With his father's permission Robertson was signed up to a contract giving his services to the Giants. He played a little more in the tide water league and then went back to college in North Carolina.

Robertson is a big, powerful fellow and a great allround athlete. McGraw advised him to cut out football, for fear some injury might interfere with his pitching ability. Robertson had been playing baseball under an assumed name. Back in college he couldn't avoid getting into the football lineup again without making some akward explanations. He played football. As a result, in the last game of the season he had his left shoulder broken.

"And right there," says John McGraw, "I lost the greatest southpaw the game ever knew."

Last a Great Southpaw.

Robertson's shoulder mended, but a pitcher's arm must be a perfect machine. He was never able to stand the rack of pitching again. After finishing his studies Robertson reported to McGraw and went to Marlin with the Giants.

Wise people advised McGraw to let the crippled ballplayer go. They said Robertson never would be any good. Robertson offered to go through the season without pay, but McGraw kept him and insisted upon paying him the salary his contract called for. He had the youngster's shoulder treated and let him rest. Three years ago Robertson went to Marlin again with the Giants. He tried to pitch, and put the weak shoulder out of commission.

McGraw induced Mike Finn of the Mobile team to take Robertson for the season and use him as an outfielder. Right there "Demon Davis" began to pick up again. He couldn't pitch, but he could play in the outfield and he could knock the seams out of a baseball. He became the hitting sensation of the South. And then McGraw reached down and took him back again. McGraw had been sticking to Robertson principally because he knew the boy could hit.

McGraw Stuck to Player.

One morning at practice in Polo Grounds he saw Robertson take a short swing at the ball and knock it into the center field bleachers. It was the longest drive that McGraw had ever seen. John watched Dave all that morning, trying to discover where he got the tremendous driving power that enabled him to send the ball so far. He determined that the knack was entirely natural, not acquired form or skill, and made up his mind right there that Robertson was the hitter the Giants needed.

This spring Robertson had a little more hard luck. He hurt his right leg and was unable to go South with the Giants for spring training. He joined the team on its way North. It was not until many losing games had been played that he was given a chance to substitute. The playing ambition he had been bottling up so long showed in every swing of his bat. Today he leads the league in batting, and without a doubt before the season is over the world will recognize him as one of the REAL ballplayers, whose names will make part of the history of the game.

East St. Louis Club to Stage Registered Shoot at Its Grounds Next Week

The Alta Sita Gun Club of East St. Louis has arranged a 150-target event for next Saturday, to which all amateur shooters are eligible. There will be an entrance fee of 45 cents. The event will be shot in 10 strings of 15 birds each. Already 82 shooters from the St. Louis clubs have registered and will participate in the event.

MISS BJURSTEDT AGAIN LANDS TENNIS HONORS

NEW YORK, May 20.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt pinned the crown representing the women's Metropolitan singles more firmly on her head today, in a walkaway match on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. In her most business-like manner she defeated Miss Martha Guthrie of Pittsburg, 6—2, 6—1.

The thing that Miss Bjurstedt failed to da was to display great strength as a doubles lpayer. She and Mrs. Marie Wagner were beaten by Mrs. Rawson Wood and Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver, 6—1, 6—4.

In winning the singles title for the second time, the stalwart girl from Norway was never threatened. Miss Guthrie failed to hit with any power. She could not put enough sting into her drives to check Miss Bjrustedt.

PRATT BREAKS LITTLE 5 RECORD IN THE DISCUS

GALESBURG, Ill., May 20.—Monmouth College won the annual "little five" intercollegiate track meet here today, nosing out Knox College by 1 and ½ points.

Ghormley of Monmouth was the individual star winning 16 points in the hurdles, running broad jump and discus throw. Hambling of Knox made 13 points. Pratt of Beloit broke the discus record with 123 feet 4 inches.

The points: Monmouth, 39; Knox, 37½; Beloit, 27; Armour, 12½.

Army-Navy Men to Meet.

WEST POINT, N. Y., May 20.—Representatives of the army and navy athletic associations will meet in Washington next Tuesday, it was announced here today to select officials for the Army-Navy football game which will be played in New York on Nov. 25. Lieut. Philip Hayes will represent the army while lieutenants Ingram and Smith will be the delegates from the naval academy.

Pirates Release Hill.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 20.—The Pittsburg (National League) baseball club today released Carmen Hill, pitcher, to the Rochester club of the International League. The right was reserved to recall him should he be needed. This brings the Pittsburg club to 21 players.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 20.—The University of Oklahoma tennis team had an easy time defeating Missouri here today. The Sooners took three of four singles matches and won the doubles in straight sets.

Washington Enters Team of 18 Men for Missouri Valley Meet Next Week

More Than 250 Star Athletes From Sixteen Colleges Will Try for New Records—Kansas, Drake and Ames Are Picked to Give Tigers Hard Fight.

From the Post-Dispatch Special Correspondent at Missouri U.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 20.

THE closing of the entries to the ninth annual Missouri Valley Conference track meet, to be held in Columbia May 26 and 27, finds 16 universities and colleges entered. This number is larger by four than that of last year and includes Washington University, which did not send a team last May, University of Kansas, University of Nebraska, University of Missouri, Drake University, Kansas State College, Iowa State College, Oklahoma A. and M., Kendall College, Simpson College, Nebraska Wesleyan, Grinnell, Fairmount, Tarkio, Central College and Rolla School of Mines.

The names of over 200 athletes have been sent to C. L. Brewer, director of athletics, who will have entire charge of the arrangements. With the 40 Missouri entries the number totals over 250, and of these it is thought that at least 150 will compete, the largest number in any valley meet to date.

Four teams are conceded to have a chance at winning first place in the meet. The University of Missouri, on the records to date in dual meets, seems to be the best bet for the winner, but because of the fact that a meet of this nature is different from a dual meet, Kansas, Drake and Ames will give the Tigers some competition. Missouri won the conference meets in 1911 and 1912 at Des Moines, at St. Louis in 1913 and in Columbia last year. This string of victories was only interrupted in 1914 when Chicago won first place and California and Colorado had star teams entered.

Tigers Landed Four Meets.

There will be 15 events, of which the preliminaries in the 100-yard dash, the 120-yard hurdles, the 220-yard hurdles, the 220-yard dash and the quarter-mile run will be held Friday afternoon. Saturday afternoon the events will be run off in the following order: 100-yard dash, mile run, 120-yard hurdles, 440-yard run, 220-yard hurdles, 880-yard run, 220-yard dash, two-mile run, one-mile relay race, pole vault, discus throw, running high jump, shotput, running broad jump and half-mile relay race.

A cup will be given the winner of the meet, and one each to the winners of the two relays, while medals will be given to all who place. First place will count for 5 points, second for 3, third for 2 and fourth for 1.

Simpson College will send one man, a half-miler named Daft; Oklahoma A. and M. one man, Heston, a pole vaulter; Kendall College will send Grave in the sprints and Hause for the hurdles. Nebraska Wesleyan has entered seven men, Targio 13, and Central College 5. One of Fairmount's three athletes is Davis, who won the 100-yard dash in the Valley meet last year.

Pikers Enter 18 Men.

Washington U.'s 18 men are as follows: Bartlett, Brady, Bubb, Davis, Finley, Hachman, Harvey, Leopold, Lueking, Marsh, McSorley, Mitchell, Newman, Pemberton, Sharp, Shepard, Stites and Stout.

The star of the Grinnell team is Hoyt, probably the fastest 220-yard man in the West. He recently tied the world's record on a curved track for the event, 21 2-5s.

The stars of Kansas U.'s 24 entries are O'Leary, Rodkey, Sproul, Grady, Greene, Treweekee, Pattison, Grutzmacher and Capt. Reber. The stars of the Nebraska team are Corey, the giant football player; Irwin, Owen, Scott and Wiley. The best men of the Ames team are Fitch, Hawthorn, Maakestad, Mathews, Mellor, Packer, Scroggie, Williams and Burrus. The Kansas Aggies have but three classy men this year, it seems, Frizzell, Holroyd and Teetor, while Drake has Blackburn, Krull, Shearer and Smith.

Missouri Team Is Conceded Greatest Number of Firsts, With Kansas Next

THE first places will be pretty well divided among the conference teams, with Missouri getting the most of any one, and with Hoyt of Grinnell and other smaller college representatives having a chance of taking a few. Kansas and Drake are expected to get the second and third largest number of firsts.

But it is in the seconds and thirds that Missouri expects to win the meet, for the Tigers have a well-rounded team, weak only in the long distance runs, and where they do not take first places they can be counted on to take a second, third or fourth. With Simpson entered in probably not more than three events, they expect to take first in the two hurdles and the broad jump. Warren will most likely win the discus throw. Powell has an even chance to win the pole vault and Daggy the 440-yard run.

The two relays look like Missouri's, at least the one-mile event, where only Kansas will offer keen competition. The rivalry will be closer in the half-mile relay with Irwin and Scott of Nebraska running and with Drake possessing a fast four.

Drake Has Fast Relay Team.

The spectacular races will probably be the 100-yard dash, the 220, and the quarter, while the broad jump, pole vault and half mile will be close. In the 100 are entered Davis of Fairmount, who won this contest last May, Irwin and Scott of Nebraska, who can do 10:1, Shearer of Drake, Holroyd of the Kansas Aggies, who did 10 flat according to reports last year, but who has not shown well this season. Simpson may also enter this race and he can do 10:1 almost any time. Hoyt, the Grinnell wonder, will probably enter here, and although he does not own such spectacular time as in the 220 he may walk away with the dash.

In the 220-yard dash are Hoyt, Shearer of Drake, who finished second to Hoyt in the feature event at the Drake relays and has done 21:4; Davidson of Kansas, the Jayhawkers' fastest man; Cleary of Kansas, Fitch of Ames, and Renick, Niedorp, Pittam, and possibly Simpson of Missouri. Simpson did 22 seconds flat in the meet with Kansas.

Daggy of Missouri is looked to to bear the Tiger hopes in the quarter-mile. Niedorp won this event in 50 seconds flat last year, but has been miserably out of form so far this season, and is not really counted on to repeat. Daggy has developed more than any other Tiger track man in the past year, and will do close to 50. But Cleary and Rodkey of Kansas have marks of 50:3 here, Mellor of Ames finished second in the run last year, Holroyd of the Kansas Aggies is good, and Wyatt of Missouri must be counted on.

Competition for Simpson.

The broad jump will see Simpson, owning a distance of 23 feet 6½ inches, hard pressed by Wiley of Nebraska, who has done over 23 feet, and by Treweekee and Grutzmacher of Kansas. Treweekee was out of the Kansas meet with a bad ankle, but is expected to be in shape by May 27. Williams and Pittam of Missouri can do over 21 feet.

Until recently it was thought that Capt. Powell of the Tigers would not have a great deal of competition in the pole vault, but last Saturday Pattison of Kansas tied with him at 11 feet 8 inches. Irvin of Drake has done 11 feet 8 inches in the vault and Hueston of the Oklahoma Aggies is said to be able to go 12 feet. Powell has done 12 feet. Missouri's second vaulter is Finley, whose best has been 11 feet.

In the half-mile, Rodkey seems the best according to records, owning a mark of 1.57, but Watson and Smith of Drake took first and second places in the Conference meet last year and may beat Rodkey. Scroggie of Ames and Rider and Corwin of Missouri are possible point winners here.

Ames and Kansas are picked to fight it out in the mile and two mile, although Daft of Simpson College, and Teetor of Kansas Aggies, are conceded a chance to take the honors. For Kansas in the long distances are such stars as Sproul, Herriott, Grady and Statler, and for Ames Maakestad, Crane and Williams. Missouri's men are Fowler, Flynt and the Klein brothers.

Warren May Win Discus.

In the discus throw Warren will be pressed by Corey of Nebraska, Blackburn of Drake and Krull of the same university, both of whom throw for 120 to 124 feet, and by Reber of Kansas, about 118 feet. Warren can throw the discus 126 feet. The same men will compete in the shotput, with Reber a probable winner and Krull and Corey close behind him. Groves of Missouri is a possible fourth place man.

Simpson's competition in the hurdles will be slight. Noble of Ames, Packer of Ames, Frizzell of the Kansas Aggies, Elliott of Kansas and Teas, Daggy and Renick, with possibly Hause of Kendall, are expected to take the places Simpson leaves. Renick is counted on to follow his partner right up to the tape.

In the high jump there will be some good competition and high marks. Frizzell of the Kansas Aggies is the class here, doing somewhere around 6 feet 2 inches. Treweekee of Kansas has done 6 feet 1 inch, and Pittam of Missouri 6 feet. Baker of Missouri owns a tie with Pittam in one meet at 5 feet 9 inches and Buruss of Ames tied him at 5 feet 10 inches.

Little is known of the Washington University team so its athletes have not been included in these figures. It is not likely that with no team last year they have much talent which can stand up against the stars of the other conference schools. Some of their men may pull a surprise, however, and make it uncomfortable for some of the leaders.

Villar Kyronen Noses Out Kohlemainen by 6 Inches in Gotham Marathon Race

NEW YORK, May 20.—Hannes Kolehmainen, the Irish-American Athletic Club's champion distance runner, failed by a few inches to win New York's modified marathon of 12¾ miles distance for the fourth time today. The race was won by a countryman of Kolehmainen, Villar Kyronen, running in the colors of the Millrose Athletic Club of this city. For the last four miles of the race these two Finnish runners were abreast, at no time being more than inches apart, until they turned into the city hall park 50 yards from the finish. Both made a sprint to the finish, but Kyronen was quicker in his effort and beat out the champion by about 6 inches. The time of the winner was 1h. 9m. 10 1-5s. Joe Organ of the Pittsburg Athletic Association, who ran prominently throughout the contest, finished third, 300 yards back, in 1h. 11m. 27s.

Charles Pores, another member of the Millrose Athletic Club, was fourth, his time being 1h. 11m. 54 1-5s. The record for the course is 1h. 6m., made by Kolehmainen in 1913.

YALE CLASS OF 1906 TO HONOR LATE T. SHEVLIN

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 20.—The class of 1906 at Yale, of which Thomas H. Shevlin, one of the university's greatest athletes, was a member, is to build a memorial to him, either a dormitory or a track house, at the field, according to an announcement today. The proposition will be presented to the class at its decennial reunion next month.

Principia Goes Over.

The Principia Academy baseball nine defeated the Kirkwood High School team, 5 to 1, on the campus of the county team, yesterday morning. The Kirkwood stickers were unable to bunch their hits off of Schaberg and failed to score until the ninth inning, when one run was made.

Score by innings:

Team—	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
Principia	1	0	2	0	0	0	0	2	0	5	7	2
Kirkwood	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	8	5

Batteries: Principia—Schaberg and Robertson; Kirkwood—Hagerman and Sprague.

Bradley and Barker Star.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., May 20.—Indiana University today won its first conference track meet in years, defeating Northwestern, 76 1-3 to 57 2-3. Coach Childs' men excelled in the weight events, while Capt. Bradley and Barker of Northwestern took first and second in the dashes. Wilmarth for Northwestern won the 880-yard run by inches over Capt. Wallace in 2m. 4m. 4s.

Navy Tennis Men Do Well.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 20.—The tennis teams of Navy and University of Michigan broke even here today, each taking two strings in singles and one string in doubles.

GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP TO BE HELD IN AUGUST

Trapshooting Feature of the Season Will Be Decided in St. Louis.

Winners of Grand American Handicap

1914.	W. Henderson	22	98
1915.	L. B. Clarke	18	96

(It will be noticed that the lowest score which won the G. A. H. was 91, and that only five times in 16 tournaments did the victor break fewer than 95. Furthermore, only three times did a 16-yard contestant win, while twice the victor was at the limit, or 22 yards. It will be noted that no shooter has won the handicap twice.)

The Grand American Handicap, the real feature of the trapshooting season, will be held here this summer at the grounds of the St. Louis Trapshooters' Association, Etzel and Ferguson, and it is up to the local officials to get busy if they expect to set a new entry record. The dates for the shot are Aug. 21 to 25.

In 1912, the event drew an entry of 377. The following season 501 shooters participated and in 1904 the total jumped to 515. Last year all records went to the boards, when 884 stars of the traps took part in the competition. In order to beat this mark, St. Louis will have to hustle.

Toledo has already notified the Interstate Association that it is in the field for the 1917 event.

Generally speaking, when the organization of a trapshooting club has been perfected, little thought is given at first to the erection of a clubhouse. This is probably due to the fact that most clubs are organized during the spring or summer months at a time when weather conditions are practically ideal.

Trapshooting is an all-year-round sport, however, and the rainy or otherwise inclement weather encountered later in the winter arouses the club members to the consideration of a shelter from the elements. The state of the organization's finances at this time naturally governs the style and size of the clubhouse erected. As the club continues to prosper and the funds increase, additions are added to the original structure or an entirely new house is built.

Many Attractive Places.

Among the most attractive clubhouses throughout the country may be mentioned that of the Piping Rock Club, situated at Locust Valley on Long Island; the New Lansdale Gun clubhouse at Lansdale, Pa.; that of the Du Pont Trapshooting Club at Wilmington, Del.; the United Shoe Machinery A. A. Gun Club at Beverly, Mass.; the Portland Gun Club's house in Portland, Ore.; the New York Athletic Club's home on Travers Island, N. Y., and that of the Bradford Gun Club in Bradford, Pa. The Neponsit Gun Club, until recently shooting over the water of Jamaica Bay, have moved their home and are now installed in a new $30,000 clubhouse, with an ideal shooting field.

FOUR GAMES TODAY IN INTERSTATE CIRCUIT

Four games are scheduled to be played today in the Interstate League. The feature clash probably will be the collision between the Alpen Braus and Manewals at Brock's Park. The Alpens have a record of three straight wins, while the Manewals, with Tex Hill on the hill, have captured their last two. Both teams will have their strongest lineups in the field.

The remainder of the schedule is as follows: Wabadas vs. Southerns, at C. B. C.; East St. Louis vs. Ben Millers, at East St. Louis, and Belleville Hustlers vs. Brockmeyers, at Belleville.

Sooner Runners Win.

STILLWATER, Ok., May 20.—Athletes representing the University of Oklahoma won the seventeenth annual Oklahoma inter-collegiate track and field meet on Lewis Field here, today, with a total of 48 points. One record was broken, Leekley of Henry Kendall College, throwing the discus 126 feet 10 2-3 inches. The former mark was 123 feet 4 inches, held by Anderson of the University of Oklahoma. A drizzling rain and a blustery wind slowed up the track events. Following Oklahoma, the entrants finished in this order: Oklahoma A. & M., 42½ points; Southwestern Normal, 22½ points; Henry Kendall, 19 points; Kingfisher College, 3 points.

SYRACUSE VARSITY CREW IS WINNER OVER NAVY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 20.—Syracuse's varsity eight defeated the Navy crew by a length and a quarter on the Severn this afternoon in the final event of the local rowing season. The visitors did the two-mile course in 10m. 17s., while the Middies' time was 4 seconds slower.

Prior to the varsity race Navy freshmen won from Philadelphia Central High School by nearly four lengths in 7m. 6s. The Philadelphians' time was 7m. 10 4-5s.

750 HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TO PRODUCE SHAKSPEARE PLAY

"Midsummer Night's Dream" and Tableaux to Open Tercentenary Pageant Friday.

ORCHESTRA AND CHORUS

Masque Written by Zoe Akins to Be Presented for Democratic Convention Visitors.

A company of 750 pupils of the Soldan High School will appear in the opening pageant of the Shakspeare Tercentennial Memorial next Friday afternoon in Forest Park, in a natural amphitheater selected for its remarkable advantages in lighting effects, just east of the bird cage.

A complete production of "Midsummer Night's Dream" will be followed by a series of tableaux from Shakspearean plays, in which 500 characters will be used.

The pageant will include representative folk dances, sports and games of the Shakspearean era, and music will be furnished for the occasion by a chorus of 100 pupils and the Soldan High School Orchestra of 50 pieces.

The pupils, coached by Miss Jennie M. A. Jones, teacher of English in that school, have been rehearsing for several weeks and are confident of their ability to produce the show in an entirely successful manner. The costumes of the pupils have been furnished by themselves.

Among the principals in the cast of "Midsummer Night's Dream" are Misses Elizabeth Hartman, Viola Aloe, Lovette Noel, Annette Stevens and Geneva Sturdevant, and William Littleton, Edward Stillman, Edward Bowles, Richard Thompson, William Bain, Herbert de Stabler, Victor Vollund, Duane Howard and Sol Cohen.

The amphitheater chosen will accommodate 5000 spectators. Parents and friends of the pupils in the cast will be given the preference in seats, and the public will be admitted to those which are left. All of the drives in the vicinity of the theater will be closed during the perform-

The high school authorities have received several requests for permission to make motion pictures of the pageant and all have been granted.

Part of Convention Program.

A Shakspearean masque, "The Wandering Fairies," by Zoe Akins, will be presented in Forest Park Friday and Saturday, June 16 and 17, under the auspices of the St. Louis Pageant Drama Association as part of the program which St. Louis is preparing for the entertainment of the delegates to the national Democratic convention.

The masque is written around fairy characters in the plays of Shakspeare and the entire piece will be performed by children, only one adult character, that of Prospero, being in the cast.

The scene is laid in Forest Park and Little St. Louis, who is enjoying the beauties of the early summer afternoon, meets all the Shapspearean fairies and hears their wonderful stories. The cast has not yet been made up

Committee in Charge.

The performance will be given in the municipal pageant theater, under the direction of a committee having the following members: George S. Johns, chairman; Miss Zoe Akins, vice chairman; Miss Thekla Bernays, treasurer; Miss Celia Harris, secretary; Miss Alice Martin, William Schoeller, Miss Irma Perham, Dr. Arthur W. Proetz, Mrs. Morris Skrainka, Mrs. Percival Chubb, Victor Lichtenstein, Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, Mrs. Charles P. Pettus, Charles Doering, Miss Elizabeth Morse, Miss Nina B. Lamkin and Mrs. O. J. McLane.

William Schoeller will direct the performance, Miss Alice Martin will coach the dancing, Miss Irma Perham will have charge of the costuming and Dr. Proetz will be chairman of the Music Committee. Three hundred children from the public and private schools of the city, as well as pupils of the various dancing schools, will form the cast.

MISSOURI BANKERS TO BEGIN 26TH ANNUAL MEETING TUESDAY

Buffet Supper, Smoker and Dance at Liederkranz Club Is Chief Entertainment Feature.

The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Missouri Bankers' Association will open Tuesday in the Garrick Theater, and will continue until Wednesday evening. An attendance of more than 1500 bankers and their wives is expected. Several bankers of national prominence will address the convention.

At the Tuesday morning session William E. Knox, Comptroller of the Bowery Savings Bank, New York City, will speak on "Thrift and Preparedness," and Thomas C. Middleton of Unionville, Mo., will speak on "American Idealism and American Business."

At the Tuesday afternoon session George E. Roberts, assistant to the president of the National City Bank of New York City, will speak on "Business After the War." He will be followed by John Barrett, director-general of the Pan-American Union, Washington, who will speak on "The New Pan-Americanism: What It Means to the Commercial and Financial Development of the Central West."

The St. Louis banks and trust companies will entertain the visitors Tuesday evening at a buffet supper, smoker and dance at the Liederkranz Club.

The Wednesday program will include addresses by Prof. G. I. Christie of Purdue University, on "Rural Development," and by A. C. Miller, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, on "How the Federal Reserve System Is Meeting the Requirements."

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

'SAFETY FIRST SPECIAL' TO BE AT UNION STATION

Government Exhibit of 12 Cars Here on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Government's "Safety First Special" train, comprised of 12 cars containing exhibits of safety devices, will arrive in East St. Louis Monday afternoon from Washington, D. C., and be placed on exhibit at Second street and Missouri avenue. It will be open for inspection Tuesday and Wednesday in the St. Louis Union Station, track 32, from 1 until 9 p. m.

The train was fitted up through a co-operative plan of Secretary of the Interior Lane and President Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, in order to show the people of the country what the Government is doing to protect the life and health of its citizens. The train was furnished free by the railroad. The St. Louis stop is one of many being made in the principal cities.

The Departments of the Treasury, War, Navy, Interior and Agriculture, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the American Red Cross Society, and the U. S. Marine Corps each have an exhibition car.

The car of the Marine Corps contains a machine gun of the latest type, full equipment of marines, a full-sized torpedo, and model of the pre-dreadnought "Vermont." Sergt. Jacob Leinard, who is in charge, has placed on exhibition medals he won in various competitions against riflemen of various armies.

The public is invited to make a thorough inspection of the exhibition.

PERENNIALS AT SHAW'S GARDEN OF INTEREST TO AMATEURS

English Garden, Now at Its Best, Filled With Old Fashioned Varieties.

The amateur gardener who wants to beautify his home without the trouble of continual replanting would do well to study the English Garden at the Missouri Botanical Gardens.

This garden is planted with perennials and is so arranged that the garden from the snowdrop period—which, in this country, is usually in February—until the ground is covered with snow, is a continual mass of blooming flowers and green foliage. All of the old-fashioned perennials which do well in this climate are planted in this garden. The garden now is purple and gold and yellow. The early spring blossoms and the flags and columbines are in full bloom. There will not be a week pass from now until late in the fall that bloming plants will not be found in this garden.

The beauty of a perennial garden is that it is a continual source of surprise and does not require as much attention as the annual planted garden plot. The flowers are hardy and endure greater heat, drouth and cold than the annual plants.

The main garden is now a mass of blooming shrubs and trees and tender green foliage. This is perhaps one of the most attractive seasons of the year in Shaw's Garden.

WEST END OPERATOR GETS IN CLOSER TOUCH WITH INTERESTS

B. A. Thompson Removes From Bartmer Avenue to Delmar Building, Near Hamilton Avenue.

B. A. Thompson, formerly of 6143 Bartmer avenue, has taken ground-floor quarters on a handsome new business block on the south side of Delmar boulevarde, just east of Hamilton avenue.

Thompson, who makes a specialty of handling West End property, especially the collection of rents, was located at the Bartmer avenue address for more than five years, but the growth of his business made larger and more central quarters necessary. Under his management are some of the largest apartment blocks in the West End, while listed with him for sale are some of the most attractive holdings, improved and unimproved, in that part of the city.

The new building, which comprises stores and offices, was erected by Thompson at a cost of $80,000. It is opposite the Pageant Theater, and places him in close touch with the real estate interests which he directs.

PROF. ISIDOR LOEB WILL ADDRESS REAL ESTATE MEN

Archbishop Glennon and Richard S. Hawes Also on Program of Exchange's Installation Banquet.

Prof. Isidor Loeb, dean of the faculty of Missouri University, has accepted an invitation to attend the annual installation banquet of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, to be held Thursday at 7 p. m., at the Missouri Athletic Association. His subject will be "Responsibility and Efficiency in Government."

Archbishop John J. Glennon will deliver the invocation, as well as an address. Richard S. Hawes will talk on the "Relation of the Banker to the Real Estate Agent," and "Jack" Ryan, special passenger agent of the Wabash Railroad, will relate short and snappy stories.

A. R. Schollmeyer will be toastmaster. The musical program will far exceed any of the previous affairs. Over 100 tickets have already been sold.

New Apartments for Agency.

The Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Real Estate Co. has been given the management of the Jefferson apartments, recently erected at the southwest corner of Waterman and De Bailviere avenues. There is only one vacancy in this building, comprising 60 apartments of from two to four rooms. This agency is one of the largest handlers of apartments in the city, the majority of them being llcated in this district.

PEACE TALK IS BULL FACTOR IN THE COTTON PIT

The cotton market showed considerable strength and activity last week. A bullish feeling has pervaded the market for some time, owing to peace prospects. Last season about this time there was the same class of news.

During the week fluctuations in the New York market were:

	Close May 13.	High for Week.	Low for Week.	Close Ystrday.
May	12.84	13.15	12.73	12.96
July	12.93	13.26	12.85	13.06
October	13.10	13.32	12.96	13.10
December	13.26	13.44	13.13	13.25
January	13.32	13.50	13.19	13.30
March	13.47	13.63	13.35	13.43

Liverpool Market Strong.

The Liverpool market showed considerable strength in the near positions and made moderate advances on the distant ones. Spot cotton in Liverpool advanced 28 Liverpool points during the week, middling uplands being quoted at 8.74d. May contracts advanced 26½ points. July-August advanced 19½; October-November, 11½; December-January 10.

Total sales for the week were 53,000 bales. Weekly imports were 89,000 bales, of which 82,000 bales were American; forwarded to spinners 90,000 bales, of which 79,000 were American; again we see the even balance between the forwardings to spinners and the receipts, a fair measure, probably, of what will be done for the balance of the present season. The sales, however, were larger than for some time, and that has much to do with the strength in the spot market and in the nearby positions.

Exports for the week were as follows: To Great Britain, 36,440 bales; France, 3193; to China and Japan, 22,970; to other countries, 17,986 bales; a total of 8859 bales for the week, and 4,771,647 for the season. With 10 weeks more there seems to be reasonable assurance that the total exports for the season will reach 5,500,000 bales, and a likelihood of 5,750,000 bales.

Spot markets all advanced quotations during the week, and there was very satisfactory selling. Prices were well up to quotations, and, in some cases, above them. Strangely enough, shippers claim that they cannot draw a bid of any kind from the mills, and sales are practically impossible.

Quotations in the principal markets of the United States were as follows: Galveston, market quoted steady; middling at 13.30c; New Orleans, steady, middling, 13c; mobile, quiet, middling, 12.75c; Savannah, steady, 12¾c; Charleston, steady, 12¾c; Norfolk, steady, 13c; Wilmington, steady, 12½c; New York, quiet, 13.20c; Boston quiet, 13.20c; Philadelphia, quiet, 13.45c; Houston, steady, 13.30c; Augusta, steady, 12.75c; Memphis, steady, 13c, Little Rock, steady, 12.88c; St. Louis, steady, 13⅛c.

Weather Is Warmer.

Summary of weather and crop conditions in the cotton region during the week ending May 16, said: "Warmer weather prevailed in most portions of the cotton region, causing a decided improvement, except where drouth continued, and in those parts of Texas where early planting was delayed by unfavorable conditions. In South Carolina and Northern Georgia dry weather has greatly hindered germination. Planting is nearly finished in the northern part of the belt, and replanting pushed. Cultivation in most portions is being prosecuted."

Since this report was published there have been well distributed and ample rains all over Texas and Oklahoma. In Georgia there were scattered showers and some benefit resulted; temperatures are favorable.

The first Government condition report will be issued June 1, and will show the condition of the crop on May 25. Some traders think this report will be bullish.

KANSAS CITY LIKELY TO HAVE TWO PREPAREDNESS PARADES

Committees of Security League and American Legion Clash on Date for Demonstration.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—At a joint meeting of the Executive Committees of the National Security League and the American Legion today, it was voted to hold the preparedness parade here June 3. Members of the legion wanted it to be held on Memorial day, but were outnumbered by the representatives of the league.

As a result the legion will stage what probably will develop into a preparedness parade on the morning of Memorial day. They will at least turn out in a body to welcome Col. Roosevelt and escort him to his hotel.

JAPAN TO BUILD LARGEST SUPERDREADNOUGHT IN WORLD

Will Carry 12 15-Inch Guns as Against Same Number of 14-Inch Cannon on U. S. S. S. Pennsylvania.

TOKIO, May 20.—The Japanese Navy Department has issued specifications for a new battleship. These call for a main battery of 12 15-inch guns; displacement, 32,000 tons, and a speed of 24 knots. The new super-dreadnought is also to have an improved defense against submarines.

The largest known super-dreadnought in the British navy is the Queen Elizabeth, of 27,500 tons displacement, a speed of 22 knots and a main battery of eight 15-inch guns. The British are believed to have larger ships afloat but their armament and specifications are not known.

The largest super-dreadnought in the American navy is the Pennsylvania, 31,400 tons, 12 14-inch guns and a speed of 21 knots. Germany's largest known super-dreadnought mounts eight 15-inch guns, is of 28,500 tons and has a speed of 23 knots. Neither France nor Russia has any so large, according to the latest official reports

Wheat prices averaged steady yesterday, influenced by assertions that Kansas never before had such a destructive visitation of Hessian fly as at present. The market, however, closed unsettled at $1.08⅜ for July and $1.10 for September. Corn gained ⅛c to 4c. Oats were unchanged.

Attempts, which in the last hour of the session early buyers made to realize profits, were responsible for wiping out of most of the early advance in the value of wheat. Some observers were disposed to ascribe the late selling, in part, at least, to rumors that the French Minister to Rumania had been handed his passports.

Previous to the last hour, the advantage almost from the start had been with the bulls, as attention had centered in Kansas crop situation, and there seemed to be unanimous agreement on the part of experts that unprecedented loss had been shown in some the largest producing counties.

Bears in wheat displayed considerable interest in the generous proportions attained by Nebraska receipts. Omaha, for example, had arrivals of 100 cars today, as against only 32 cars a year ago. It was said the prospect was for 250 to 300 cars there on Monday.

Unsettled weather kept the corn market firm, despite the late downturn in wheat. Reports were current that replanting of corn would be necessary in parts of Illinois and Iowa.

With the exception of crops expert reports from Kansas last week's market news was generally bearish, and the result was a decline of nearly 5 cents for the six-days' trading.

Despite the near approach of the winter wheat harvest, the domestic visible supply is nearly 20,000,000 bushels over last year, while world's stocks are nearly 200,000,000 bushels over. Receipts at domestic primary markets are running well above last year, but this would not be so bearish were not the Canadian receipts daily totaling 700 to 1000 cars in Winnipeg, compared with 200 to 300 last year, which is practically shutting off the export demand for United States wheat, as England is having no difficulty in obtaining her supplies from Canada.

Flour Trade Is Dull.

Aside from the bearish primary movement, the cash wheat and flour trade is unusually quiet, the Northwestern Miller reporting the business at Minneapolis last week the "dullest on the crop," while local mills have sold little flour for shipment recently, except by making price concessions to foreign buyers.

After the market for cash wheat had closed yesterday, 2c to 3c lower, an effort to sell several cars rather than carry them over Sunday, forced No. 2 red wheat down to sales at $1.10, a decline of 5c from previous transfers, and even on the decline buyers showed no decided inclination to take stocks freely. Other grades of cash wheat also met an indifferent buying power on the break, and the official report on the cash market designated it as "demoralized."

Foreign advices also favored the bear traders, as even on the rallies in the domestic market, Liverpool cables steadily showed declines, throughout the week. This, with a buoyant London market yesterday, gave additional color to "peace" talk, which was one of the big factors in the week's decline.

The same traders who a short time back were talking $1.40 wheat, now are predicting the price will drop below a dollar. They claim that recent weather conditions have materially improved the winter wheat crop, and that despite minor Hessian fly losses in Kansas, the next Government crop report will indicate about 510,000,000 bushels of winter wheat, compared with an estimate of 499,000,000 on May 1, and 495,000,000 on April 1. The harvest a year ago was 655,000,000 bushels.

Despite this reduction as compared with the last harvest, supplies on hand are so excessive that it is becoming the general belief that a moderate crop of winter and spring wheat will mean, with last year's carryover added, a wheat total next fall of close to the 1,000,000,000-bushel record of last year's yield.

Weather for spring wheat seeding was highly favorable during the week, and official estimates on the acreage planted indicated no reduction in South Dakota, and 10 per cent in North Dakota and Minnesota, whereas "crop killers" recently placed the lost acreage as high as 15 to 30 per cent in the three states.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash wheat was demoralized, and 2c to 5c lower, the latter on No. 2 red, which sold at $1.10 against recent sales at $1.15. Milling and elevator buying was light.

Cash corn steady to ½c off, but in good demand.

Cash oats ½c to 1c lower, but in fair inquiry.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKETS

PEACE RUMORS SEND THE RAILROAD STOCKS UP IN NEW YORK SPECULATION

Reading Leads the Market With a 12-Point Gain on the Week.

LONDON MARKET HIGHER

Sentiment on Foreign Exchange Is More Cheerful Than in Months.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The self-contradictory movements of the stock market, during the past few weeks and during the present week, are not very surprising when one observes the confusion of judgment with which the financial mind itself looks to the future. Even when prices have climbed it has repeatedly been difficult to ascertain exactly what was the Stock Exchange's real ground of apprehension.

"What might be termed the orthodox reason was, apparently, the prevalent doubt as to what would be economic conditions following peace. This motive was displayed in the market's action after any vague rumor of overtures to end the war. But this consideration was mixed with the real misgiving as to a possible rupture with Germany; therefore, when the communication which for the time put an end to that disquieting possibility also contained remark of Berlin's desire for peace, Stock Exchange opinion was left in much confusion.

The Clash With Germany.

"Of the two deterrent influences, the clash with Germany was manifestly the more formidable. The unpleasant possibilities of that were imminent, and to a great extent determinable, whereas the economic sequel to returning peace was a matter of conjecture. But the immediate abandonment of their recent murderous practices by the submarines seemed to show both good faith on the part of the German Government and ability to control the Admiralty. Indeed, so far as concerns the purposes of the German Foreign Office, this week's warning from Berlin to the pro-German conspirators in this country gave at least some added weight.

"It is true that such an announcement, made after more than a year of continuous plots and outrages, often conducted under the personal encouragement of the German Government's official agents in this country, cast an extremely curious light on that Government's past policies. Still, it was pretty clear confirmatory evidence of Berlin's desire to avoid at all hazards anything like a break with the United States.

"But if Germany is so anxious to end the war, may it not achieve the early return of peace? And if so, what is ahead of our own financial and industrial situation?

"This shifting of the central question in Wall street's mind accounts for the similarly shifting movement on the Stock Exchange, up to the middle of this week. But what then happened on the market seemed to be the beginning of closer inquiry as to this economic sequel of the war.

"The business community has been so completely preoccupied with the obvious facts that munitions exports, price of commodities like copper, lead and zinc, and manufacture of war materials by plants designed for the business, that it has possibly overlooked some other considerations. There was the case, for instance, of our $350,000,000 exports of 1913 to Germany. There was the cotton market—under a war embargo in the export trade, the ending of which would unquestionably bring an immense demand to restore depleted foreign supplies. Not least of all, there was the highly debatable question whether the railway industry and railway investments would be helped or hindered by termination of the war.

The Recent Pessimism.

"When Wall street was lately in its depths of pessimism the common answer was, that the transportation business would inevitably suffer, if severe and general trade reaction in this country were to follow peace. On closer examination, however, some other aspects of the matter were perceived.

"It is already perfectly well known that traffic in war munitions has been a very small part of the enormous business which has blocked the railway sidings. The recent spectacular increase of earnings has been quite as visible in the agricultural West as in the industrial East. The country as a whole is busy and prosperous—partly, no doubt, in consequence of conditions arising from the war, but very largely also because the war has coincided with the normal and traditional period of aggressive revival from the prolonged economic readjustment following 1907.

"Behind these considerations stood the further question, whether since railway securities have been held back by the constantly overhanging European liquidation, the return of peace would not mean something different to that portion of the market than it would mean to the "munitions shares." It is that phase of the controversy on which the Stock Exchange has been passing tentative judgment during the present week. The problem is not solved —indeed, the talk of immediate peace is itself growing somewhat fainter. Still, it is just as well that the financial community should look on both sides of the question.

"Nothing has been more fortunate to our general outlook than the spirit of great conservatism with which the future has been regarded by business men. Yet, some day, the inquiry will receive more serious attention, whether the mere fact that an enormously destructive war is over will not, in due course, have its usual beneficent influence."

Reading lead the rise in railway stocks last week, with a gain of 12¼ points. Other advances reached 3 to 5 points. Yesterday's market was steady."

LONDON REVIEW.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, May 20.—Wall street may safely disregard the reappearance, for the third or fourth time, of rumors that peace is immediately in sight. These reports are at least partly of German origin, and in so far as they reflect the gradual influence of German's economic distress, the wish is father to the thought.

I have no reason to change my recent cabled assurances that the end of the war is not yet in sight. The only thing that could bring about immediate negotiations would be such sudden change in German public sentiment as should force an appeal for peace on the enemy's terms. But this would be a political miracle.

The past week's substantial shipments of gold to New York from Ottawa, on London account, is simply enough explained. The movement has to do with the very resources in gold—not publicly reported, but at the constant disposal of the committee on American exchange—to which I have hitherto referred. These resources will be drawn upon at any time when the course of events renders it expedient.

The Market Position.

This week's action of the Treasury, in further officially stimulating mobilization of American securities, simply expresses the increased alertness of the authorities in looking ahead, with a view to providing for all contingencies of the autumn.

As for the weakness in sterling rates, which accompanied the gold movement, that was partly connected with the continuing increase of American exports, but was more immediately due to the sharp movement of the Scandinavian exchanges against London, which indirectly affected your rate.

Two important influences, however, are likely to correct these recent movements of French and Scandinavian exchange. The first is the agreement to lower the price of coal and freights to France, coupled with the movement in France towards mobilizing securities available as collateral on loans raised in neutral countries.

The second is the considerable fall in the price of timber, which has already affected the Scandinavian exchanges, those countries having shipped enormously. That decline is partly due to the interesting fact that Canadian backwoodsmen are being employed for the cutting of timber in this country.

Sentiment Is Cheerful.

The remarkably cheerful feeling on our Stock Exchange chiefly reflects the good results of the removal of minimum prices on "prior charge stocks" of English railways. This action necessarily caused a fall in prices; but it also converted something like £1,000,000,000 of "frozen" capital into liquid assets. Except that much greater economy is still required, our financial organization is much improved.

The city considers that the tension between the United States and Germany is definitely over, unless some further submarine outrage is committed. Our people are, however, a little sore over President Wilson's speech, as cabled, classifying all the European belligerents as equally mad. We are inclined to doubt if this remark was correctly reported.

Markets or Territory?

Some national advertisers seek to cover territory, others hunt for markets, and when they find them, cultivate them.

Frequently they ask the aid of good newspapers like the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in finding markets.

And when they find what they are looking for they advertise in newspapers.

Thus they not only reach consumers, but they enthuse retailers to an extent not possible in any other way.

Manufacturers more interested in definite markets than in wide territory are invited to make inquiries of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Commercial Advertising Department. Phone Central or Olive 6600.

STEER PRICES ARE 25 CENTS UP FOR WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS TABLE

	Last week.	Month ago.	Year ago.
Cattle	11,583	11,615	14,487
Hogs	54,158	51,397	53,600
Sheep	16,181	9,325	14,028
Horses and mules	4,494	4,562	5,997

Moderate receipts of cattle were distributed throughout the principal markets last week, and fairly stable conditions existed at all points. The local market was affected by this improvement. It was a steer week here, as over 75 per cent of the cattle on sale were steers. The quality was the best in months. There were good steers in every day. Top price was $9.80 on heavy steers and $10.25 on mixed yearling steers and heifers. Trade closed generally 25c higher, with plain steers about 15c up.

Butcher cattle sold stronger. Yearlings, which were fairly plentiful and better quality as a rule, were in demand. Prices jumped 25c to 40c, with a new top for the year of $10.25. Cows also were in demand and prices rose 10c to 15c. Top was $8.25, with good sales around $7.50 to $7.75 and the bulk from $6 to $7. Bulls were active and prices showed a slight advance. Best sold for $8.25, with bulk from $6 to $7. Vealers advanced 50c to 75c generally. Early top was $11.25, with a late high point of $11. Yearlings were in good call. Stockers and feeders were rather scarce. Good quality kinds advanced 10c to 15c.

Texas Cattle Are Firm.

Texas cattle showed a gain in price of 25c for the week. A string of fed steers went at $8.85, equalling the previous record on Texas steers. The bulk sold from $8.25 to $8.65.

Mixed stuff sold uneven. The good classes gained 15c to 25c, while common cattle only advanced 10c to 15c. The bulk of the canner cows sold from $4.65 to $4.90, with cutters from $5 to $5.50. Yearlings sold 15c higher. Heavies went from $4.85 to $5.25, with lights from $5.75 to $6.25. Some good cows sold up to $7.50.

The week opened with hog prices the highest since March, 1910, but there was a drop in values and the loss was 40c, about half of which was regained later in the week. Pigs and lights were much better sale than for some little time owing to a better Eastern demand for them.

The best sellers were the hogs around 200 lbs. and over. On Monday, which was the high day, the top was $10.25, while the bulk went at $9.90@10.15.

Wednesday was the low day of the week with the top at $9.90 and the bulk selling at $9.70@9.85. Mixed and plain packing hogs as a rule went at $9.50@9.85, while the throw-out rough packers went at $9.25@9.65, most of them at $9.25@9.50. Best lights under 165 lbs. sold at $9.40@9.75, fair grades $8.75@9.25, best pigs weighing less than 125 lbs. $8.40@9, fair to medium ones $7.75@8.35, and common ones around $7.50. Off grade pigs were slow sale, also poor grade lights.

Lambs Are Strong.

A moderate supply of sheep and lambs was received and the market was in good shape. Spring lambs and mutton sheep made a gain of 25c, while the clipped lambs advanced at least $1, and reached the highest basis in the history of the market. Clipped lambs sold as high as $11.10, while lots of them brought $10.65 and better. Some of these lambs were fed in Missouri and others were direct from the West.

Best springers went at $12.50@12.35, fair to medium grades $10.50@12, and the culls and those that were not very good at $8@10. Best mutton sheep sold at $8.70, and others went at $8.50@8.60, while the bucks as a rule sold at $7.

A fair supply of horses arrived and all grades found ready sale in auction at good prices. Drafts, that were extra good in quality and finish, brought attractive prices. The market for both Southerners and Easterners was unchanged. The inspecters carried away a little better than the usual supply, due largely to the return of the British, who featured in the buying. French and Belgians also bought horses, the latter being the strongest contenders on the market for warriors. The Italian commission was idle.

No improvement was noted in the mule market. Good mules, miners and war types were steady. Inbetween kinds and light-boned stuff was lower, and is falling off right along.

London Stock Market.

LONDON, May 20.—The stock market finished an active and firm week today in a buoyant and strong condition. A feeling of optimism prevailed with persistent peace talk. The amount of stock taken off the market during the last few days certainly indicates increased confidence and that a large amount of capital is still available. Today's feature was the strength in Brazilian, Colonial and American issues while consuls and the war loan advanced another fraction. Oil shares were active and mining stocks received attention. Money was plentiful and discount rates were quiet.

FINANCIAL

MARKET LETTER

Prosperity, which has been more or sporadic during the last 18 months, has arrived on a broad scale. It is basic rat than superficial. Our foreign trade grown to fabulous proportions, and we now in prospect of realizing our long want—a Merchant Marine—under most favorable conditions, and having paid for by Europe. Starting with the petus of foreign orders for munitions, Industrial Prosperity has grown to treme dous proportions, and has reached chann of industry quite remote from the dir activities connected with supplying the mand of Europe, and the demands of ne tral nations hitherto supplied by Europ nations now engaged in war.

While the purchase of finished war m nitions has fallen off in 1916 slightly, Gre Britain and France are now in the mark for large quantities of steel and copper. is to be inferred from this that these cou tries are gradually bringing up their ow manufactures of war munitions in quanti but are obliged to buy the raw materi from us. The United States Steel Co. now turning out more than 50,000 tons steel per day. Estimates are made th this production will reach 70,000 tons p day. The earnings of this corporation f the first quarter of 1916 of $60,000,000 com pare with $12,500,000 a year ago. Estimat for the second quarter are between $70 000,000 and $75,000,000 net earnings.

The Commerce Commission's statistics railroad earnings compiled for the month March show the enormous gains in gro and net earnings for this period. The gros of approximately $276,000,000 shows an i crease over March, 1914, of approximate $55,000,000, or 24 per cent. The net earn ings show a gain of 42 per cent.

The indirect effects of our industrial pro ress are now very much in evidence. No only are the resources of this country bein developed in order to supply the deman for finished products, and the railroads the country, taxed beyond their capacity transport our products, raw and finished thereby bringing their earnings to record breaking levels, but the various industri only indirectly affiliated with these cond tions are being most favorably affected.

Through the demands of manufacture for increased and more rapid productio public service corporations, selling gas a electric current, have a market for th product for commercial use, wholesale, quantities which by far exceed the mo sanguine expectations. Earnings of th companies continue to show gains from to 75 per cent over those of a year ago, an the reports from the properties show ev dence of increasing demands for power an light, heavy gains in street and interurba railways, and above the normal increase gas business. The above goes to show th 1916 is certain to set new and high rec ords of earnings in all classes of Publi Utility properties.

Another unlooked-for circumstanc is the rise in the price of oi Prices have risen out of all proportion the past year and continue to rise. Re finers, unable to get the required supp of crude oil in the United States, loo to Mexico and other oil-producing coun tries to supply their needs. The price gasoline has increased 100 per cent ov a year ago, and in the opinion of Mr Manning of the Department of the In terior will go higher before any perma nent relief is felt. As evidence of thi companies in competition have been un able to make a lower price to the Unite States Government than 31½ cents a gal lon on a year's contract, which woul lead us to believe that the individual con sumer will have to pay still higher prices Reports for 1915 showed over automobiles in use in the United States Manufacturers estimate that the numbe will be increased to 3,000,000 by Jan. 1917. As each automobile will consum more than 10 barrels of gasoline p year, on an average, this will mean tremendously increased demand from thi source alone.

Among the features which are prom inent in the investment markets throug out the country is the widespread pop ularity of Public Utility investment The Wall Street Journal recently gav statistics which were exceedingly inter esting along this line. These statistic show that there is a marked increase public utility bond banks and trust com panies throughout the United States.

We call attention to this for the reaso that the class of securities in whic banks may invest is very restricted an must meet rigid requirements. The in crease of bank holdings of public utili securities is proof of the fact that th class of investment meets the require ments placed by the State and nationa law governing the use of bank funds fo investment, and that the officers of the institutions are more and more realizin the safety and stability of this class investment. Furthermore, public servic corporations are under the direct juris diction of the State Public Utility com missions, whose duty it is to supervi the issuance of securities on th properties as well as to see that goo service to the public is maintained.

A close observer of investments cann but have noticed that utility securiti have come into much more demand of lat years. The reason for this is that th commodities which they distribute—viz gas and electric current—have not onl become absolute necessities to the pub lic, but the demand is ever increasing The demands for economic operations manufacture have increased the use o electric current for manufacturing pur poses. Earnings have, therefore, bee very steady and show large increases.

CITIES SERVICE COMPANY

The Cities Service preferred and common stocks offer at the present tim an especially attractive investment.

The preferred stock at 85 returns 7 pe cent net, and is now a first lien on al of the assets of the company, provision having been made for the retirement of th $7,000,000 five-year 7-per-cent notes an all other current indebtedness. Dividend requirements are being earned three time over.

The common stock as a BUSINES MAN'S investment offers an exceptional opportunity for profit.

It enjoys the steady earnings of strictly utility business, plus the increased earning derived from oil revenue. We believe tha the common will sell between $250 and $300 per share before the close of the cur rent year.

The company operates 75 public utility properties selling gas and electric curren to over 200 communities. The stability o these communities is shown by the fac that the populations in the aggregate in creased 40 per cent between the last tw census periods.

OIL REVENUE.

Cities Service Company, in the develop ment of natural gas, has from time to tim encountered quantities of oil. Toward th end of last year valuable oil lands wer uncovered near Augusta and El Dorado, Kan., which, as subsequent drilling oper ations have proved, are certain to largel increase the earnings of the company. Thi oil revenue up to the current year has no to any material extent been reflected i the earnings statement, only 5 per cent o the gross earnings for 1915 being derive from this source, and therefore the pas large earnings are from strictly utilit properties.

President Doherty in the 1915 annual re port says: "It must be borne in mind, however, that no matter what these oil earnings may amount to in the future, Cities Service Company is essentially a Public Utility Company with all th stability of investment that these words imply, and that the expectations of earnings from these public utility proper ties have been fully realized, and have now reached a point which assures for the company a splendid future aside from the earnings from the production of oil."

However, the gross earnings are bein materially increased through the company's OIL PRODUCING PROPERTIES. We quote from The Wall Street Journal of May 3, 1916:

"For the week ended April 29 the aver age daily amount of oil marketed by th Empire Gas and Fuel Company, the oil subsidiary of Cities Service Company, fro the new Kansas oil field was 6100 barrels. The largest average amount per day in an previous week was 5500 barrels.

"At the Big Heart gasoline extractio station an average of 4000 gallons per da of gasoline is being extracted from natura gas, but additions to the extraction plant are being made which will bring the out put up to 12,000 gallons a day inside of 90 days."

FINANCIAL FINANCIAL FINANCIAL

The Flemish-Lynn Phonograph Company

CAPITAL, $2,500,000.00

	Authorized	Outstanding
7% Cumulative Preferred	$1,250,000.00	$1,000,000.00
Common	1,250,000.00	1,000,000.00

Par of both classes of stock, $5.00

No Bonds, Notes or Funded Indebtedness—Shares Full-Paid and Non-assessable

THE Flemish-Lynn Phonograph Company has taken over all the business, assets, and plant of the Flemish Phonograph Company, a New York Corporation, and intends merging with the Lynn Phonograph Company of New Jersey. Various other phonograph companies, properties, patents and patent-rights on phonograph accessories, needles and records are to be acquired from time to time, through purchase or stock-ownership.

We quote a letter from President M. B. Baer as follows:

Brooklyn, New York, May 13, 1916.

Messrs. C. R. Bergmann & Co.,
66 Broadway, New York City.

Gentlemen:

In connection with the merger of the FLEMISH PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, Inc., and the LYNN PHONOGRAPH COMPANY would say, that I have been in the manufacturing business for over twenty years, but never in my career have I felt so sanguine about anything as I do of the possibilties before the new FLEMISH-LYNN PHONOGRAPH COMPANY in the field of the popular-priced phonographs.

The splendid equipment and plant facilities which we possess assure us of such a lead in the field as will out-distance all competition. At this moment we can, on a single nine-hour shift, produce about 1500 Phonographs of the various types per day, these machines to retail at from $4 to $15. With the machinery already contracted for, which is to be fully installed in our plant by July 1st next, we will be in a position to turn out, on a single shift, about 2000 complete Phonographs per day. By doubling this shift—which we can easily do with our splendid method of lighting, enabling us to work as well at night as in the daytime, we could have a maximum capacity of upwards of 3500 to 4000 machines per day.

Our modern plant is equipped to manufacture every part of the Phonograph under our own roof, thereby enabling us to effect the greatest economies of operation, and to produce Phonographs of the most modern type, including cabinets, at a price so that they can be retailed at practically one-half the price of any Phonograph on the market today. We have at the present time enough business on hand to keep our plant busy until the first of the year. We have just closed a contract with the Syndicate Publishing Co. which will represent 150,000 machines this year. We are also about to close a very large contract with the P. LORILLARD CO., the large tobacco distributors. We also have orders on hand and in sight for over 200,000 Lynn Phonographs. It is estimated, from orders already in hand or in sight, our net profits should approximate $2000 per day, or at the rate of $600,000 per annum for the next eight months. Constant expansion of our plant facilities will augment these figures.

Yours very truly,
FLEMISH PHONOGRAPH CO., Inc.,
M. B. Baer, President.

Application will be made to list these shares on The New York Curb Market.

The legality of the above merger and issues has been passed upon by Messrs. Bandler & Haas, Attorneys, 42 Broadway, New York City.

POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF REAL ESTATE NEWS

BY BERRY MOORE

LIQUIDATION IN REALTY PRECEDES ADVANCING VALUES

Market Condition Due Primarily to Maturing Deeds of Trust Not Susceptible of Renewal, and Sagacious Investors Snap Up Bargains.

FEW TRANSACTIONS IN BUSINESS CENTER

Finance and Mortgage Co. Incorporated as First Step Toward Construction of 14-Story Building at Eighth and Olive Streets—Leases Closed.

An active real estate market prevails in St. Louis, there being large and small transactions in considerable volume though gigantic deals are not at the moment conspicuous. The movement just now is due mainly to the fact that liquidation is in full swing. As a result, prices are at low levels, bargains are available and are being snapped up by the sagacious investors.

After the period of liquidation, which is due primarily to maturing deeds of trust, not susceptible of renewal, has spent itself, a general advance in values is expected, the consensus of opinion being that purchases at prevailing figures soon will yield substantial profit.

Frank R. Roseman, who has the happy gift of premonition, believes that there is a "guyde time" coming and is advising his friends to defer disposition of their holdings, at least until after the November election, to say nothing of the war.

Sooner or later the business revival, which is spreading to all lines, according to William Keane of Keane & Frank will be reflected in the real estate market, especially in centrally located holdings. He believes those who take advantage of existing conditions in the real estate sphere will be handsomely repaid in the early future. The demand for deeds of trust already exceeds the supply. Keane says indicating the predisposition of investors towards securities of that character.

There are comparatively few transfers of holdings in the business district east of Eighteenth street, but this is largely owing, it is believed, to the fact that owners in this section are sanguine as to the future of the city and content to await developments.

A Favored District.

Demand for quarters in the district between Market street and Washington avenue, and Twelfth and Eighteenth streets, is more pronounced than for a long time, and the rental situation in this center accordingly is steadily improving. This is more particularly true as to Chestnut and Pine streets, which are attracting businesses of various kinds, especially automobile concerns, which desire to be in close touch with the central business district.

As the first step toward the erection of a 14-story loft and club building at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets, the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. has incorporated the Finance and Mortgage Co. with a capital of $750,000. This structure will replace the Wright Cigar Co.'s building on the corner and the Holbrook-Blackwelder building at 810-812 Olive street, occupying practically a quarter block. The site of the former is held by Thomas Wright, vice president of the Third National Bank, and that of the latter by Edward L. Mallinckrodt, president of the Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. Mallinckrodt is to provide the capital for the erection of this building.

It is understood that the American Trust Co. has signed a contract for ground floor quarters in this building, while efforts are being made to lease several of the upper floors for club purposes. Architects are now working out the details of the building plans, which will be subject to Wright's approval.

Impetus From Post-Dispatch Home.

Olive street evidently is reflecting the wholesome effect of the Post-Dispatch building in process of construction at the northeast corner of Twelfth and Olive streets. Recently there have been announced leases of buildings both east and west of Twelfth street, which foreshadow a general awakening along this thoroughfare.

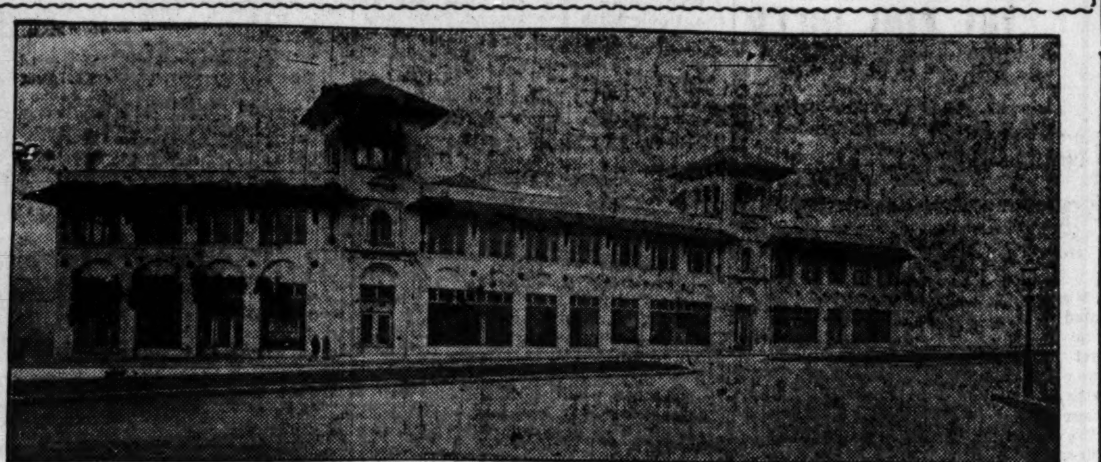
The Oil of Joy Whisky Co. closed a lease during the week for the four-story warehouse building at 1718 Olive street. The lessors were Wm. H. and James H. Maguire, who were represented by the James Maguire Real Estate Co. The concern is a subsidiary of the American Distillery Co. The lease is for a term of 10 years.

The Spool Cotton Co. has leased 40 per cent of the floor space in the 7-story building at the northeast corner of Eighteenth and Locust streets, for a term of 10 years. The lessor was the Washington University Association, represented by Isaac A. Hedges. The Spool Cotton Co. for several years has been located at 1109-13 Locust street.

The lease was placed on record yesterday by the Mercantile Trust Co., under which the Republic Truck Co. of Michigan, will occupy the new building at the southwest corner of Sixteenth and Chestnut streets. This building, which is being completed by the Welfare Realty Co., occupies a quarter of a block, and will be finished in mahogany and otherwise made available for the display of high-class trucks.

A building at 1502 Chestnut street was leased by the Spratts Patent Limited Co., while the A. S. Doxsee Co. leased a building on Pine street. Both leases were made by the Mercantile Trust Co.

Chevrolet Motor Car Co. Leases Quarters at Point Where City's Auto Traffic Divides



THE Chevrolet Motor Car Co., of which Russell E. Gardner is president, has acquired a 10-year lease of the two-story and basement building recently erected on the north side of Locust street, at its intersection with Lindell boulevard.

This building is situated at what is regarded as the most conspicuous point in the city for the automobile industry, being at the dividing point of the automobile traffic of St. Louis. It is of stucco throughout and of the Spanish type of architecture, with artistic towers at intervals of every few feet, in which will be installed large arc lights. The building was designed by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.

The Mercantile Trust Co. represented both the Pickel Realty Co., owners of the building, and the Chevrolet Motor Co. in the transaction.

The Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co. recently obtained control of the entire half block opposite the building leased by the Chevrolet company.

HAT COMPANY PRESIDENT BUYS CATLIN TRACT SITE FOR HOME

James T. Caradine to Begin Improvement of 100x530-Foot Lot in Near Future.

James T. Caradine, president of the Caradine Harvest Hat Co., yesterday closed contracts with Cornet & Zeibig for the purchase of lot 16 in the Catlin tract, overlooking Forest Park, and will improve it in the near future with a handsome home.

The lot, the dimensions of which are 100x530 feet, is situated between the new homes of Claude E. Vrooman, president of the St. Regis Apartment Co., and Alfred J. Siegel, president of the Huttig Sash & Door Co., the location being just east of De Baliviere avenue. The homes of Walker Hill, president of the Mechanics-American Bank, and Frank O. Watts, president of the Third National Bank, are also located in this block.

Ernest Edwards, of the sales department of Cornet & Zeibig, negotiated the sale.

MILLIKEN BUYS PORTLAND PLACE HOME OF LATE GEO. D. BARNARD

Residence in Exclusive Section Contains 23 Rooms, Seven Baths and Electric Elevators.

John T. Milliken closed negotiations during the week for 35 Portland place, the home of the late George D. Barnard, through the agency of Franciscus & Kunz. The home, one of the most imposing in this exclusive West End, has 23 rooms and seven baths. These include a ballroom, palmroom, drawing and dining and billiard rooms.

The house is replete with up-to-date features, including electric elevators. The lot is 126x200 feet.

BOTANICAL AVENUE APARTMENT BUILDING BOUGHT BY BIXBYS

Three of the Four Family Divisions of Three Rooms Each Have Sun Parlors.

Elizabeth J. and Fred F. Bixby yesterday purchased, through Barngrove & Specht, the four-family apartment building, 4215-17 Botanical avenue, on behalf of Edward H. Wallenbrock.

These apartments comprise three with sun parlor attachment.

Seated in the large sun parlor, looking towards the rear of the building, one has the feeling of being in a high-class West End apartment, rather than in a three-room flat. The Abbott Realty Co. represented the seller.

BUILDING $25,000 APARTMENT

William Hambly Erecting Structure in North Parkview Place.

The Dyas Realty Co. reports the sale of a lot, 60x148, on the east side of Limit avenue, North Parkview Place, about 75 feet north of Von Versen avenue, to the Elroy Realty Co., of which William Hambley is president.

Hambley has started erection of an apartment building to contain six apartments of four rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch, each. Garage will be erected in the rear. The building will rent for $3540 a year. This apartment will cost $25,000 and is to be completed by Aug. 15, and will be under the management of the Dyas Realty Co.

CLEMENS AVENUE HOUSE SOLD

Sol Kurlander Buys 13-Room Residence at 5821.

The Mason-Trepp Real Estate Co. yesterday sold 5821 Clemens avenue for J. W. Singer of the Singer Bros. Cloak Co. to Sol Kurlander of the Kurlander Bros. Cloak and Suit Co.

It is an attractive buff brick house, having large front veranda and 13 rooms and two baths. It is finished in hard wood. The lot is 70x185.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

OAKLAND TERRACE, NEW HOME SITE, PLACED ON SALE

Addition Offered by Hemmelmann-Spackler Adjoins Forest Park on South.

The Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estae Co. has placed on sale Oakland Terrace, first addition adjoining Forest Park on the south. Oakland avenue, one of the main streets of this district, bounds Forest Park on the south.

The addition has improved streets, water, sewer, gas and sidewalks. One of the streets, Fairmount avenue, is restricted to bungalows, for which the site, owing to its park environment, is especially attractive. The Market street car passes the property, thus offering direct transportation facilities for downtown St. Louis, without transfer.

The company purchased this tract at a low figure and is in a position to offer lots on attractive terms and prices. Nothing less than a two-story building or a bungalow can be erected on any lot in the subdivision.

HIGH MATERIALS COST UPSETS SHAW PLACE APARTMENTS PLAN

Three of the 10 Residences Built by Late Owner Sold, and Negotiations On for Six Others.

Shaw place will not be improved with apartment buildings, owing to the high cost of building material, as was originally intended by the Welfare Realty Co., the new owners of the tract. This was announced yesterday by the Matthews Real Estate Co., along with the sale of three of the 10 residences built in the addition by the late Henry Shaw. The purchasers are Homer Bassford, Prof. Miller and Robert Mepham, who will modernize the houses.

Negotiations are pending for the six unsold houses and indications are that the subdivision will soon be entirely out of the market.

A Board of Trustees has been formed to govern the addition, with full power to make all improvements deemed necessary to maintain the high standard of the property.

IMPORTANT CONCERNS LEASING QUARTERS ALONG OLIVE STREET

Demand for Homes on the 1200 Block Works Significant Change in its Appearance.

The Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. has effected a lease of 1210 Olive street to the Olive Street Automobile Auction Co. The premises are being extensively improved to adapt them to the automobile business.

"Numerous leases in this block have recently been made to other important concerns," said a representative of the Harris company, "and anyone who will compare the appearance of this part of Olive street with that presented a few weeks ago will have his good opinion of that thoroughfare strongly confirmed."

Several other leases and sales of business property are in course of completion by the Harris company.

GLIK OPENS INDIVIDUAL OFFICE

Will Devote Much Attention to Stock Company Which He Promoted.

Edward Glik, formerly of the Archshoefer & Glik Real Estate Co., has opened an office in the Boatsmen's Bank Building, and will devote his endeavors to loans, sales and leases and development of the Continental Real Estate Investment Co., a stock company which he aided in promoting and establishing.

Glik entered the real estate field in January, 1909, with I. Archshoefer. In February, 1912 the firm of Archshoefer & Glik was incorporated. Glik being secretary and treasurer. The Continental company, of which he is secretary and treasurer, is capitalized for $25,000. Glik's ability and experience make strongly for success in his new enterprise.

Last year the Post-Dispatch printed 43,734 Male Help Wanted Ads, just 11,002 more than its nearest competitor.

QUARTERS LEASED FOR STORE AND TWO FACTORIES

Grain Products Co., a New One for St. Louis; Bag Manufacturer Needed Larger Space.

Three leases were closed yesterday which reflect the growth of St. Louis from different angles.

The Grain Products Co., a client of the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., has taken a lease of 10,000 square feet in the Rumsey Building, at the southwest corner of Nineteenth and Pine streets, which is owned by the Investment Real Estate Co.

The building will be equipped to meet the requirements of the lessee, which makes Bran-eta Biscuits, a bran food.

The Grain Products Co. has a capital stock of $100,000. W. T. Mars, treasurer and manager was formerly treasurer of the Kirkwood Trust Co. Its sales department will be in charge of Ashley V. Black, for 14 years head of that department of the Shredded Wheat Biscuit Co.

N. Jaffie & Co., manufacturers of bags and burlap, has leased the three-story and basement building at 2013-15-17 Morgan street, to be used exclusively as a factory. The company is located at 1715-17 Carr street. The new quarters will give it about 20,000 square feet of floor space. The building is owned by the Salorgne Realty Co., which was represented by the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co.

Issac Thorn has leased, through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., a storeroom and basement, 22x105 feet, at 619 Washington avenue, to be used as a store for millinery and furs. The lease provides for an annual rental of $10,000.

Thorn, who now conducts a similar store, at 605 North Broadway, is negotiating for other places, with the intention to establishing a chain of stores for these wares in St. Louis.

A new modern plate glass front, together with fixtures, will be installed in the new store, which will be finished in white enamel with the window backing in white enamel. It is the intention of Thorn to make this store one of the finest milliery shops in this city.

BLOCK CONTAINING 42 BUNGALOWS TO BE A SHOW PLACE

Several of the Picturesque Homes Built by Koplar Co. on Lafayete Avenue Already Sold.

Twenty one bungalows, now building on Lafayette avenue, between Klemm and Tower Grove avenues, will bring the entire number of bungalows built on this block, by the Sam Koplar Real Estate Co., to 42.

This block, built up wholly with these picturesque and homelike residences, will form one of the show places of St. Louis. The proximity of this location to Shaw's Garden and Tower Grove Park adds to its desirability for this class of improvements.

A number of the bungalows have been sold in advance of their completion, and the remainder will be on view so long as they last. By building so large a number of these dwellings at one time, the Koplar company has enable itself to make exceptionally favorable prices to purchasers, and easy terms are also made for payment.

Former Mayor Kreismann is president of the company, and Sam Hamburg Jr., is vice-president and treasurer.

The Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co. has the agency of the property.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS' REPORTS OF THEIR SALES

FRANK L. DITTMEIER R. E. CO.

Bell Company Official Buys Edmunds' Portland Place Home

SAUM ARCHITECTS

EUGENE D. NIMS, first vice-president of the Bell Telephone Co., has purchased the handsome residence recently erected at 56 Portland Place by Herbert M. Edmunds.

The house, which is of the Tudor English style, is constructed of mat brick, with stone trimmings and half timber work. There are 15 rooms and five baths, all finished in ivory white and in conformity with the general style of the building. A feature is a great living room with a chimney piece of exquisite workmanship.

Saum, architect, designed the building in collaboration with Mr. and Mrs. Edmunds.

INCUBATOR HATCH METHODS DETAILED BY QUISENBERRY

Unfolding of One of Nature's Greatest Mysteries Takes Place Only Under Proper Conditions.

By T. E. QUISENBERRY,
Former Director of the Missouri Poultry Experiment Station, Mountain Grove.

The transformation of an egg into a live chick in the space of three weeks is one of Nature's mysteries, yet it is one which has become so familiar that we scarcely give it a passing thought. To study the egg from the time heat is first applied until the chick emerges from the shell is one of the most fascinating as well as the most profitable lines of investigation, in which the poultryman can engage. In so doing much knowledge of the greatest practical value will be gained as to the best methods of managing the incubator.

Given proper incubating conditions, the following changes will take place in the egg as the processes of incubation advance, as described in United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 236. "The egg will show signs of hatching within 30 hours after its first exposure to heat. Along about the twenty-eighth hour a point denoting the head and another denoting the heart will appear. About the forty-fifth hour the expert can detect a slight motion of the heart. In about 70 hours the membrance known as the allantois appears. This envelope is the temporary breathing apparatus of the chick. On the fifth day the streaks denoting the limbs can be seen. On the sixth day the liver can be located, and a slight voluntary motion is observable. By the seventh day the lungs, stomach and brain show development. The eyes can be found by the tenth day, and on the twelfth day the feathers begin to form. The bill opens and shuts by the fifteenth day, and the cry of the chick is heard about the eighteenth day. Soon after, or early in the nineteenth day, the chick bursts the air cell at the end of the egg, and begins to use its lungs in breathing. From this time it grows rapidly, and soon becomes strong enough to break through the shell."

The Essential Conditions.

We have said that the above changes take place provided the incubating conditions are right. Let us see what these conditions are. The most important of them is, of course, heat, for without heat no changes of any sort will be noted. The general rule is that a temperature of 103 degrees Fahrenheit is the proper temperature for incubation, and this is true. However, many operators find that they secure fully as good, if not better, results by keeping the eggs at 102 degrees during the first few days of incubation, and at 104 degrees during the last few days. Great care should be taken, however, not to let the temperature run any higher than 104 degrees, except when the chicks are actually hatching, when a temperature of 105 degrees will do no harm.

Another, and a very important, requirement for bringing off a successful hatch is proper moisture. This is a matter concerning which no general rules can be laid down. Conditions as to moisture vary so greatly that each hatch must be studied by itself in order that the proper amount may be supplied. For instance, if the weather is dry, more moisture will be required than if the weather is damp and rainy. Again, if the incubator is placed in a damp cellar or cave, very little, if any, additional moisture will be required, while if it is placed in a dry basement, where there is a furnace, special pains will need to be taken to supply additional moisture to keep the contents of the egg from evaporating too rapidly.

More moisture is required, under average conditions, toward the close of the period of incubation than during the earlier stages. This may be supplied by keeping a saucer of water in the bottom of the incubator. If the incubator has been kept in a rather dry atmosphere, it is a good plan to sprinkle the eggs with lukewarm water on the morning of the eighteenth or nineteenth day.

Still another requirement for the successful hatch is proper turning and cooling. We have all observed the hen turning her eggs with a rolling motion of her body and with her beak, and we all know that she is accustomed to leave her nest for from 15 minutes to an hour daily. Therein does the incubator operator receive his authority for turning and cooling the eggs. Experiments have also shown that the hatch is materially reduced unless this is done. The daily turning of the eggs is necessary in order that all parts of the egg may be subjected to proper temperature, and to keep the egg from becoming too dry on the top side. It has been noted in experiments that where eggs were not turned, many chicks became attached to the shell and were either deformed or died in the shell. Just why daily cooling is necessary is not so clear; in fact, it is undoubtedly of considerably less importance than the matter of turning. The time of cooling may be gradually lengthened from 10 minutes to half an hour daily as the period of incubation advances, provided the temperature of the room is mild. The eggs should be neither turned nor cooled after the eighteenth day, however.

Last, but by no means least, is the matter of testing. Some people of a more or less careless and lazy disposition do not test their incubator eggs. They claim that it is unnecessary, and point to the fact that eggs incubated under hens are not tested and yet satisfactory hatches are secured. It is more important to test eggs in incubators than under hens, because spoiling eggs exude a gas which is very injurious to the developing chicks in the other eggs, and which cannot pass out of the egg chamber as readily as from under a hen. The eggs should be tested at the end of the first and second weeks. The stronger the light used, the easier the testing. Electricity has come into such general use that the most of the testing is now done by means of this light. Electric testers are now on the market in which the current is furnished by dry batteries, thus making this method available to those who do not have electric lights in their homes. When the first test is made, all eggs that show clear when subjected to the light are infertile and should be taken out. Eggs that show a small black spot with spider-like lines radiating from it are fertile. Those concerning which there is some doubt should be left for the second testing.

After all is said and done, the operator must remember the old adage that "practice makes perfect." To surround the egg with those conditions which will enable it to produce a husky chick requires constant study and observation. Printed directions serve only as a foundation upon which to build.

Missouri U. to Have Course on Poultry

The man who wishes to know how to raise chickens or desires to equip himself to teach others how to raise them, will have an opportunity at the University of Missouri, Columbia, from June 8 to Aug. 4. For the first time during the regular summer session there is being offered a complete course in poultry keeping.

All the details of practical poultry raising necessary for success in the management of a poultry farm or a farm poultry flock are included: the houses, fixtures, appliances, eggs and poultry for market, judging chickens and how to mate and breed them, feeds, feed mixtures and how to use them, hatching with hens and incubators, raising by natural and artificial methods, disease, etc.

There will be two lectures daily in addition to laboratory work. J. D. Elliff, director of the summer session, or H. L. Kempster, professor of poultry husbandry, can give full particulars.

Remedy for Mites Wanted.

Poultry Editor Post-Dispatch.

Please ask some raiser of canary birds among your readers to give a good remedy for mites on birds. I have tried all kinds of insect powder, but the mites seem to crawl through them without harmful effect upon themselves. I have also tried sulphur smoke in the cages, but this has failed to get rid of them.

CANARY FANCIER.

St. Louis, May 15.

You might try coal oil on perches and other places where mites could hide.

Quisenberry's Answers to Poultry Problems

Crop-Bound or Inflammation of the Crop.

Can you tell me what is wrong with my choice rooster? His crop swells up, turns black and he makes a peculiar choking noise. After going this way for a week or two he vomits a black corruption. He seems to be very well for a day or so, and then the same thing over.—Mrs. M. E. L., Festus, Mo.

The bird evidently is cropbound, or has inflammation of the crop. Give it some warm water by pouring it down its throat, then knead the crop by working it with the hand and fingers. Turn the head of the bird downward and, by gently pressing and kneading the crop, you can work much of the sour and foul contents from it. Repeat the operation, then give a teaspoonful of castor oil as a purgative. Follow this with one-quarter teaspoonful of common baking soda in a tablespoonful of water to correct the acidity. Charcoal has a tendency to correct the acidity and should be kept before the birds at all times. Also give bismuth, two or three grains, about three times a day. If this does not relieve the trouble, the bird evidently has an impaction in the crop and this will not allow the food to pass from the crop to the intestinal tract. You will doubtless find the crop filled with oat hulls, straw, feed and such things as the bird has been eating. The passage leading from the crop has become obstructed and the food and fiber has accumulated until it has formed a hardened mass, which the bird is unable to handle or pass off. The grain or other feed has soured and there is an offensive odor arising from the contents of the crop. Sometimes this condition can be relieved by forcing castor oil down the bird's throat and kneading and manipulating the crop with the fingers. The mass may be loosened up and softened so that it will pass from the crop. Warm water is poured down the throat by some, and the crop washed out to some extent by holding the bird's head down and manipulating the crop while some of the contents are worked off. If this does not relieve the bird, it will then be necessary for an operation. Pull a few of the feathers from the skin in front of the crop. Take a sharp knife and make an incision in the crop about three-quarters of an inch long. Take a pair of tweezers or pinchers and remove the grass, straw and grain a little at a time. Clean the crop out thoroughly and wash out with warm water. Then sew up the crop with silk thread. Be careful not to get anything between the crop and the skin. Then take a few stitches in the outside skin. Place the bird in a comfortable, quiet place, away from the rest of the flock. Water and give soft feed for a few days.

How Should Hatching Eggs Be Packed?

Please tell us how eggs for hatching should be packed so that they will reach their destination by parcel post or express lines, without being broken in transit. What kind of boxes should be used, and how should each individual egg be treated, wrapped, etc., so as to get safely through and in good condition? Out of 1000 eggs shipped by parcel post this season, one egg was broken on the way. My experience with the express companies has been shocking. Some of my friends have had a similar story to tell. In one lot sent by express the small end of 40 eggs were just cracked, showing the box had been dropped or set down violently by someone through whose hands it had passed. How can they be packed so as to resist injury when subjected to such harsh treatment?—Mrs. K. B., Overland, Mo.

There are a number of good egg boxes on the market. These vary in size from one setting to three settings each. We would use these boxes in the following manner: Wrap each egg in a piece of paper about six inches square. Place the egg in the receptacle with the small end down. After the eggs have been packed in the box take an ordinary 5c or 10c market basket and line the bottom with about two inches of excelsior. Place the box on this excelsior and pack the space between the sides of the box and basket with excelsior. Place some excelsior over the top of the box, cover this with a piece of cheese cloth or cheap domestic and after trimming the the cloth so it will extend over the sides of the basket two or three inches or longer, take an ordinary caseknife and force the edges of the cloth up under the rim of the basket or between the rim and basket proper. Or you may line the basket with excelsior and, after wrapping the eggs in the paper, then wrap a bunch of excelsior around each egg and the paper until it makes a ball about the size of your fist or a trifle larger. Place firmly side by side in the basket and cover the top with a layer of excelsior, put on the covering as before and paste your label, "Eggs for hatching; handle with care," on the cloth. Eggs will travel from one coast to the other when packed in this manner and will seldom have any broken by either parcel post or express.

Wheat Bran a Food for All Age Poultry

Wheat bran is a food that may be kept before poultry of all ages at all times, with profitable results. It is especially desirable for chicks and young stock on account of its bone and muscle-making properties. Chicks should have access to it from the time they begin to eat until they are marketed. By keeping it before them at all times it serves as a kind of balancer for the entire ration fed. The nature of this feed is such that fowls cannot, or do not care to overfeed on it as they would on other feeds if kept within reach of them at all times.

The bran should be fed in such a manner that the birds cannot waste or soil it. A good way to do this is to give it to them in a shallow box with a strip of poultry wire tacked over it. This keeps the birds from getting into the bran and scratching it out, but allows them to pick at it at will.

A slatted crate placed upside down over the box or other receptacle in which the bran is placed, makes another good way to feed it. The fowls can reach the feed through the openings between slats, but they cannot throw it out or soil it.

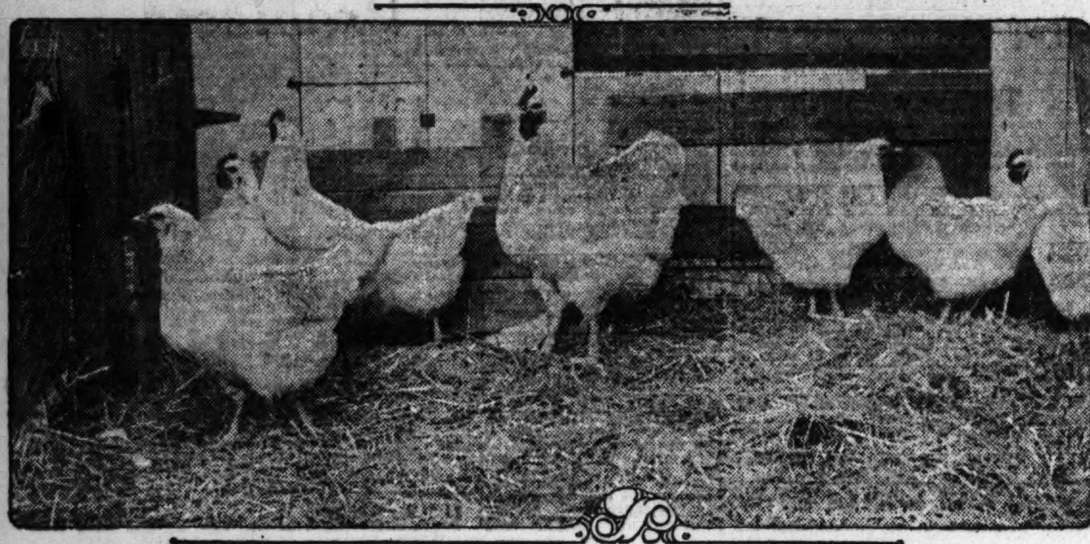
Seven Handsome, Profitable, Well Cared for Birds in Scratching Pen of Western Poultry Yard



WHITE PLYMOUTH ROCKS, BRED BY J. MARTZ, WYMORE, NEB.

How to Rid Fruit Trees of Worms

Every year many thousands of bushels of peaches and plums are lost because the fruit becomes wormy and rotten. These serious "worm" pests can be controlled to a large extent by careful spraying.

To control brown rot and plum curculio, spray with self-boiled lime-sulphur mixture and arsenate of lead. The latter is to destroy the curculios and the lime-sulphur mixture destroys the spores of the brown rot.

Preparation of self-boiled lime-sulphur mixture: Eight pounds of the best fresh stone lime should be placed in a barrel and water enough added to cover it. As soon as the lime begins to slake, eight pounds of sulphur, that has been run through a sieve to break up all lumps, should be slowly added. The mixture should be stirred constantly while the powdered sulphur is being added to keep the mixture in the form of a thick paste. This should gradually be made into a thin paste. Care should be exercised not to allow the mixture to boil after all lumps of lime have slaked down. When the lime and sulphur have become thoroughly mixed cold water should be added to prevent further cooking. The mixture is now ready to be strained through a sieve of 20 meshes to the inch into the spray tank. Water enough should be added to make 50 gallons. The mixture must be agitated constantly while being applied, as it settles rapidly.

Before adding it to the lime-sulphur mixture, the arsenate of lead must be worked free with water. Two pounds of the paste arsenate of lead is added to each 50 gallons of the lime-sulphur mixture.

Best Way to Grow Raspberry Plants

Raspberry plants should be set in hills six feet apart each way. Set three plants to the hill and set a stake six feet long in each hill, with the canes tied twice to this. The perfection will reach a height of six to eight feet. Cultivate thoroughly during the picking season. Cut out the old canes as soon as they are done bearing. In the spring, after the second or third year, the canes are topped back to about six feet. Set three plants to a hill in order to get a good crop the second year. The extra plants cost little more, and give a bigger return. From a planting of 4000 hills more than 8000 pints of berries the second year have been obtained.

SELLING OUT
FURNITURE
OUR ENTIRE STOCK.

We are retiring from the retail furniture business and must dispose of our entire stock of new, up-to-date furniture, refrigerators, gas stoves, rugs, etc., and to do this in the next few weeks we have cut the prices, in most cases below cost; this gives you an opportunity to buy high-grade, new home furnishings cheaper than you may ever expect to buy again; our time is short, so you will have to hurry. Open Monday and Sat. eve. until 9. Only 10 days more.

SERIES OF NAME-DAY TEAS BY BOARD OF CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

Thomas and Samuel, Lucy and Frances Chosen for Affair to Be Given Tuesday Afternoon.

The St. Louis Children's Hospital management has begun a series of Name day teas. The medical ward of the board has in charge the next one to be given Tuesday. The names selected for this day are Thomas and Samuel, Lucy and Frances, and those in charge suggest that "as a remembrance to your friends of these names, would you not like to come and make a gift to our little patients?"

A number of the women of the medical ward will act as hostesses and be very glad to welcome guests and show them through the hospital. Tea will be served at 4 o'clock p. m.

POWDER IN SHOES AS WELL AS GUNS

Foot-Ease to Be Added to Equipment of Hospital Corps at Fort Wayne.

Under the above heading the Detroit Free Press, among other things, says: "The theory is that soldiers whose feet are in good condition can walk further and faster than soldiers who have corns and bunions incased in rawhide.

"The Government's foot powder order is regarded as the last word in the scientific outfitting of the defenders of the flag."

The English, French and Allied Troops constantly make use of Allen's Foot-Ease. It takes the friction from the shoe and rests the feet. Foot powder, shaken into the shoes of soldiers, has long been in use in the German army, and Uncle Sam's adoption of this form of treating and easing the feet, emphasizes the testimony of the millions of people the world over who are shaking Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder, into their shoes, and using it in the foot bath, as the only practical and lasting treatment to ease and prevent sore feet. Sold by drug and department stores everywhere, 25c. Sample sent FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y., U. S. A.

W. H. PHELPS AND J. B. SHANNON HERE IN ROACH'S BEHALF

Try to Line Up Senator Kinney, Lawler Daley, J. P. Miles and "Boots" Brennan.

ST. LOUISANS SURPRISED

Democrats Have Understood All Along Local Leaders Were for Col. Gardner.

The fight of Democratic aspirants for the nomination for governor in St. Louis developed in earnest yesterday when William H. Phelps, senator from Jasper County, and Joseph B. Shannon, faction leader of Kansas City, appeared in a follow-up campaign in an effort to line up Sentor Michael Kinney, Lawler Daley, James P. Miles and William J. (Boots) Brennan for Cornelius Roach, Secretary of State.

Roach was in St. Louis the greater part of the week attempting to "get the boys in line," and immediately after his departure Phelps and Shannon appeared.

The candidates have figured that Kinney, Daley, Miles and Brennan are about the only Democratic politicians in St. Louis who actually can deliver votes at the primary, and consequently efforts in St. Louis have been centered on obtaining their support.

Kinney Keeping Silent.

Kinney said last night that he had had a long conference with Phelps and Shannon that he had made no announcement of his position on the governorship, and that he intended to make no statement in the near future.

That there should be any question of the support of these leaders has surprised many Democrats, the general impression having prevailed over the State that Fred D. Gardner would have almost the solid support of the St. Louis Democrats in the primary.

It is the opinion of politicians that all of these leaders have already determined whom they will support in the primary, and it is not considered unusual that they have not openly stated their preference, it being pointed out that the usual procedure of city politicians is to wait until about the night before the primary to take a definite stand publicly and tell their ward workers for whom the votes they can control will be cast.

Roach Is Confident.

Roach Friday expressed himself as confident that he would carry many wards in St. Louis. He mentioned no names, but said that he had received assurances from Democrats of prominence that he would have their support.

Shannon is counted on to carry his faction in Kansas City for Roach. Shannon and Phelps, who is one of Roach's strongest supporters, have been close friends for many years. Shannon, with the aid of the Major police machine in Kansas City, was able to carry the spring primary for Mayor Jost for renomination, but in the election failed to control the city, the Pendergast faction voting with the Republicans.

The Pendergast faction is considered the stronger in Kansas City, and while Tom Pendergast, its leader, has made no public announcement of his choice for Governor, there is a feeling that he probably will be for Gardner, because of Shannon's alliance with Roach and Phelps.

The Roach organization throughout the State is confident that if Roach can take from Gardner the support of Kinney, Miles, Brennan and Daley, that Roach will win.

The Gardner forces have caused to become widely circulated throughout the State a report that Gardner will carry St. Louis overwhelmingly, and that his nomination will mean that the Democratic ticket will stand an excellent chance of wiping out the Republican majority of approximately 20,000 in St. Louis.

The Roach supporters are attempting to counteract the effect of such statements by circulating reports that Roach will be able to almost break even with Gardner in St. Louis.

Phonograph Company Takes Over a New York Corporation.

The Flemish-Lynn Phonograph Co has taken over all the property of the Flemish Phonograph Co., a New York corporation, and intends merging with the Lynn Phonograph Co. of New Jersey, according to a dispatch from New York.

The new company has an authorized capital of $2,500,000, equally divided between 7 per cent cumulative preferred and common stock. There is outstanding $1,000,000 of each issue, both of which have a par value of $5, and are fully paid and non-assessable. The company has no bonds, notes or funded indebtedness of any kind.

President M. B. Baer of the Flemish Phonograph Co. says that the company has enough business on hand to keep his plant busy the rest of the year.

Application will soon be made to list the outstanding stock on the New York curb. Announcement is made by C. R. Bergmann & Co. that all of it has been disposed of.

HIGHER COAL RATES JUSTIFIED

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Proposed increases of from 3 to 20 cents a ton in the rates on bituminous coal over the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railroad from points in Southern Illinois to points in Missouri near St. Louis on the Missouri Pacific, were found justified today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

SOCIALIST EDITOR INDICTED AS LEADER OF STEEL WORKERS' RIOT

Officers of Industrial Union Also Among 57 Persons Named by Pittsburg Grand Jury.

PITTSBURG, May 20.—Fred W. Merrick, former Socialist editor, was today charged by the grand jury investigating the Braddock riot, with being the real leader of the mob which, on May 2, attacked the Edgar Thompson works of the Carnegie Steel Co. and was driven off with three dead and 20 wounded.

The jury brought in two indictments, naming 57 persons as having been connected with the riot. These include the officers of the American Industrial Union, the organization of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. strikers from whose meeting, after an address by Merrick, it is alleged the mob started. The first shots, the jury declared, were fired from the ranks of the mob.

The defendants, many of whom have been in jail since the battle, will be brought to trial as soon as possible.

BANK SUES ON $90,000 NOTE

Commerce Acts Against Henry Rueckert, a Contractor.

The National Bank of Commerce yesterday filed suit against Henry Rueckert, a contractor, for $90,000, on a note executed by G. A. Heman, Sept. 1, 1915, which fell due March 1. The petition sets forth that the note was indorsed by Rueckert, B. G. Brinkman, Henry Ziegenhein, J. A. Christopher and Louis J. Nicolaus. The last four were not named as defendants.

It was explained by counsel for the bank that the security on the note was perfectly good and that the only object in filing suit was to obtain a judgment to make collection.

Two Children Hurt in Runaway.

Eleanor Kissed, 8 years old, and her brother John, 5, were slightly injured yesterday when a horse drawing a light wagon in which they had been riding with their father, John Kissed, ran away. The father had gone into a house at Edwards street and Wilson avenue to deliver some candy when the horse began to run. The wagon was overturned in front of 5321 Wilson avenue.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In memory of Vince Browner, died May 27, 1916. May his soul rest in peace. Sadly missed by his wife and children and friend, Mr. Ott.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our beloved daughter and sister, Laura J. Sandler, who departed this life five years ago today, May 21, 1911.

The month of May is here again, the saddest in the year. You are gone, but not forgotton. Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear son and brother, Lamence Burger, who departed this life two years ago, May 21, 1914.

Two years have passed since we laid
you to rest,
And placed your cold hand upon your
dear breast.
In silence you suffered, with patience
you bore,
Till God called you home to suffer no
more.

Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTER. (c)

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Dina Sanders, wife of the late Adam Sanders.

The month of May again is here,
To us the saddest of the year,
Because it took from us,
The dearest one two years ago today,
Her loving heart is now at rest,
God took her home when he thought best,
When we are done with toils and care,
We will meet our darling mother there.

Sadly missed by her CHILDREN, GRANDCHILDREN, and those who loved her.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my dear wife, our mother, mother-in-law and grandma, Amalia Baldenweck, who passed away May 22, 1915.

One year it will be since we laid you
to rest
And placed your cold hands upon your breast.
In silence you suffered, with patience
you bore,
Until God called you home to suffer
no more.
We think of you night and morn,
And oftentimes we feel forlorn.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN, SONS-IN-LAW AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Josephine Sutter, who died May 24, 1915.

One year has passed since we laid you
to rest,
And placed your cold hands upon your breast;
In silence you suffered, with patience
you bore,
Till God called you home to suffer no
more.

Sadly mourned by CHILDREN.
MRS. O. RHODES.

IDEAL SPIRITUAL SOCIETY. Meetings every Tuesday, 2:30. Mrs. Rosa, 1525 Carr street.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of Edna Irene Berger (nee Wollbrinck), beloved wife of Charles Berger, darling daughter of Henry and Kate Wollbrinck, sister of James and Kate Wollbrinck, who passed away two years ago, May 16, 1914.

We stood beside her bed of death,
Bowed down were we in sorrow;
We knew she would be lost to us
Upon the coming morrow.
From her lips the cheerful smile
Could not by death be driven,
And with a hope of future bliss
She passed from earth to heaven.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

Have You Learned, as Many Others Have, How to Use This, the Most Tireless Force That Man Has Harnessed?

Most persons have a pride in being "modern" in dress, in information, in home-surroundings, and in their mode of living, nor are they slow to make use, in their daily lives, of the most "modern" things in the world—the most "up-to-date" convenience of nowadays' life—the most tireless force that man has yet harnessed and impressed into his service—"want advertising."

For instance, last month the Post-Dispatch printed 63,000 want ads, 12,000 relating to employment, 16,000 to homes, rooms and real estate, 14,000 to buying and selling, 3000 to business opportunities and financial, leaving nearly 23,000 for miscellaneous business notices, lost, found and personal.

Phone your want. Call 6000—Olive or Central. Or leave the ad with your nearest druggist.

LOST and FOUND

Solid agate, 10c line, minimum 20c.

IF YOU LOSE ANYTHING and will advertise it here, you will surely recover it if found by an honest person. A two-time ad seldom fails. Remarkable recoveries are brought about every day through this column. Your druggist our agent.

IF YOU FIND ANYTHING, bring it to the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau, 210-12 North Broadway. Get a claim check. Advertise the article, claim it if the owner does not.

THE LAW—People who find lost articles are interested in knowing that the State law (sections 8263 and 8273, R. S. 1909) is strict in requiring them to seek the owner through advertisement and otherwise, and that a failure to do so, if same can be proven, involves a severe penalty. (52)

Like a Good Bond—

The mere fact that you are not ready to build this Spring is no reason why you shouldn't avail yourself of present Ames Place prices. A thousand dollars or more planted in this best and surest of St. Louis property is perfectly safe and offers splendid chances for profit.

Let our representative, at Trinity and Berlin Avenues, quote you prices and give you the decidedly attractive terms on which an Ames Place lot can be bought.

And Look Around You

Notice the attention that is given to every little detail of keeping Ames Place spick and span. A contract has just been let for oiling and rolling the streets. In winter time one service arrangement provides for keeping the walks free of snow. In the summer time the parks and shade trees have expert attention, furnished by the trustees. Even the hauling of ashes is attended to for the whole place.

This perpetual care goes along with full restrictions and is bottomed on the best of street-making, sidewalks, alleys and other physical improvements.

It is part of the policy that has been pursued from the start by owners who knew that this ground deserves the best of everything. It puts the final touch of elegance on the solid superiority of

BEAUTIFUL
SOUTHMOOR
—BRENTMOOR DISTRICT
Offers Ideal Home Sites at Moderate Prices

SOUTHMOOR has every advantage anyone could wish for in the way of location, exclusiveness and improvements.

Southmoor is on Pennsylvania avenue—300 yards south of Wydown avenue—immediately south of Brentmoor and Forest Ridge. It overlooks Forest Park, Washington University and Hillcrest on the east, and [illegible] Webster Groves and Kirkwood on the west. [illegible] than Lindell boulevard at Skinker road. Southmoor is convenient to schools and churches.

Southmoor's restrictions and improvements are practically the same as Brentmoor's. The owners either live in Southmoor or are interested in [illegible] build homes there. Naturally they are interested in securing the best conditions, and not being forced to sell, purchasers are assured of protection, and that lots will be disposed of only to desirable home-builders. Under no circumstances will Southmoor lots be auctioned. [illegible] sewers and gas are all in and paid for, and are of the best—the lasting kind.

Lots are of generous width, with an average depth of [illegible] not large enough to be burdensome. As a special inducement to early buyers, we are authorized to make very low prices.

Go out to Southmoor and see for yourself what an attractive homesite it is. Take the Clayton car to Pennsylvania avenue and walk two blocks south to the entrance, or drive out Lindell boulevard and Wydown avenue.

BUY A BUNGALOW
DON'T BUY A LOT

Because the present high prices of building materials and unsettled labor conditions and strikes will make your house cost 50 per cent more than a year ago. Hence it would not pay you to build now, even if you got the lot as a gift.

We can sell you a fine bungalow, built when material and labor were low, on a selected lot, at much less than the house alone would now cost; $3500; must be seen to be appreciated; 7 rooms, glazed brick, steam heat, slate roof, tile bath, sleeping porch and every modern improvement; only one left; easy terms; 5304 Neosho st.; take Chouteau (Southampton) car to the end, then go 3 blocks south; on premises Sunday.

KATHMAR ACRES

Come out today and spend a few hours beneath its great oak trees, and enjoy the view. There is no more beautiful part of St. Louis County than that to be viewed from the hills in Kathmar.

Let us show you how a large part of the rent that you may now be paying can be applied to the purchase of your own home. An acre in Kathmar is well within your means to purchase at the present low prices, and the wonderful westward growth of the city will make your purchase of a homesite in Kathmar a profitable investment, for values will increase more rapidly each year. We want you to see what we can do for you in Kathmar Acres.

You can buy a whole acre in Kathmar, approximately sixteen city lots of 25-foot frontage, for the price of one of those 25-foot lots in the city.

HOW TO GET THERE:

To reach Kathmar Acres take the Ferguson-Kirkwood line at Wellston and transfer to the Florissant division at the transfer point west of Ramona Park. The fare is five cents from Wellston. Leave the car at Genevieve avenue.

For full information and beautiful folder of Kathmar Acres see the agents.

A BUNGALOW FOR RENT MONEY
Bring the Wife and Kiddies Out Today

It is the need of every child to have that close communion with nature which is impossible in the crowded city.

Have you noticed the delight it gives your children to be taken to the park? How they enjoy the trees, the grass, the flowers, the sunshine? How their eyes brighten and their cheeks glow after a day in the open?

Don't you owe it to these dear ones to see that they get their birthright—a chance to grow vigorous and strong in the open country and fresh, pure air?

GLEN ECHO PARK
Second Subdivision

On the Lucas and Hunt Roads, opposite Glen Echo Golf Club. In the direct line of the city's westward growth. Telford streets, granitoid walks, water and electric lights.

Prices and Terms Easy

To go to Glen Echo take the Kirkwood-Ferguson line going north at Wellston, get off at the Lucas and Hunt Roads, walk three blocks south, or take the St. Peter's car on the St. Charles line at Wellston direct to the property. Fare, five cents beyond the city limits.

Little River Drainage District lands in Southeast Missouri are going fast; we have sold 64 tracts in 15 months; $40 up for cut-over land, $75 up for improved; have absolutely nothing to offer in trade and therefore decline to answer trade proposition. Box Y-156, Post-Dispatch.

SEE THIS, YOU WILL BUY

120 acres, all tillable, 80 in cultivation, balance timber, part valley, spring water, 6-room frame house, barn, poultry house, wellhouse, silo, fruit; ideal in every respect; two miles to good town; rural route and phone services; a bargain at $5000; will sell on liberal terms. VICTOR WM. REITZ, JR., Central 1789L. 620 Mermod-Jaccard Bldg.

JUST THE PLACE

To raise children, chickens, fruit, keep a cow and beat the high cost of living problem; 6-room brick, lot 650 ft., on north side of North av., 300 feet in depth, on west line of Berdie av. and 300 feet in depth, on east line of Eminence bl.; fruit trees, grapes, garden, barn, chicken house and root cellar; high ground, with beautiful outlook over surrounding country; St. Charles electric line to St. John Station, walk north to Phillips place; price reduced for quick sale. SIDEBOTHAM, Agent, 5971 Easton av.

IT IS FORESIGHT!

Not hindsight, that lays the foundation of a great fortune; the undeveloped lands in the Little River Drainage District, Southeast Missouri, present a rare opportunity for investment at present prices, which are ridiculously low; I can sell you as good unimproved land as can be found in the district at $40 to $65; the drainage tax will average under $15; it can be cleared for $20, and much of it is $300 land; I have inspected every tract listed with me and none of the soil looks under the $200 class; I have 28 tracts, aggregating nearly 12,000 acres, to offer, and am satisfied I will sell them all before snow flies. Are you to be one of the lucky purchasers? Box Y-239, Post-Dis.

YOUR LAST CHANCE!

1916 will see all Little River Drainage District lands in firm hands and most of it permanently held; I believe unimproved land now selling from $35 to $65 will not be obtainable below $100 before the close of 1917; I and my correspondents have listed over 50,000 acres of cut-over unimproved land, which we can sell at $37.50 to $55; some of this land is as fine as there is in the entire district, and is today well worth double what we are selling it for; terms, one-fourth to one-half cash, balance to suit. Box Y-213, Post-Dispatch.

41 Acres—St. Louis Co.—20 Acres

Of valley land; small house; good spring; county road through the land; one mile from station; will take income. SHANTZ R. E. CO., 103 N. 9th st.

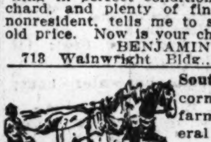
41 MILES FROM ST. LOUIS.

Unimproved, all under cultivation except about 1 acre; which is in large timber; half mile from station and good town; will make an ideal country home; land faces on Manchester road; price $2500; will trade for city property; must be clear. C. CARSON, 624 Chestnut st.

MUST SELL

The best 150-acre farm in Franklin County, 1¼ miles south of St. Clair, that charming little summer resort, 55 miles from St. Louis on the Frisco; 100 acres in cultivation, and balance in timber and pasture; fenced and cross-fenced; good six-room house with large barn and all necessary outbuildings; everything in perfect condition; good family orchard, and plenty of fine water; owner, a nonresident, tells me to sell at once at any old price. Now is your chance for a bargain. BENJAMIN F. THOMAS, 718 Wainwright Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.



Southeast Missouri corn, alfalfa and wheat farms. We have several thousand acres of improved and unimproved rich black soil located in Stoddard and Mississippi counties, which are known to be one of the most fertile sections of the country. Corn, 70 to 90 bushels; wheat, 24 to 34 bushels; alfalfa, 4 to 5 crops per year. It will pay you to investigate, as it is the coming section and being settled very rapidly by Illinois and Iowa farmers. The same land will be worth from $125 to $200 per acre within a few years. We offer this land at a big bargain. One trip will convince the most skeptical person that it is a sure investment; if not will refund railroad fare. Terms can be had from 5 to 10 years. Call or write for list of farms. E. E. HETHCOCK, 320 Third National Bank Bldg., St. Louis. (99)

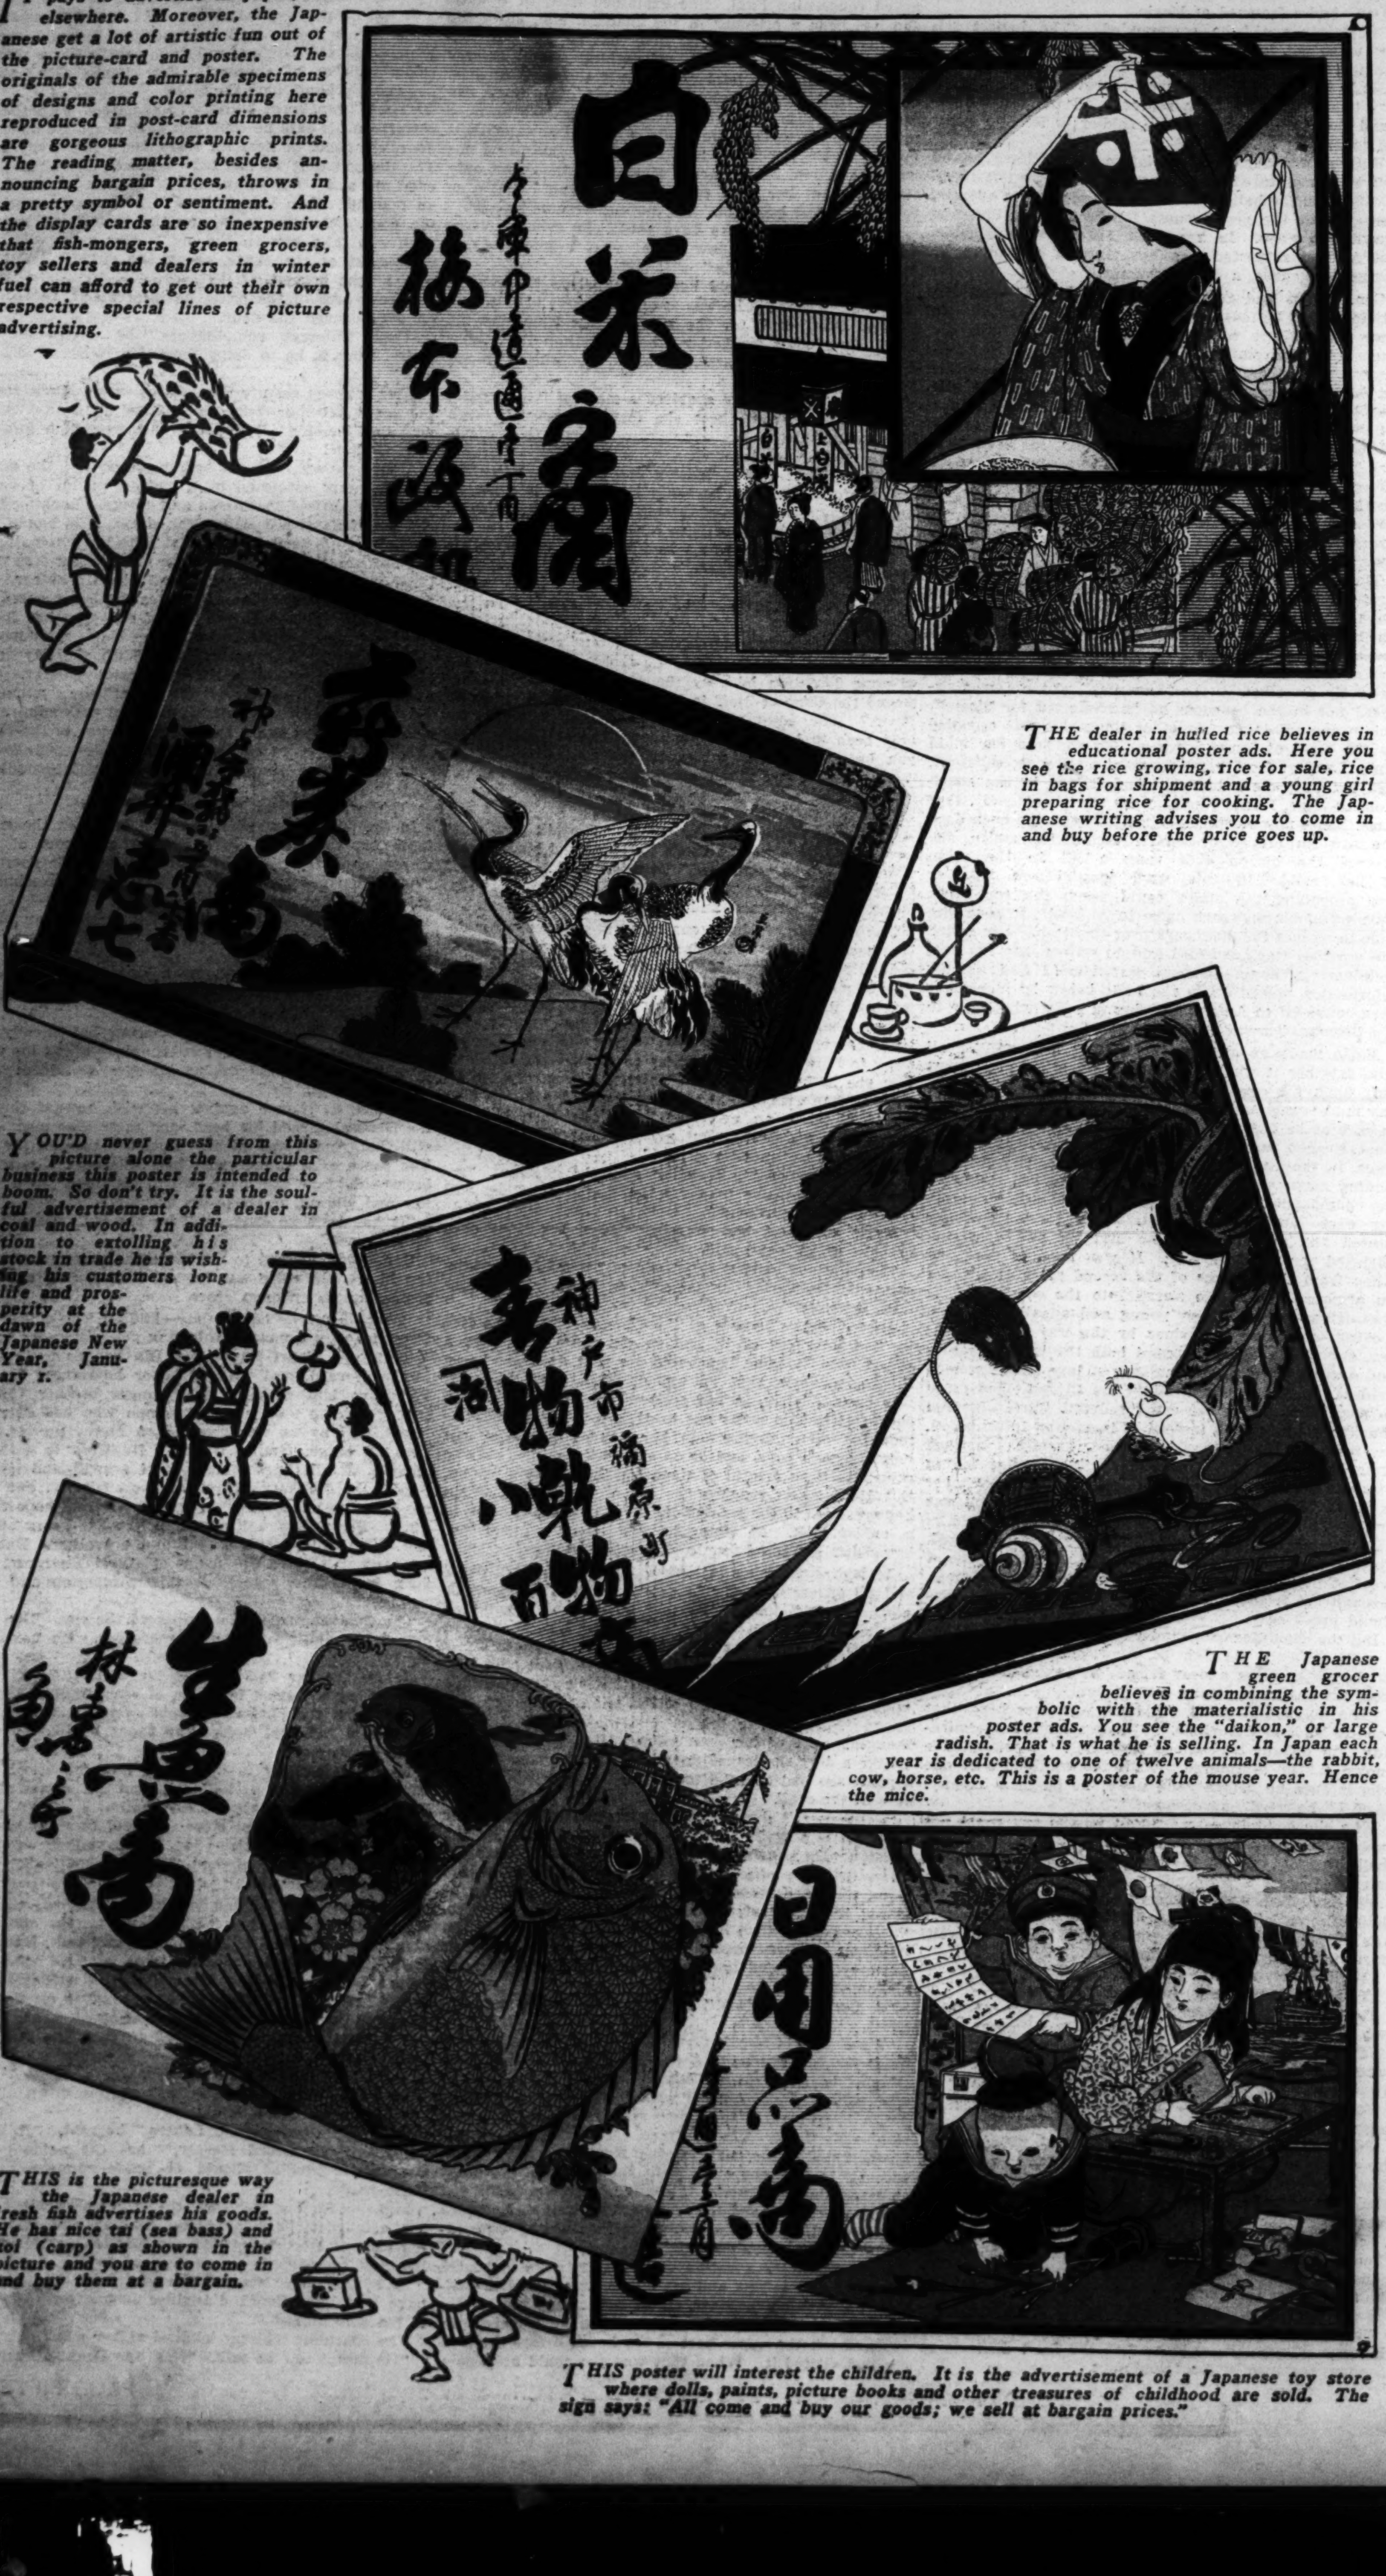
The Colorful Poster Ads of Artistic Japan

IT pays to advertise in Japan, as elsewhere. Moreover, the Japanese get a lot of artistic fun out of the picture-card and poster. The originals of the admirable specimens of designs and color printing here reproduced in post-card dimensions are gorgeous lithographic prints. The reading matter, besides announcing bargain prices, throws in a pretty symbol or sentiment. And the display cards are so inexpensive that fish-mongers, green grocers, toy sellers and dealers in winter fuel can afford to get out their own respective special lines of picture advertising.



THE dealer in hulled rice believes in educational poster ads. Here you see the rice growing, rice for sale, rice in bags for shipment and a young girl preparing rice for cooking. The Japanese writing advises you to come in and buy before the price goes up.

YOU'D never guess from this picture alone the particular business this poster is intended to boom. So don't try. It is the soulful advertisement of a dealer in coal and wood. In addition to extolling his stock in trade he is wishing his customers long life and prosperity at the dawn of the Japanese New Year, January 1.

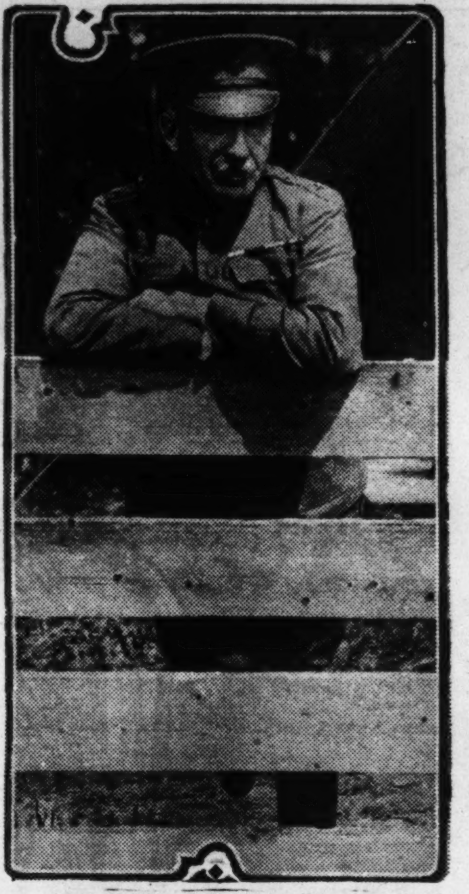
THE Japanese green grocer believes in combining the symbolic with the materialistic in his poster ads. You see the "daikon," or large radish. That is what he is selling. In Japan each year is dedicated to one of twelve animals—the rabbit, cow, horse, etc. This is a poster of the mouse year. Hence the mice.

THIS is the picturesque way the Japanese dealer in fresh fish advertises his goods. He has nice tai (sea bass) and koi (carp) as shown in the picture and you are to come in and buy them at a bargain.

THIS poster will interest the children. It is the advertisement of a Japanese toy store where dolls, paints, picture books and other treasures of childhood are sold. The sign says: "All come and buy our goods; we sell at bargain prices."

Gen. Wood Shows What Unpreparedness Cost the United States in Four Wars

In Revolution we enlisted 400,000 volunteers, but could not whip 40,000 British without help of France—In War of 1812 we raised half a million volunteers, but for two years 16,000 British ravaged country, capturing Washington — Frightful cost of lives and money in Civil War due to military inefficiency — Our incompetence in war with Spain



MAJ.-GEN. LEONARD WOOD

Sayings of Gen. Wood

We are cheerfully confident that an untrained American is as effective in war as a highly trained and equally well educated foreigner of equal physical strength and intelligence.

We ignore the fact that valuable territory, great wealth and commercial aggressiveness, accompanied by weak arrangements for defense, are always an incentive to attack.

There are two types of peace. There was the peace of Rome under Augustus, when Rome and Roman citizens were respected by their neighbors; there was the peace of Honorius, in whose time pacifists prated as they do today. Emperor Honorius raised poultry and the barbarians overran the empire.

This country has never engaged single-handed in war with a first-class nation prepared for war.

One would not think of putting into a lifeboat men who could neither row nor swim; yet we presume to send them into battle unfamiliar with the use of arms. It is murder—nothing else.

If men presented themselves for the crews and teams of their universities and said they were willing to go into athletics, but would not train, they would receive scant courtesy at the hands of their college mates.

Our great military resources, unless developed and organized, will be of no more value in the quick onrush of modern warfare than an undeveloped gold mine in Alaska would be in a crisis on Wall Street.

THE question of what would happen should the United States be invaded by a military power has probably been the most widespread subject of discussion engendered in this country by the European war. The debaters on both sides have generally considered the question theoretically; it remained for Major-General Leonard Wood, former Chief of Staff of the United States army and one of our foremost military authorities, to point out that this eventuality has already occurred in our history, and that, owing to a lack of preparedness analogous to that of today, we suffered "a series of disasters and reverses on land, many of them highly discreditable in character."

He refers to the War of 1812, in which, it is amazing to state, the general impression seems to be that we administered a severe defeat to Great Britain. For this delusion, according to Gen. Wood, the patriotic lies of the school histories are responsible; they gloss over the ignominies which the United States endured on land, but exaggerate our victories on the sea—which, glorious as some individual actions were, left England at the end of the war precisely what she was at the beginning: the undisputed mistress of the seas.

What were the facts? In 1812 the United States numbered seven millions of people, but since the Revolution the military establishment, despite the warnings of men like Washington, had been suffered to fall into decay. Nevertheless, the Government suffered itself to be goaded into a declaration of war against Great Britain. There were in those days prototypes of William Jennings Bryan, who made boasts similar to his famous one, that if the President called for volunteers "one million would respond before nightfall." Great Britain was remote from us on sea by as many weeks as she is now days in distance; and she was engaged in a life-and-death struggle with the greatest foe in all her history—Napoleon Bonaparte.

The volunteers were readily forthcoming, to the number of 527,000 men enrolled during the war. Against these Great Britain, according to the astounding statistics given by Gen. Wood in his recently published book, "Our Military History: Its Facts and Fallacies" (Reilly & Britton) opposed a force which at no time exceeded 16,800 men. But the half million Americans were untrained and undisciplined, while the British were regular soldiers.

The most dramatic instance resulting from the difference in efficiency between trained and untrained soldiers was the capitulation of Washington—surely as disgraceful a surrender of a capital city as ever occurred in history, but one which the school histories hasten past. According to Gen. Wood the capital was attacked by 3500 British troops, of whom only 1500 went into action. It was defended by about 6000 men, mostly without military training. These 6000 were attacked by the British 1500, with effects that seem to make Falstaff's boasts of his prowess come true. For the 6000 had no sooner suffered a loss of eight killed and 11 wounded when they took to their heels, leaving the capital city to the mercies of the enemy.

Yet the most important lesson for us in the War of 1812 is contained in the following words, Gen. Wood having explained that the effective British force in the war averaged only 5000 men:

"For the period of two years, 5000 British soldiers brought war and devastation into our territory and successfully withstood the misapplied power of seven millions of people."

"We put some 527,000 men into the field," the author continues, "and the British regular force in this country at no time exceeded 16,800. Yet, taking the war as a whole, it was disastrous and highly discreditable to us on land.

"Generally speaking, our campaigns against Canada were hopelessly ineffective. In 1814 Commodore McDonough's victory on Lake Champlain terminated an advance which, had it not been for naval successes, might have reached New York and cut off New England from the rest of the country. The gallant action at Lundy's Lane, where there was a strong nucleus of regulars, and minor successes on the Thames, formed the bulk of our creditable actions on land during the period of the war."

Jackson's victory at New Orleans was a remarkable one, Gen. Wood is glad to admit, but he points out that the British troops made a frontal attack without cover upon fortified troops trained in the use of the rifle. Nevertheless, the issue might have been different had Col. Thornton"s highly successful attack on the Americans on the west bank been delivered a little earlier in the day, for it would have made the American position on the other side of the river untenable.

"The entire War of 1812," Gen. Wood sums up, "was but another instance of the unwisdom of our general policy—no well-thought-out organization in time of peace, no sound policy in the way of preparation, failure to do in time of peace those things which cannot be improvised in time of war." Great Britain finally made peace because her hands were full in the Continental struggle against Napoleon; but in the Treaty of Ghent there was no mention of the original cause of the war, which was England's intolerable tyranny in the impressment of American sailors into her navy.

In the same fashion, the author proceeds to demolish the fictions of our histories concerning our other wars. It is not a little humiliating to learn that in the Revolutionary War the colonies enrolled 395,858 troops, while the British forces at the outset of the war numbered 20,121, and at the end of the war only 42,075. Yet, despite this overwhelming preponderance of numbers, the British could not finally have been expelled except for the aid of the French army and navy at Yorktown.

The enrollment of nearly 400,000 men was nullified, according to Gen. Wood, by lack of efficient system. At no time did Washington command an effective force of more than 20,000 men in line. He was compelled every year to create a new army, for short enlistments, frequent furloughs and desertions caused his forces to melt away like snow in the sun. Our largest force was in 1776, when we had 89,000 troops, of whom 47,000 were Constitutionals and 42,000 militia. From this year on the strength of the American force dwindled steadily until, in 1781, it was a trifle over 29,400 men.

There was another side to the medal on which stands the famous picture, "The Spirit of 1776," and it is engraved with the acid of a bitter spirit, that of George Washington. In his caustic letters, quoted by Gen. Wood, occur passages like the following:

"Egregious want of public spirit — instead of pressing to be engaged in the cause of their country, which I vainly flattered myself would be the case, I find we are likely to be deserted in a most critical time. * * * Such a dearth of public spirit, such stock-jobbing and fertility in all the low arts to gain advantages of one kind or another I never saw before, and pray God's mercy that I may never be witness to again. * * * Such a mercenary spirit pervades the whole that I should not be at all surprised at any disaster that may happen."

The tragic results of military unreadiness in the Revolution are summed up with the eloquence of indignation in a letter which Washington wrote in 1780 to the President of Congress.

"Had we formed a permanent army in the beginning," he wrote, "we should never have had to retreat with a handful of men across the Delaware in 1776, trembling for the fate of America, which nothing but the infatuation of the enemy could have saved * * * we should not have been under the necessity of fighting at Erandywine, with an unequal number of raw troops, and afterwards seeing Philadelphia fall a prey to the victorious enemy; we should not have been at Valley Forge, destitute of everything, in a situation neither to resist nor retire * * * we should not have been the greater part of the war inferior to the enemy, indebted for our safety to their inactivity, enduring frequently the mortification of seeing inviting opportunities to ruin them pass unimproved for want of a force which the country was completely able to afford, and of seeing the country ravaged, our towns burned, the inhabitants plundered, abused, murdered, with impunity from the same cause."

That the British were finally expelled is attributed by Gen. Wood to the fact that the war was at no time very vigorously prosecuted by the British, among whom at home there was a strong faction favorable to the Americans; and to the enlistment of French aid, without which that crucial event, the surrender of Cornwallis, would never have occurred.

Our third war, that with Mexico, was one in which we were the invading force. In 1845, as well as in 1916, the Government had ample warning of the probability of war, but made little or no preparation for it. However, "it was, taken as a whole, our most successful and best conducted war;" but were opposed by an enemy inferior both in organization and resources. We had a small but good nucleus of regular troops, and were fortunate in having as commanders and subordinates an unusually able group of officers, products of West Point, many of whom became the great commanders of the Civil War. The most influential factor of all, in Gen. Wood's opinion, was that the proportion of militia employed was greatly decreased.

In 1860, with a population of 31,000,000, the United States had a regular army of only 16,367, although for many years there had been the gravest warnings that civil war was imminent. Few nations have ever been so helpless at the beginning of war as was the North. Its only salvation from immediate ruin was the fact that the South was equally unprepared, and had no organized force to take advantage of its opponent's impotence.

"What I wish to point out," says Gen. Wood, "is that the militia feature was a failure, and that the volunteer system, as such, failed both in the Northern and Southern armies. The spirit of the volunteers was splendid, but the system was unsound and could not be depended on. It failed as it has always failed and will always fail. The Confederacy was forced to resort to the draft in April, 1862; the National Government published its first draft order in August, 1862, and resorted to the general draft the following year. Desertion was rampant. Such great numbers deserted that efficiency was greatly impaired.

"After two years the armies of both sides began to reach a state of real efficiency, but it had been gained at a great and unnecessary cost of life and treasure. Each side was laboring under somewhat the same difficulties, although the South, as far as the conduct of the war was concerned, was far better organized, in that it waged more as a nation than the North, which greatly weakened itself in the conduct of the war through surrendering to Governors of the States too much of the Federal power in matters pertaining to the raising and officering of troops. The Confederacy really conducted the war as a nation; the Union as a confederacy. By so doing, the Confederacy added at least 50 per cent to its efficiency.

"At the end of the Civil War we were for the first and only time in our history prepared for war with a first-class

"I thank you," he said.

"Of course," prompted the adjutant, "Mme. d'Aurillac understands the man must not know we inquired about him."

Gen. Andre frowned at Marie.

"Certainly not!" he commanded. 'The honest fellow must not know that even for a moment he was doubted."

Marie raised the violet eyes reprovingly.

"I trust," she said with reproach, "I too well understand the feelings of a French soldier to let him know his loyalty is questioned."

With a murmur of appreciation the officers bowed and with a gesture of gracious pardon Marie left them.

Outside in the hall, with none but orderlies to observe, like a cloak the graciousness fell from her. She was drawn two ways. In her work Anfossi was valuable. But Anfossi suspected was less than of no value; he became a menace, a death warrant.

Gen. Andre had said, "We have learned"—and the adjutant had halted him. What had he learned? To know that, Marie would have given much. Still, one important fact comforted her. Anfossi alone was suspected. Had there been concerning herself the slightest doubt they certainly would not have asked one who was herself suspected to vouch for the innocence of a fellow conspirator. Marie found the course to follow difficult. With Anfossi under suspicion, his usefulness was for the moment at an end; and to accept the chance offered her to continue on to Paris seemed most wise. On the other hand, if, concerning Anfossi, she had succeeded in allaying their doubts, the results most to be desired could be attained only by remaining where they were.

Their position inside the lines was of the greatest strategic value. The rooms of the servants were under the roof and that Briand should sleep in one of them was natural. That to reach or leave his room he should constantly be ascending or descending the stairs also was natural. The field-wireless outfit, or, as he had disdainfully described it, the "knapsack" wireless, was situated not in the bedroom he had selected for himself, but in one adjoining. At other times this was occupied by the maid of Mme. Iverney. To summon her maid Mme. Iverney, from her apartment on the second floor, had but to press a button. And it was in the apartment of Mme. Iverney, and on the bed of that lady, that Mme. Benet now reclined. When through the open door she saw an officer or soldier mount the stairs, she pressed the button that rang a bell in the room of her maid. In this way, long before whoever was ascending the stairs could reach the top floor, warning of his approach came to Anfossi. It gave him time to replace the dustboard over the fireplace in which the wireless was concealed and to escape into his own bedroom. The arrangement was ideal. And already information picked up in the halls below by Marie has been conveyed to Anfossi to relay in a French cipher to the German General staff at Rheims.

Marie made an alert and charming hostess. To all who saw her it was evident that her mind was intent only upon the comfort of her guests. Throughout the day many came and went, but each she made welcome; to each as he departed she called "bonne chance." Efficient, tireless, tactful, she was everywhere; in the dining room, in the kitchen, in the bedrooms, for the wounded finding mattresses to spread in the gorgeous salons of the champagne prince; for the soldier-chauffeurs carrying wine into the courtyard, where the automobiles panted and growled, and the arriving and departing shrieked for right of way. It was noon of that day when from the window of the second story Marie saw an armored automobile sweep into the courtyard. It was driven by an officer, young and appallingly good-looking, and, as was obvious by the way he spun his car, one who held in contempt both the law of gravity and death. That he was someone of importance seemed evident. Before he could alight the adjutant had raced to meet him. With her eye for detail Marie observed that the young officer, instead of imparting information, received it. He must, she guessed, have just arrived from Paris, and his brother officer either was telling him the news or giving him his orders. Whichever it might be, in what was told him the new arrival was greatly interested.

As she reached the lower hall the two officers entered. To the spy the man last to arrive was always the one of greatest importance; and Marie assured herself that, through her friend, the adjutant, to meet with this one would prove easy.

But the chauffeur commander of the armored car made it most difficult. At sight of Marie, much to her alarm, as though greeting a dear friend, he snatched his kepi from his head and sprang toward her.

"The Major," he cried, "told me you were here, that you are Madame d'Aurillac." His eyes spoke his admiration. In delight he beamed upon her. "I might have known it," he murmured. With the confidence of one who is sure he brings good news, he laughed happily. "And I," he cried, "am 'Pierrot'"

Who the devil "Pierrot" might be the spy could not guess. She only knew that she wished by a German shell "Pierrot" and his car had been blown to tiny fragments. Was it a trap, she asked herself, or was the handsome youth really someone the Countess d'Aurillac should know. But, as from his introducing himself it was evident he could not know that lady very well, Marie took courage and smiled.

"Which 'Pierrot'?" she parried.

"Pierre Thierry" crid the youth.

To the relief of Marie he turned upon the adjutant and to him explained who Pierre Trierry might be.

"Paul d'Aurillac," he said, "is my dearest friend. When he married this charming lady I was stationed in Algiers, and but for the war I might have met her."

To Marie, with his hand on his heart in a most charming manner, he bowed.

The adjutant smiled indulgently, and departed on his duties, leaving them alone. The handsome eyes of Capt. Thierry were raised to the violet eyes of Marie. They appraised her boldly and as boldly expressed their approval.

In burlesque the young man exclaimed indignantly: "Paul deceived me" he cried. "He told me he had married the most beautiful woman in Laon. He has married the most beautiful woman in France!"

To Marie this was not impertinence, but gallantry. This was the language she understood, and this was the type of man, because he was the least difficult to manage, she held in most contempt.

"But about you, Paul did not deceive me," she retorted. In apparent confusion her eyes refused to meet his. "He told me 'Pierrot' was a most dangerous man!"

She continued hurriedly. With wifely solicitude she asked concerning Paul. She explained that for a week she had been a prisoner in the chateau, and, since the mobilization, of her husband save that he was with his regiment in Paris, she had heard nothing. Capt. Thierry was able to give her later news. Only the day previous, on the boulevards, he had met Count d'Aurillac. He was at the Grand Hotel, and as Thierry was at once motoring back to Paris he would give Paul news of their meeting. He hoped he might tell him that soon his wife also would be in Paris. Marie explained that only the illness of her aunt prevented her from that same day joining her husband. Her manner became serious.

"And what other news have you?" she asked. "Here on the firing line we know less of what is going on forward than you in Paris."

So Pierre Thierry told her all he knew. They were preparing dispatches he was at once to carry back to the General Staff, and, for the moment, his time was his own. How could he better employ it than in talking of the war with a patriotic and charming French woman?

In consequence Marie acquired a mass of facts, gossip and guesses. From these she mentally selected such information as, to her employers across the Aisne, would be of vital interest.

And to rid herself of Thierry and on the fourth floor seek Anfossi was now her only wish. But, in attempting this, by the return of the adjutant she was delayed. To Thierry the adjutant gave a sealed envelope.

"Thirty-one Boulevard des Invalides," he said. With a smile he turned to Marie. "And you will accompany him'

"I!" exclaimed Marie. She was sick with sudden terror.

But the tolerant smile of the adjutant reassured her.

"The Count, your husband," he explained, "has learned of your detention here by the enemy, and he has besieged the General Staff to have you convoyed safely to Paris." The adjutant glanced at a field telegram he held open in his hand. "He asks," he continued, "that you be permitted to return in the car of his friend, Capt. Thierry, and that on arriving you join him at the Grand Hotel."

Thierry exclaimed with delight.

"But how charming!" he cried. "Tonight you must both dine with me at La Rue's." He saluted his superior officers. "Some petrol, sir," he said, "and I am ready." To Marie he added: "The car will be at the steps in five minutes." He turned and left them.

The thoughts of Marie, snatching at an excuse for delay, raced madly. The danger of meeting the Count d'Aurillac, her supposed husband, did not alarm her. The Grand Hotel has many exits, and, even before they reached it, for leaving the car she would invent an excuse that the gallant Thierry would not suspect. But what concerned her was how, before she was whisked away to Paris, she could convey to Anfossi the information she had gathered from Thierry. First, of a woman overcome with delight at being reunited with her husband she gave an excellent imitation; then she exclaimed in distress: "But my aunt, Madame Benet!" she cried. "I cannot leave her!"

"The sisters of St. Francis," said the adjutant, "arrive within an hour to nurse the wounded. They will care also for your aunt."

Marie concealed her chagrin. "Then I will at once prepare to go," she said.

The adjutant handed her a slip of paper. "Your laisser-passer to Paris," he said. "You leave in five minutes, madame!"

As temporary hostess of the chateau Marie was free to visit any part of it, and as she passed her door a signal from Madame Benet told her that Anfossi was on the fourth floor, that he was at work, that the coast was clear. Softly, in felt slippers she always wore, as she explained, in order not to disturb the wounded, she mounted the staircase. In her hand she carried the housekeeper's keys, and as an excuse it was her plan to return with an armful of linen for the arriving sisters. But Marie never reached the top of the stairs. When her eyes rose to the level of the fourth floor she came to a sudden halt. At what she saw terror gripped her, bound her hand and foot, and turned her blood to ice.

At her post for an instant Madame Benet had slept, and an officer of the staff, led by curiosity, chance or suspicion, had, unobserved and unannounced, mounted to the fourth floor. When Marie saw him he was in front of the room that held the wireless. His back was toward her, but she saw that with his revolver poised he had drawn aside the portiere and that his eye was fixed upon Briand. What would be the fate of Anfossi, Marie knew. Nor did she for an instant consider it. Her thoughts were of her own safety; that she might live.

Like a deer she leaped down the marble stairs and, in a panic she had no need to assume, burst into the presence of the staff.

"Gentlemen!" she gasped, "my servant—the chauffeur—Briand is a spy! There is a German wireless in the chateau. He is using it! I have seen him!" With exclamations, the officers rose to their feet. Gen. Andre alone remained seated. Gen. Andre was a veteran of many colonial wars—Cochin-China, Algiers, Morocco. The great war, when it came, found him on duty in the Intelligence Department. His aquiline nose, bristling white eyebrows and flashing, restless eyes gave him his nickname of l'Aigle.

"A German wireless!" he protested. "It is impossible!"

"I was on the fourth floor," panted Marie, "collecting linen for the sisters. In the room next to the linen closet I heard a strange buzzing sound. I opened the door softly. I saw Briand with his back to me seated by an instrument. There were receivers clamped to his ears! My God! The disgrace. The disgrace to my husband and to me, who vouched for him to you!" Apparently in an agony of remorse, the fingers of the woman laced and interlaced. "I cannot forgive myself!"

The officers moved toward the door, but Gen. Andre halted them. Still in a tone of incredulity, he demanded: "When did you see this?"

Marie knew the question was coming, knew she must explain how she saw and yet did not see the staff officer who, with his prisoner, might now at any instant appear. She must make it plain she had discovered the spy and left the upper part of the house before the officer had visited it. When that was she could not know, but the chance was that he had preceded her by only a few minutes.

"When did you see this?" repeated the General.

"But just now," cried Marie; "not 10 minutes since."

"Why did you not come to me at once?"

"I was afraid," replied Marie. "If I moved I was afraid he might hear me, and he, knowing I would expose him, would kill me—and so escape you!" There was an eager whisper of approval. For silence, Gen. Andre slapped his hand upon the table.

"Then," continued Marie, "I understood with the receivers on his ears he could not have heard me open the door, nor could he hear me leave, and I ran to my aunt. The thought that we had harbored such an animal sickened me, and I was weak enough to faint. But only for an instant. Then I came here." She moved swiftly to the door. "Let me show you the room," she begged; "you can take him in the act." Her eyes, wild with excitement of the chase, swept the circle. "Will you come?" she begged.

Unconscious of the crisis he interrupted, the orderly on duty opened the door.

"Capt. Thierry's compliments," he recited mechanically, "and is he to delay longer for Madame d'Aurillac?"

With a sharp gesture Gen. Andre waved Marie toward the door. Without rising, he inclined his head. "Adieu, madame," he said. "We act at once upon your information. I thank you"

As she crossed from the hall to the terrace, the ears of the spy were assaulted by a sudden tumult of voices. They were raised in threats and curses. Looking back, she saw Anfossi descending the stairs. His hands were held above his head; behind him, with his automatic, the staff officer she had seen on the fourth floor was pushing him forward. Anfossi looked directly at her. His face was expressionless. His eyes neither accused nor reproached. And with the joy of one who has looked upon and then escaped the guillotine, Marie ran down the steps to the waiting automobile. With a pretty cry o pleasure she leaped into the seat beside Thierry. Gayly she threw out her arms. "To Paris!" she commanded. The handsome eyes of Thierry, eloquent with admiration, looked back into hers. He stooped, threw in the clutch and the great gray car, with the machine gun and its crew of privates guarding the rear, plunged through the park.

"To Paris!" echoed Thierry.

In the order in which Marie had last seen them, Anfossi and the staff officer entered the room of Gen Andre, and upon the soldiers in the hall the door was shut. The face of the staff officer was grave, but his voice could not conceal his elation.

"My General," he reported, "I found this man in the act of giving information to the enemy. There is a wireless"——

Gen. Andre rose slowly. He looked neither at the officer nor at his prisoner. With frowning eyes he stared down at the maps upon his table.

"I know," he interrupted. "Someone has already told me." He paused, and then, as though recalling his manners, but still without raising his eyes, he added: "You have done well, sir."

At last, as though against his wish, toward the spy the General turned his head, and their eyes met. And still Gen. Andre was silent. Then the arms of the spy, like those of a runner who has finished his race and breasts the tape exhausted, fell to his sides. In a voice low and vibrant he spoke his question.

"It has been so long, sir," he pleaded. "May I not come home?"

Gen. Andre turned to the astonished group surrounding him. His voice was hushed like that of one who speaks across an open grave.

"Gentlemen," he began, "my children," he added. "A German spy, a woman, involved in a scandal your brother in arms, Henri Ravignac. His honor, he though was concerned, and without honor he refused to liv To prove him guiltless his younger brother Charle asked leave to seek out the woman who had betraye Henri, and by us was detailed on secret service. He gave up home, family, friends. He lived in exile, in poverty, at all times in danger of a swift and ignoble death. In the War Office we know him as one who has given to his country services she cannot hope to reward. For she cannot return to him the years he has lost. She cannot return to him his brother. But she can and will clear the name of Henri Ravignac, and upon his brother Charles bestow promotion and honors."

The General turned and embraced the spy. "My children," he said, "welcome your brother. He has come home."

Before the car had reached the fortifications Mari Gessler had arranged her plan of escape. She had departed from the chateau without even a handbag, an she would say that before the shops closed she mus make purchases.

Le Printemps lay in their way, and she asked tha when they reached it, for a moment she might alight Capt. Thierry readily gave permission.

From the department store it would be most easy t disappear, and in anticipation Marie smiled covertly Nor was the picture of Capt. Thierry impatiently waiting outside, unamusing.

But before Le Printemps was approached, the ca turned sharply down a narrow street. On one side along its entire length, ran a high gray wall, grim an forbidding. In it was a green gate, studded with iro bolts. Before this the automobile drew suddenly to halt. The crew of the armored car tumbled off the rea seat, and one of them beat upon the green gate. Marie felt a hand of ice clutch at her throat. But she controlled herself.

"And what is this?" she cried gayly.

At her side Capt. Thierry was smiling down at he but his smile was hateful.

"It is the prison of St. Lazare," he said. "It is no becoming," he added sternly, "that the name of th Countess d'Aurillac should be made common as th Paris road"

Fighting for her life Marie thrust herself against him; her arm that throughout the journey had rested on the back of the driving seat caressed his shoulders; her lips and the violet eyes were close to his.

"Why should you care?" she whispered fiercely. "You have me! Let Count d'Aurillac look after the hono of his wife himself."

The charming Thierry laughed at her mockingly.

"He means to," he said. "I am the Count d'Aurillac!"

The Passing of the Most Hated Man in Ireland

Lord Clanricarde, notorious oppressor of his tenantry, died with the curses of Irish peasants on his head and as an outcast among people of his own class—Was a miser, never known to perform a kind act, and passed his last days as a grubbing money lender under an assumed name

Clanricarde

Lord Clanricarde and telegram which he sent unconscious of the fact that it would become a world-famous witticism.

THERE died in London the other day at the age of 84 years, a man who was worth millions in money and art treasures, yet who was without a friend. Not only was he unmourned, though a peer of the British realm, but he died with the curses of hundreds of Irish peasants on his head, and as an outcast among people of his own class. It was looked upon as a coincidence tinged with sarcasm that he should have passed away on the eve of another Irish rebellion.

The man was Hubert George de Burgh Canning, Lord Clanricarde, the most hated man in Ireland. The owner of 60,000 acres of land in County Galway, he kept his tenants in a state of almost unbelievable degradation and misery. He was a man apparently without one commendable trait, a taciturn, repellent figure, and if he ever did a kind action in his life it is not on record. In the end he was a miserly money lender under an assumed name, without one person to grant him a look or a word of affection during the long illness which preceded his death.

Though all his interests lay in Ireland, Lord Clanricarde visited there only once in the last 50 years, and that was to attend the funeral of his father. After the body had been placed in a temporary brick vault which had been erected on the estate, the son took the next train back to London. When his mother died some years later, Lord Clanricarde allowed her body to be shipped to Ireland by rail, remain overnight in the railway station, and then to be unceremoniously shoved into the vault on its side, there being no room to place it in its proper position. He never replaced the temporary vault with a permanent one and the remains of his immediate forbears still are in the place and in the position in which they were originally deposited.

Be times ever so hard in Ireland and conditions among the peasants ever so distressing, Lord Clanricarde never raised a finger to ameliorate them. Times of prosperity and famine were alike to him. He was the most ruthless evictor in Ireland's long list of unfeeling and hard-hearted landlords. He would as soon—rather, it sometimes seemed—turn a family into the snow and biting blasts of a winter's night, as to dump their pitiful possessions out into the sunshine and warmth of a summer's day.

The poverty and starvation of his serfs and vassals alone cannot be laid at the door of this man, but murder as well. His own agents pleaded with him to abate his rents during times of famine, but he refused, and one of them was slain by an outraged peasantry who did not know of the man's intercessions for them. Bailiffs, policemen and others who took possession of homes whose occupants had been evicted have been murdered by the frenzied victims of Clanricarde's rapacity. But the strange, silent man in London never as much as raised an eyebrow when news of such doings was brought to him. He was sued times without number and always fought such proceedings bitterly. Moreover, he nearly always won.

Lord Clanricarde, by following this policy of oppression, finally brought the other landowners about his ears, because he was bringing odium upon them as a class, but they were as unsuccessful in moving him as the poor farmers on his own estate. Lord St. Aldwyn, noted as a keen upholder of the sacred rights of property, when Secretary for Ireland, tried to make Clanricarde behave as the other landlords, but he failed. When his letters of appeal fell on stony ground he even threatened to leave Lord Clanricarde without police assistance in the management of his estate, but that person paid no more attention to the threats than he did to entreaties. Throughout his life he displayed an astounding insensibility to the opinions of his own class, to his active enemies and to the world in general.

Persons who have never visited Ireland have no conception of life in one of the hovels like those which dot the estate of Lord Clanricarde. The cabins are "wretchedly thatched, built of unhewn stone badly cemented, standing some 50 yards from the roadway in a scene of the bleakest desolation," wrote Sydney Brooks. "The soil all about is hostile, meager, and studded with gray rock and stone. The nearest village is five miles away. To reach the huts you walk up an unmade road that is half a ditch and half a stone staircase after an earthquake, foul and reeking with mire and effluvia. By the side of the cabin doors are the inevitable manure heap and the winter stack of peat. As you pass into the doorway a flutter of fowls rushes out. The darkness is such that, except when silhouetted against the blazing hearth, you cannot at first make out who or what is there. Gradually three or four barefooted children reveal themselves, and an old man sitting motionless by the fire. Opposite the hearth, in a stall, on fairly clean straw, is the family cow. The furniture, standing unevenly on the bare and sodden ground, is of the roughest. There is a tidy inner room where the father and mother sleep, the children herding together in the living room. Two of them are coughing ominously; all have indigestion; their eyes are reddened with the peat smoke, and their teeth are abominable.

"They rent, or owe rent, for a patch of ground, growing on it oats and potatoes year after year, until the soil is worn out and the crops blighted. They may earn a little, but not enough, by the sale of a calf or pig or a few chickens. They contrive to exist by cutting down their standard of living to the lowest possible point. Milk, potatoes, tea, some flour, and, as an occasional luxury, a slice or two of the worst bacon, form, with a little whisky, their staple diet."

Life under these conditions is miserable enough, but it was a home, and Lord Clanricarde even denied his charges this poor comfort when the hapless householder fell behind in his rent.

Though none of his tenants seems ever to have seen him, Lord Clanricarde wielded such power that it was once said of him that he could send his gray mare to Parliament if he wished. The Earl himself represented County Galway in Parliament from 1867 to 1871. At the ensuing elections in 1872 the rents of the Clanricarde tenants were raised because it was known that they were supporters of the popular candidate. The Earl's agent was shot down in the belief that he was responsible for the raising of the rents, but correspondence, against the publication of which the Earl obtained an injunction, revealed that it was Clanricarde himself who was to blame. The successor of the murdered agent begged his employer to lower the rents, but Clanricarde would not hear of it and fierce eviction scenes followed. It was at this time that the London Times denounced Clanricarde as a danger to society. No fewer than 160 persons were imprisoned in connection with the struggle carried on at this time.

It was at this time, too, that Lord Clanricarde was guilty of the only bit of humor in which he was ever known to indulge, but it is more than likely that he was unconscious of it. To the appeal of an agent who declared that his life had been threatened by the tenants, Lord Clanricarde telegraphed in reply, "The tenants can never intimidate me by threatening to shoot you!"

Many stories are told of Lord Clanricarde's parsimony, although he was immensely wealthy. It is declared that when he purchased a ticket at the railroad station after attending his father's funeral, he had a penny in change coming to him, but the agent did not have a penny in his drawer; whereupon the nobleman demanded that the man give him a penny stamp. Although his house in London was filled with valuable paintings, the Earl's only known indulgence, it is declared that he begrudged the money to buy wire with which to hang them. He stood ready, it is related, to discharge a clerk who would pay a penny for a pencil when one could have been purchased for a half penny.

Lord Clanricarde's life started out brilliantly enough, and in his earlier career there is nothing to indicate the dark role he was to play in English and Irish history. As a young man he was educated at Harrow, where he acquired an unusual knowledge of French language and literature and cultivated his critical taste in art. In 1852 he entered the diplomatic service as attache at Turin, and 10 years later was made second secretary. It was at about this period of his career, apparently, that his nature underwent a change, and one wonders what might have wrought it. Wilfrid Scawen Blunt, who wrote a series of books on English and Irish affairs, and who was an acquaintance of Clanricarde, furnishes a slight clew in his volume, "The Land War in Ireland," when he says, "I knew something of his early life which to a large extent excused him in the long war he waged with his Irish tenantry when he succeeded to the family estates."

According to a contributor to the Irish World of New York, it has been whispered around the peat fires in the farmhouses on Clanricarde's land for many years that the Earl's right to the title was in question. It was generally believed that he was not the son of the former Earl, who was in Russia as a soldier in the Crimean War when the present Earl was born, credence being lent to this belief by the utter dissimilarity physically and mentally between the old Earl and the late one. The late Earl's title was not disputed, as there was no legitimate heir to the estate, the older son, Lord Dunkellen, having died in early manhood. Countryside gossip, therefor, attributed Lord Clanricarde's bitterness toward Ireland and his relatives to the knowledge that he had no right to the title and the estates. Whether Blunt had these tales in mind when he alluded to Clanricarde's past is not known, as he gives no intimation as to what constitutes his knowledge of the old miser's secret.

The folk in County Galway believe that the title of Lord Clanricarde should have passed to Richard Burke (corruption of De Burgh) a son of the old Earl by a morganatic wife who resided in Portumna. Burke, who is known as Rick Burke, became a well-known Irish Nationalist, and at one time was sword bearer to the Lord Mayor of Dublin. On the marriage of the morganatic wife to a man named Scully, a small holding was deeded to her. This the late Lord Clanricarde attempted to take from her in her old age, but Rick Burke successfully resisted him in the courts.

Lord Clanricarde never mingled with his fellow men in a social way, so that he was almost as unknown in England as in Ireland. Throughout his membership in the House of Lords, he seldom appeared there, and only once participated actively in the proceedings of Parliament. This was in 1907, when he suddenly and dramatically appeared on the floor to deliver a speech attacking the Evicted Tenants' Bill. It was a memorable day in the House of Lords, for so vehement was Clanricarde's attack that he fainted.

It is interesting to speculate upon what the daily life of such a man might have been, especially in his declining years. A long, thin pallid creature, shabbily dressed, with high cheekbones and a flowing white beard, he took the name of Sanguinetti and in daytime doled out money to unfortunates in need at a shark's interest and frequently gave evidence against debtors. But what of the long evenings? He was a pariah among men and had no visitors. One can picture him walking about the rooms of his gloomy apartment, reveling in his art treasures, or, furtively locking doors and windows and pulling down the shades, bringing forth his beloved gold, to pour it out and wallow in it like Gaspard in his lonely castle.

It is perhaps needless to say that this anomaly of a man never married. It is not known that he ever looked upon any woman with a feeling even of interest. Although there is no heir to the earldom of Clanricarde, the title, by special remainder, passes on to the Marquis of Sligo, Lord Clanricarde's cousin.

The traits which made Lord Clanricarde the most detested man in Ireland and the most friendless even among his own class are declared to have been an inordinate meanness and selfishness. His reasons for consistently remaining away from his estate doubtless can be found in the fact that he realized that his life was in danger if he ever set foot in County Galway. He never was known to answer an appeal for charity of any kind, even outside the realm of his own domain. He rarely took the trouble to answer letters and in every way possible withdrew from the activities and pleasures of other men until at the end he lived a leper-like existence with only the miser's lust and interest in his art treasures to sustain him. In every respect he probably was the most extraordinary specimen of a British nobleman that the world has ever seen.

Therese did not finish. A loud ring at the front door bell broke in.

"That must be the good Baronne de Vibray come for you," Etienne Rambert said.

CHAPTER XIV.

Madamoiselle Jeanne.

"A LADY to see you, sir," the footman said to M. Rambert.

"Bring her in," said M. Rambert, supposing it was the Baronne de Vibray.

The door opened and someone stepped into the shadow by the door.

It was a strange lady.

"To what am I indebted," M. Rambert began and then broke off short. "Good heavens!"——

The bell rang again and the Baronne de Vibray came in. She was hurrying toward M. Rambert when she, too, caught sight of the strange lady standing in the corner.

Etienne Rambert smiled to the Baronne and went toward the mysterious lady.

"Madame," he said, "may I trouble you to come into my study?"

"Who is that?" said Therese when presently M. Rambert came back. "How white you are."

"I am rather tired, dear."

Once the Baronne's car was speeding toward the Rue Boissy-d'Anglais M. Rambert hurried back to his study, locked the door and almost sprang toward the unknown lady.

"Charles!" he exclaimed.

The psuedo Mlle. Jeanne took off the heavy wig that concealed her features and tore away the corsage, revealing the strong and muscular frame of a young man.

"Charles," said M. Rambert very gravely, "do you forget that legally, civilly, you are dead? I saved your life because I thought you were insane. Now I know you are a criminal!"

"Father," said Charles Rambert with determination, "I want to know how you managed to save my life and make out that I was dead. Was that planned deliberately?"

Etienne Rambert dropped his peremptory tone; his shoulders drooped.

"Can one anticipate things like that?" he said. "I wondered how I could save you; chance brought that poor drowned body; I saw the faint resemblance, I got those woman's clothes which you exchanged for yours, buried the dead man's clothes and put yours on the corpse. You know the story of my appearance at the Assizes and my humiliation?"

"You did all that!" Charles Rambert murmured. "But I never killed the Marquise de Langrune!"

Etienne Rambert asked sternly: "Have you come here only to tell me that?"

To the curt question the lad stammered:

"I can't remain a woman any longer!"

"Why not?" snapped Etienne Rambert; then he seemed to see the inner meaning of the words his son had said. "I understand. * * * The Royal Palace Hotel, where Mlle. Jeanne held a trusted post, has been the scene of a daring robbery."

The young fellow understood the insinuation and burst out:

"I did not commit that robbery! Why will you insist that your unhappy son is a criminal?"

M. Rambert clasped his hands.

"What have I done," he muttered, "to have so heavy a cross laid on me? I told you not to come to me again except as a last recourse. Why are you here now?"

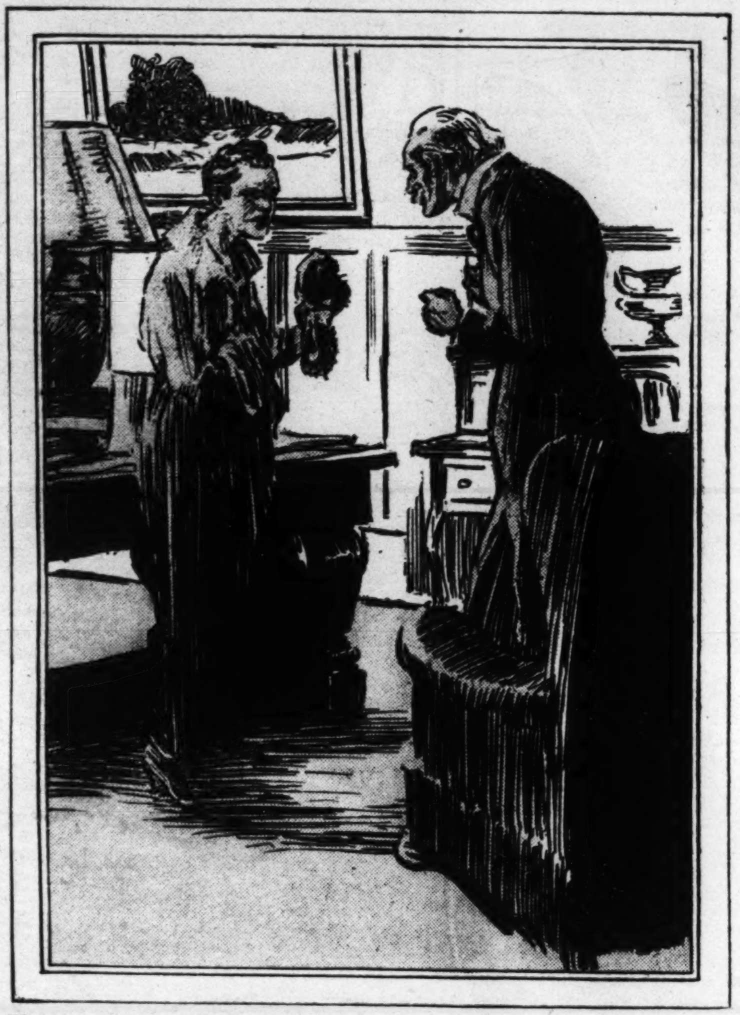
Charles Rambert answered in a toneless voice.

"There has been a detective in the hotel for the last few days. He was disguised, but I knew Juve, disguised as Henri Verbier. He subjected me to a kind of examination, and this evening, barely two hours ago, came up to my room. I lost my head. In another minute he would establish my identity, perhaps suspected already, and I dealt him a blow on the forehead. He fell like a stone, and I got away!"

"Is he dead?"

"I don't know."

For 10 minutes Charles Rambert remained alone in the study. Then Etienne Rambert came back carrying a bundle of man's clothes.



The psuedo Mlle. Jeanne took off the heavy wig that concealed her features and tore away the corsage, revealing the strong and muscular frame of a young man.

The young man dressed in silence, while the father walked up and down the room. Twice he asked: "Are you sure it was Juve?" and his son replied, "Quite sure."

"Did you kill him?"

Charles Rambert shrugged his shoulders. "I told you before, I do not know."

Etienne Rambert held out a pocketbook, filled with banknotes.

"Take that," he said, "and go!"

CHAPTER XV.

The Mad Woman's Plot.

AT Dr. Biron's famous private asylum in Passy, a retreat for people suffering from nervous breakdown, Perret and Sembadel were grumbling.

"I shouldn't curse the meanness of the management quite so much if they didn't put us on all the jobs," said Sembadel, "writing to people to say how the patients are, and all that! That ought to be done by clerks, not by us."

Perret did not try to carry on the argument.

"Say," he said, "you ought to make a special note of that case of No. 25."

"No. 25?" said Sembadel. "A woman named Rambert; age about 40; hallucination that people are persecuting her; alternate cries of excitement and melancholia. She interested me. Well, what about her?"

"Why, she was supposed to be incurable. Now, her brain is restored. I wrote her husband a day or two ago that his wife had recovered, but I imagine my letter miscarried, for I've had no answer."

"Swelding pays us an official visit today," Sembadel growled. "One of those foreign savants."

Prof. Swelding, when he arrived, was a remarkable figure. He might have been 60, but bore lightly the weight of years.

Dr. Biron suggested a visit to the various wards.

Prof. Swelding nodded approval and followed the doctor, casting curious eyes at the various patients who were walking in their gardens.

A woman about 40 was sitting in one of the gardens beside an attendant.

"That lady," said Dr. Biron, "belongs to one of our great merchant families. She is Mme. Alice Rambert, wife of Etienne Rambert, the rubber merchant. When she came here she thought assassins were all around her. At the present moment she is not mad at all, in the proper sense of the term."

"May I talk to her?"

"Certainly," and Dr. Biron led the visitor toward the patient.

Mme. Rambert looked at the Danish professor.

"I am delighted," she said, "but how was the gentleman aware of my existence, my dear doctor?"

The phrase was an implicit reproach.

"I understand, madame," Prof. Swelding replied, gently. "You object to my visit as an intrusion?"

Mme Rambert suddenly sprang up and exclaimed sharply:

"Who called me? Who called me? Oh!" she cried. "His voice—his voice! Help! help!" and she fled screaming, the attendant and Dr. Biron running after her.

The demented creature took refuge behind a clump of shrubs, standing there with eyes fixed on the professor.

"Fantomas!" she cried. "Fantomas! There—I know him! Oh, help!"

Dr. Biron put an end to the scene by ordering the attendant to take Mme. Rambert to her room.

The fifth installment of this unusual detective story will appear next Sunday.

What Unpreparedness Cost U. S. in Four Wars

power. We had an admirable navy and army, experienced, well organized, well equipped. Our condition of preparedness was recognized by foreign Governments, as was indicated by the prompt evacuation of Mexico by Napoleon upon the request of this Government.

"When the war with Spain began," continues Gen. Wood, "it was at once apparent that nothing of importance whatever had been taken to heart from the Civil War, and that we were wholly unprepared from every standpoint.

"We were without reserves of men, officers or material. We were using an obsolete rifle, antiquated artillery, black powder. In fact, we were a military 'Rip Van Winkle.' Fortunately, our navy was stronger than the navy of our enemy, and our coasts were free from molestation.

"Our condition at that time was one of disorganization and unpreparedness. On every side was lack of well-thought-out preparation. A clumsy, bureaucratic system of administration crumbled under the first pressure which was put upon it; the sanitary administration of our camps showed in many instances lack of elementary knowledge and reasonable prudence, and an entire want of discipline. There were some marked exceptions, but generally speaking, sanitary incompetency, together with administrative failure, served to give us a death list many times greater than from bullets."

The lesson drawn by this authority from all of our wars is that the militia and volunteer systems have always proved an utter failure. We enrolled nearly 400,000 volunteers in the Revolution and could not without aid defeat one-tenth that number of British regulars. We enrolled half a million men in the War of 1812, and were almost uniformly defeated on land by not more than 16,000 invaders, who captured and burned our capital city. It is understood, of course, that the half-million were never at one time confronted with the 16,000, and were to some extent necessarily scattered because of the length of coastline to be defended. In our Florida War with the Indians, "a nation of 17,000,000 of people contended for seven years with a tribe mustering only 1200 warriors, and finally closed the struggle without accomplishing the original and sole aim of the war, which was the forcible emigration of the Indians."

The sole method for the prevention of future disaster, in Gen. Wood's opinion, is the adoption of universal service, not in state militia, but in the Federal service, on the plan of the Australian and Swiss "citizen armies."

"The main reliance in a war with a first-class power," he says, "will ultimately be the great force of citizen soldiers forming a purely Federal force, thoroughly organized and equipped with reserves of men and material. This force must be trained under some system which will permit the instruction to be given in part during the school period or age, thereby greatly reducing the time required for the final intensive period of training, which should be under regular officers and in conjunction with regular troops. * * *

"Each year about one million men reach the military age of 18; of this number not more than 50 per cent are fit for military service, this being about the average in other countries. * * * It would seem that about 500,000 men would be available each year for military training. If the boys were prepared by the state authorities through training in schools and colleges and in state training areas to the extent that they are in Switzerland and Australia, it would be possible, when they come up for Federal training, to finish their military training—so far as preparing them for the duties of enlisted men is concerned—within a period of approximately three months.

"We should be able to limit the period of first line obligation to the period from 18 to 25, inclusive, or seven years, or we could make the period of obligatory service begin two years later and extend it to 27. This procedure would give in the first line approximately 3,500,000 men at the age of best physical condition and of minimum dependent and business responsibility.

"Men in these organizations would not live in uniform but would go about their regular occupations as do the members of the militia today.

TO PRISON FOR LIFE

The spectacular career of Countess de Markievicz, the "Jeanne d' Arc" of Ireland's rebellion—Causes which brought her activities to a distressing termination

CONSTANCE, COUNTESS DE MARKIEVICZ, who has been sentenced to penal servitude for life as a result of the spectacular part she played in the ill-fated Irish rebellion.

Of all the figures in the recent revolt in Ireland the most picturesque is that of Constance, Countess de Markievicz, who, without any exaggeration, may fairly be called the Jeanne d'Arc of the little army of fierce patriots. Leading her regiment of boy scouts in a Quixotic attack on Dublin Castle; shooting down the sentinel on guard at the gate; kissing her pistol before it is taken from her; going proudly to prison without a hope that her life be spared—surely a figure to inspire an epic poet! The following personal study is written by one who has known the Countess de Markievicz for many years.

By Norah Meade.

CONSTANCE, Countess de Markievicz, is now a prisoner of the British Crown, officially charged with treason. In the recent Irish rebellion, she led the attack on Dublin Castle, and to citizens whose memory goes back some 30 years her part was peculiarly ironical.

In those days Dublin Castle was the official residence of her maternal uncle, the English Marquis of Zetland.

By birth the Countess de Markievicz is Constance Gore-Booth, daughter of Sir Jocelyn, an Irish Baronet. Her mother is the daughter of the late Marquis of Zetland and sister of that Irish Lord Lieutenant whose reign is still remembered by reason of its social brilliance.

Her youth was spent in the manor house of Lissadell, a village of County Sligo, and here—so the tradition goes—so thoroughly did Lady Gore-Booth preserve her native English atmosphere that even the clocks are set by Greenwich time. She was less successful in setting the tone of her daughter's sentiments.

Two stories come down from the girlhood of Constance Gore-Booth, which indicate her attitude toward parental authority. At the time Parnell was the premier patriot of Ireland, and the youth of the country was at his feet, evidently he had fired the girl's imagination, and when he was scheduled to speak in a neighboring town she determined at all costs to hear him. Her mother decided that she should stay at home.

There are no trolleys and few trains in the West of Ireland, so Lady Gore-Booth laid an embargo on all means of conveyance, and considered her position safe. But she reckoned without the resourcefulness of her daughter.

Corralling two horses from a neighboring farm, Constance and her sister Eva rode recklessly across country and arrived in time to hear the speech.

But if her conduct in this case amounted to insult, in the next it aimed at deliberate injury.

Land troubles were rife in the West, and the tenants had decided on a strike. "No rents" was their war cry. But at that time landlords were still formidable, and there was some hesitancy about carrying out the campaign. A meeting was called to decide finally and proved sensational in an unexpected way.

Among those not invited, but nevertheless present, was the courageous and irrepressible Constance, who came to advise the tenants to refuse payment to her own father!

With all due respect to the maternal tenderness of Lady Gore-Booth, one has a vivid picture of her relief, when Constance discovered her genius for painting and betook herself to Paris to become a student. One has a companion picture of the regret of Sir Jocelyn's Connaught tenants at the loss of this lovable landlord's daughter.

Constance Gore-Booth spent many years in Paris, where she was soon well known in artistic circles. When she finally returned to Ireland it was with a reputation well established as a painter. Meantime she had acquired the title of Countess.

Casimir de Markievicz is now in his own country, where he has been reported wounded on the Russian front, but for many years he was a familiar figure in Dublin beside his tall, distinguished Irish wife.

That the Countess was as incorrigible as Miss Constance Gore-Booth was evident from the very start. She was still as impossible of control, still as reckless of consequences, still as generous of impulse. Also she was unguarded of tongue.

They tell a story of her first visit to her staid English mother with her Russian-Polish husband. All three were taking tea on afternoon in the drawing room of Lissadell. It had been a wet day, and Lady Gore-Booth now requested her son-in-law to see whether the weather had cleared. He went out, returned and reported succinctly:

"Raining like blue hell!"

His mother-in-law stiffened in her chair, and Count Casimir, by now accustomed to such symptoms, hastily explained:

"You see, Constance has taught me all the English I know."

About 1905 the two settled in Dublin, where they lived until the outbreak of war. The Count, himself a painter of merit, became official artist of the court. There was no official function at which the couple were not present. But meantime, equally inevitably, they were gravitating toward a different group, for they were thinkers before they were social favorites.

Eva Gore-Booth, sister of the Countess, had already proved herself a poetess of note. Her one piece, "The Rose of Breffni," would alone have entitled her to recognition among Irish writers. Her brother, Sir Jocelyn, though not a man of particular force, was nevertheless playing a helpful part in progressive agricultural movements. These two facts in themselves served as a bond.

Countess de Markievicz and her husband soon found themselves in the current of Irish intellectualism, and intellectualism, as it is practiced in Dublin, seems indissolubly bound up with nationalism.

Constance de Markievicz, as a result of her new connections, began the study of Irish history. That was the beginning of the end.

The Countess soon drifted from her former set. In the beginning her husband entered a mild protest that the viceregal lodge had the best whisky in town. But very soon he was imbued with his wife's sentiments, as is shown by his play, "The Memory of the Dead."

But no artistic medium could give expression to the new needs of the Countess' soul. She was above all things practical. She needed action.

To her is due the arming of the first force in Ireland. It started in the name of Fianna, a body of boys in their teens, which corresponded roughly with Baden-Powell's English scouts. They met every week in a hall in Camden street, where they were drilled under the Countess' direction. At times they betook themselves to the open, maneuvering in the Dublin mountains, where the Countess had a cottage under Three Rock Hill.

One recalls that, in recent dispatches, this peak is mentioned as the meeting place of the rebels, and one recalls, too, that the force which surrendered numbered 140, the sum total of these one-time boy scouts.

Charity was one of the virtues on which her regulations insisted, and these boys, so the story goes, were forever finding abandoned babies or deserving cases among the Dublin poor, all of whom they referred to their General.

She took them in. Soon her own handsome house was for rent. She could no longer afford its upkeep. She and her husband moved into smaller quarters.

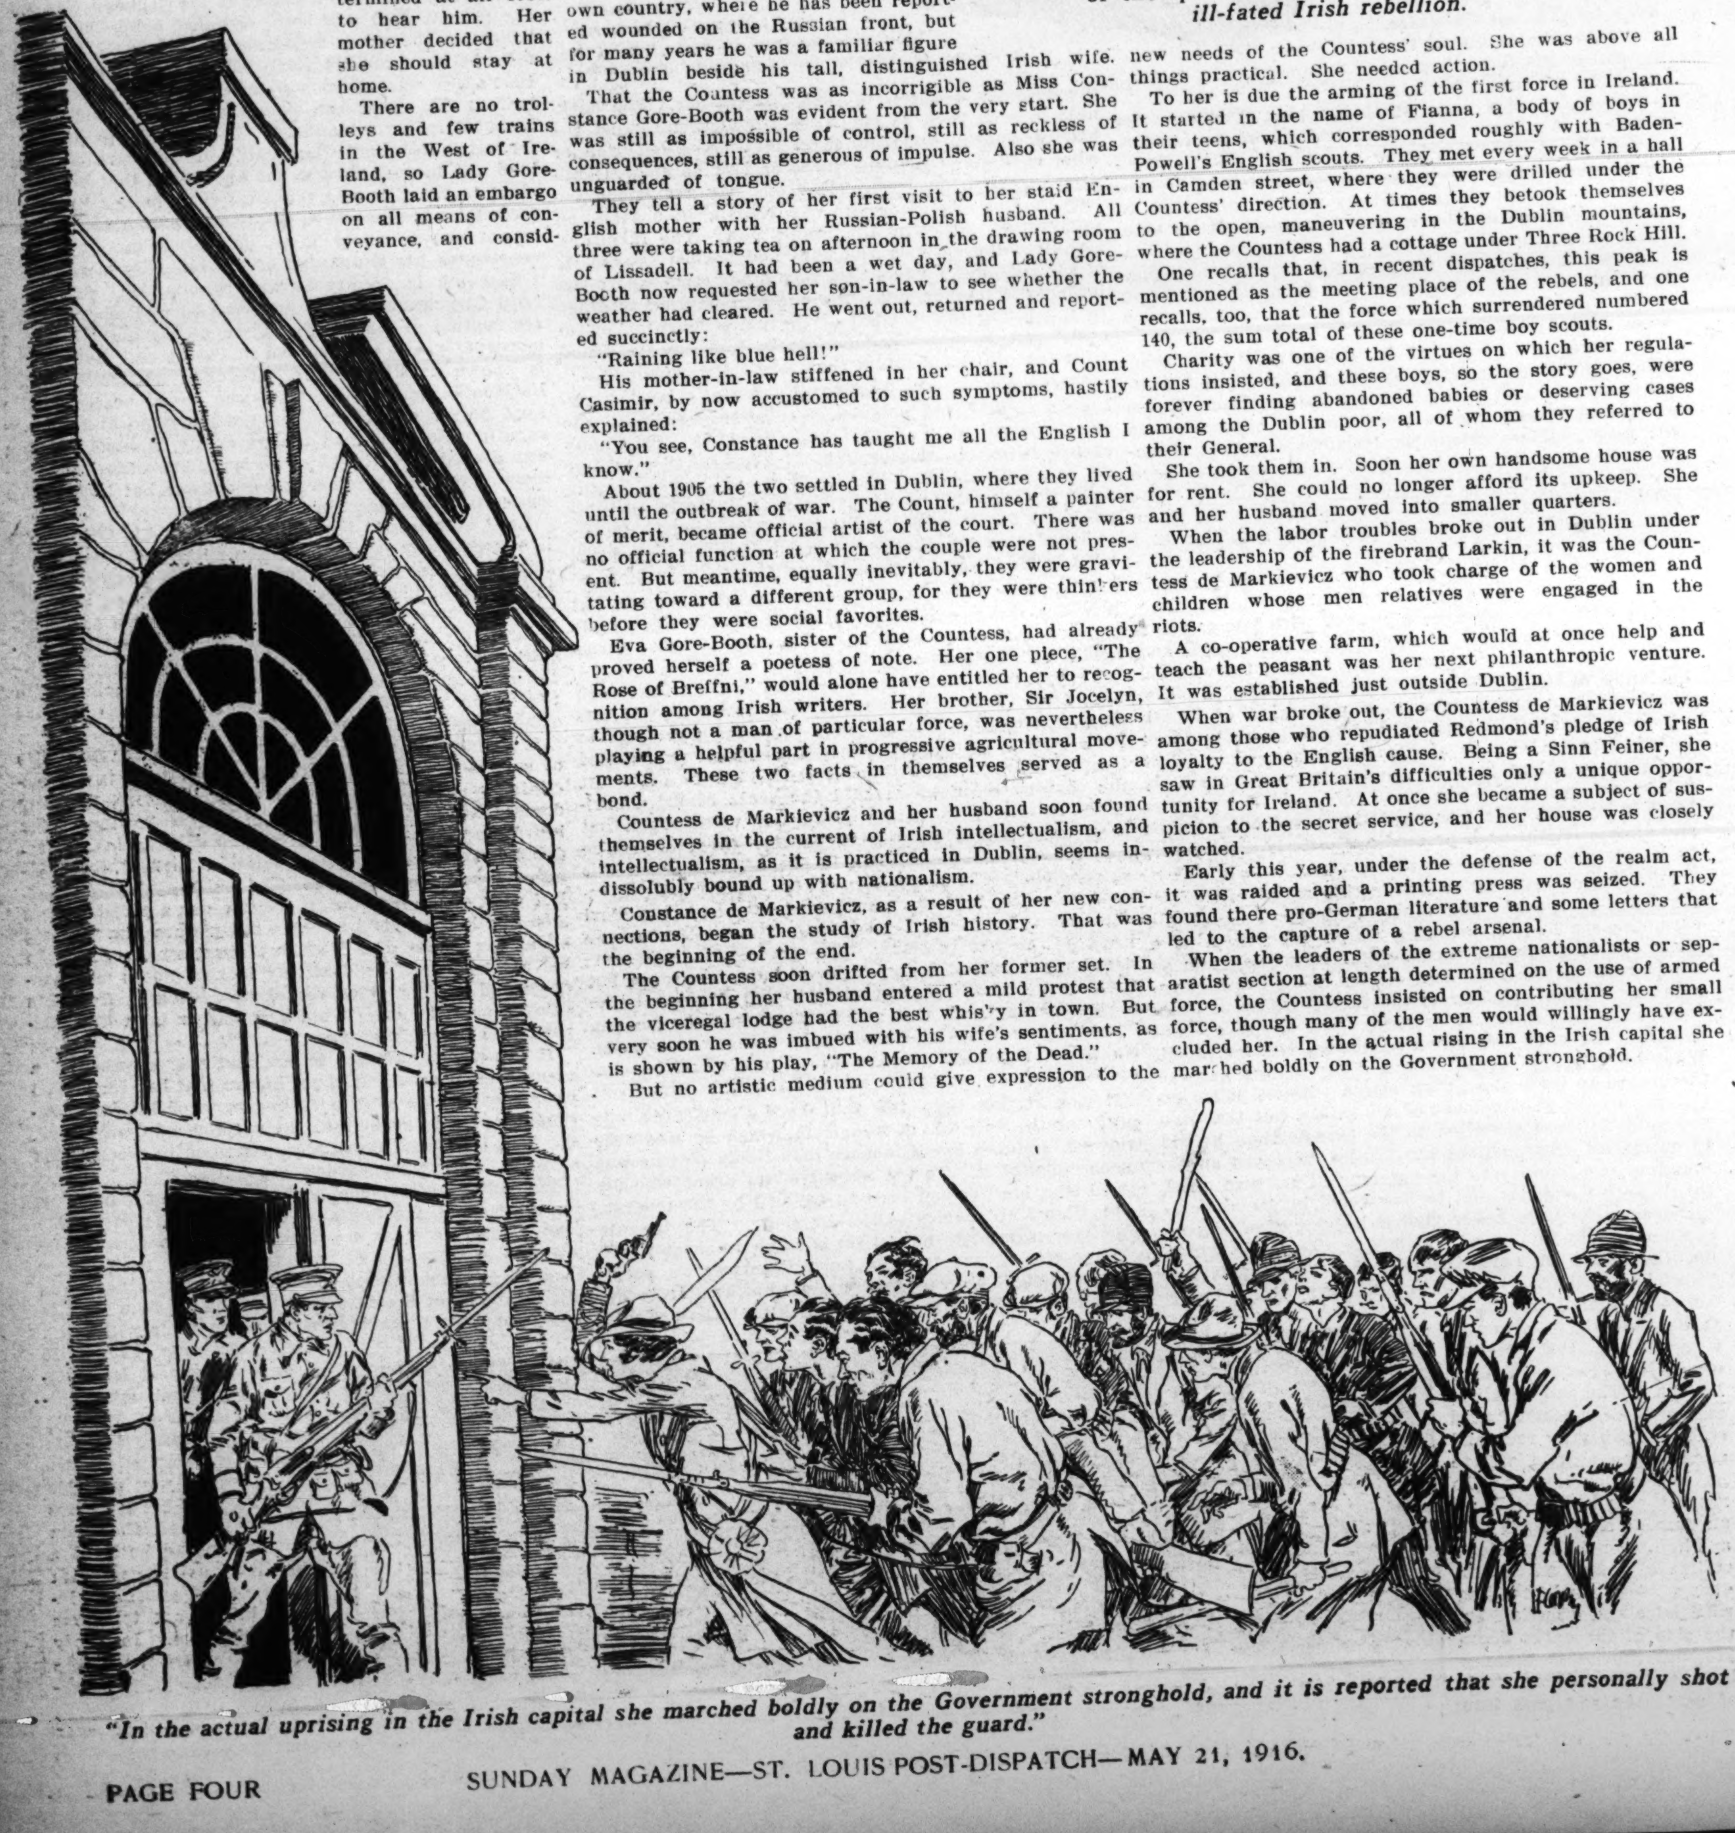
When the labor troubles broke out in Dublin under the leadership of the firebrand Larkin, it was the Countess de Markievicz who took charge of the women and children whose men relatives were engaged in the riots.

A co-operative farm, which would at once help and teach the peasant was her next philanthropic venture. It was established just outside Dublin.

When war broke out, the Countess de Markievicz was among those who repudiated Redmond's pledge of Irish loyalty to the English cause. Being a Sinn Feiner, she saw in Great Britain's difficulties only a unique opportunity for Ireland. At once she became a subject of suspicion to the secret service, and her house was closely watched.

Early this year, under the defense of the realm act, it was raided and a printing press was seized. They found there pro-German literature and some letters that led to the capture of a rebel arsenal.

When the leaders of the extreme nationalists or separatist section at length determined on the use of armed force, the Countess insisted on contributing her small force, though many of the men would willingly have excluded her. In the actual rising in the Irish capital she marched boldly on the Government stronghold.



"In the actual uprising in the Irish capital she marched boldly on the Government stronghold, and it is reported that she personally shot and killed the guard."

THIS season, more than any other, has been notable for oddities in fashions for spring and summer wear, due to the fact that they have not, as in other years, followed a definite trend, but appear in hats, gowns and accessories alike. For those who are fond of extreme novelties some of them are shown on this page. Note in figure 1 the latest cut in furs for summer wear. Those in the picture are of moleskin with an ermine collar. In this picture also is one of the season's new hats—a pretty leghorn with big velvet tam o'shanter crown of black, trimmed with a white rose.

Russian blouses are one of the season's latest fads. The one in Figure 2 is of washable apricot satin, with white satin collar and black taffeta tie. The hat is gold basket straw trimmed with white satin.

Novelties for evening wear are shown in figures 3 and 4. In the former are white silk stockings embroidered with opal spangles and silver slippers trimmed with hand-wrought buckles of gold thread. In the other picture are to be seen perhaps the oddest creations in the way of stockings for evening wear, one being of a butterfly pattern with the butterflies worked in real lace, and the other having a small pocket in which to carry milady's handkerchief while she is dancing or playing games.

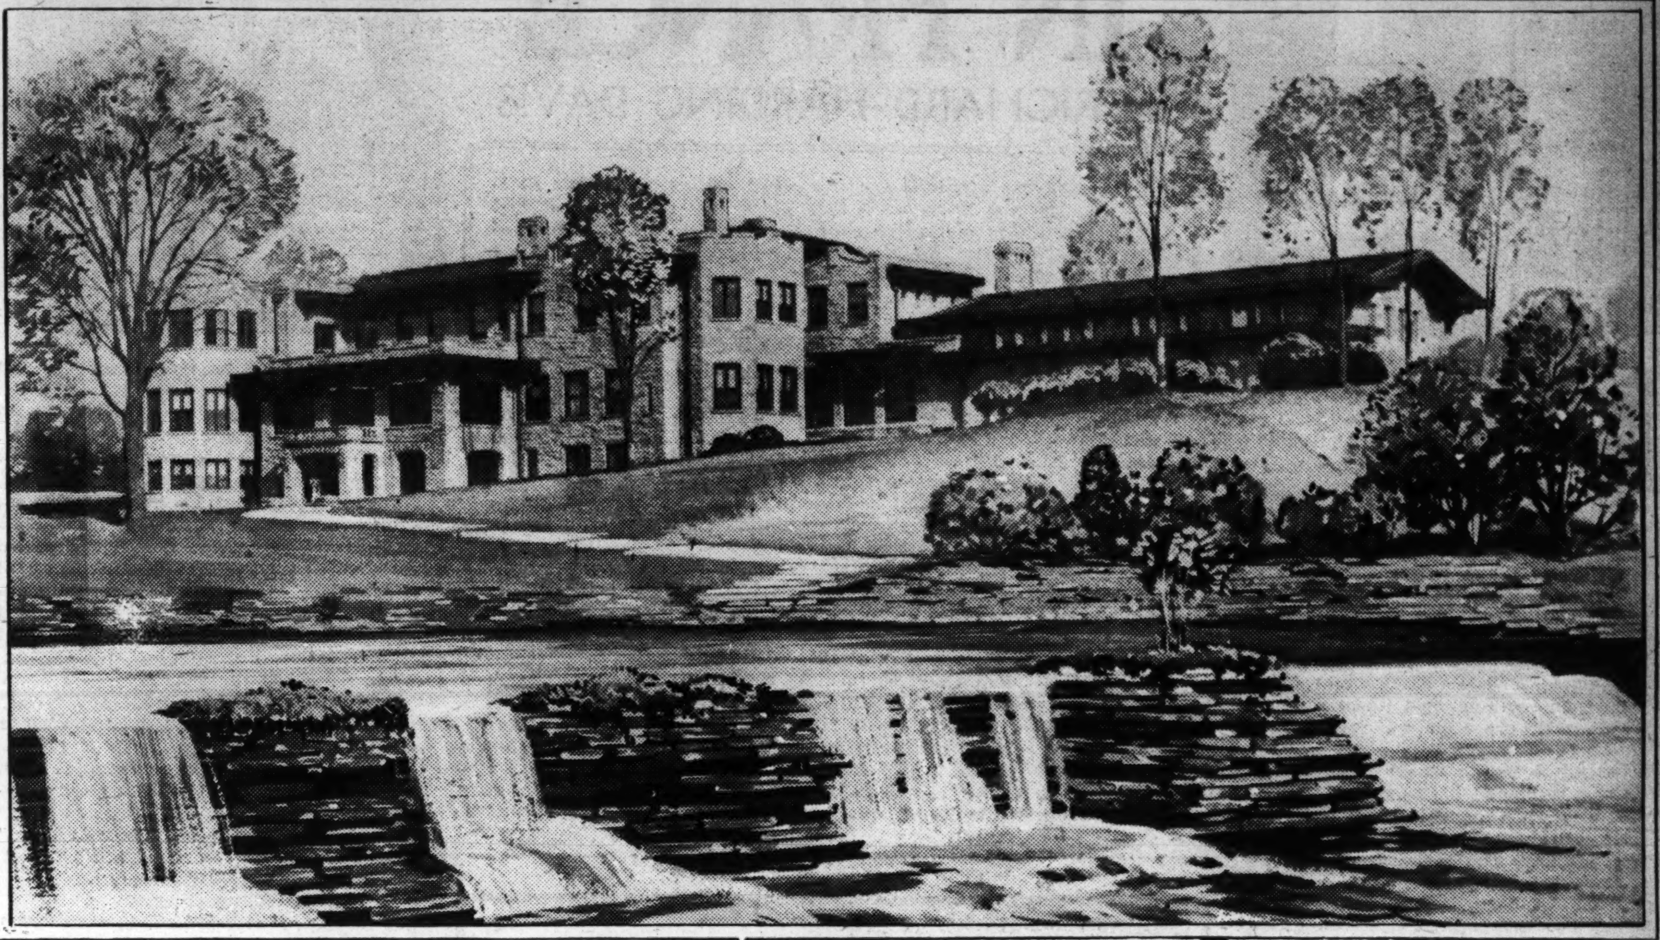
Figure 5 is an oilskin sport suit to be worn over breeches or a heavy skirt and is suitable for duck hunting, canoeing, camping or other outdoor pastimes.

These costumes also are made up in a variety of shades and styles for automobiling.

In figure 3 it will be noted that garters, formerly worn solely for a purpose, now are being used for ornamentation and in a position where they can be seen. The ones in the picture consist of ribbon shirred over elastic and are ornamented with French bouquets of chiffon and ribbon. It is unlikely, however, that they will become popular for street wear, having been designed primarily as an adjunct to the evening toilette.

Henry Ford's Dream as Barefoot Lad Comes True

$2,000,000 Estate Built Where Schoolboy Roamed



RIVER ELEVATION OF THE FORD HOME.

Thousands of acres near Detroit the site of his wonderful country place, now near completion—Unique and costly features of construction and equipment, combining art and utility—Builds artificial waterfall in river to enhance view from sun-room

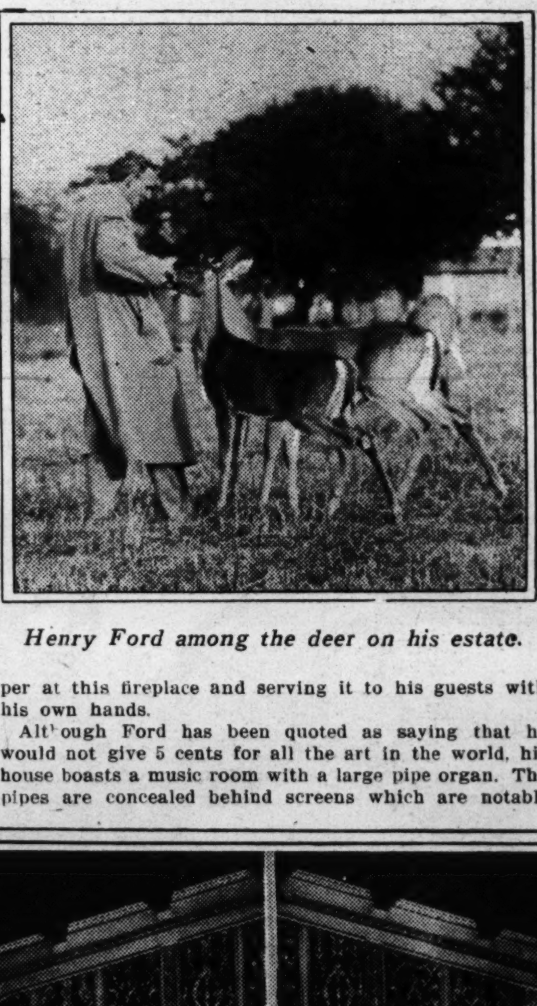
ABOUT forty years ago a little barefoot schoolboy, who loved the great out-of-doors, often roamed about the woods and fields surrounding the village of Dearborn, Mich, a few miles west of Detroit. Common report has it he dreamed that some day thousands of these acres would belong to him and that upon them he would erect one of the most palatial country houses in America. If he did, the dream has come true. For the name of the boy was Henry Ford, and the other day he took up his residence in the mansion he had built amid the scenes of his childhood wanderings.

Much landscape work remains to be done, but it may be said that the estate is approaching completion. Its total cost up to the present is estimated at $2,000,000.

The house was two years in building, and from 500 to 800 men were constantly employed upon it. Complete wood-working and stone-cutting plants were established on the ground. A gently-rising slope 200 feet back from the River Rouge was decided upon as the site of the house. The grounds were left in their primitive condition and the architect devoted himself to making a house that would harmonize with the surroundings. The material chosen was Marblehead limestone, and an exterior of modified early English design was determined upon.

Something original is always expected of the man who had the sublime simplicity to start out single-handed to bring the European war to an end; and his new home abounds in unique features. First, there is his favorite room, situated on the ground level and called the "Field Room." It is walled with worm-eaten cypress logs, which were set on fire and charred and then scraped down to a rare finish with wire brushes. A natural well of water bubbles up at one end of the room, and the pewter hardware and plank floor recall the plain furnishings of pioneer days.

There is also a massive fireplace, taken bodily from the old Ten Eyck Tavern, which was the first building in Michigan to house a Democratic convention. Over the fireplace is a tablet cut into the logs and bearing the quotation from Thoreau: "Chop your own wood and it will warm you twice." Ford takes especial delight in cooking a fish supper at this fireplace and serving it to his guests with his own hands.



Henry Ford among the deer on his estate.

Although Ford has been quoted as saying that he would not give 5 cents for all the art in the world, his house boasts a music room with a large pipe organ. The pipes are concealed behind screens which are notable examples of the art of wood carving. The organ itself although controlled by manuals in the music room, is scattered in its parts all about the house. The chimes and celeste organ are in the upper main hall; the echo organ is in the ceiling screen of the music room, and the main pipes do not open upon the music room but upon the living room. It is the intention to use the music room as a lounging place, to which the sounds of music will penetrate from other and sometimes distant part of the house. The music room is finished in American walnut in pure Jacobean style.

The combination sun and billiard room is on the side of the house overlooking the River Rouge, and its windows command a view of several miles. This room is in Chippendale style. The cue racks are concealed in the wall, and the billiard table, covered with oyster-gray cloth, is finished in the style of the other woodwork of the room, which also contains a fine mantel of Formosa marble.

As in his business Ford has always had a passion for improving things, so he has undertaken to remodel the River Rouge: to make its view from the sunroom more picturesque he has installed an artificial waterfall in the river bed.

It is said that the variety of mahogany showing what is known as roseleaf mottling has been obtainable in the American market only three times in the last 40 years. Yet the entire walls of the Ford dining room are paneled with mahogany of this rare figuring. Two Lavers rugs, semi-antique products of the Kirma country and noteworthy for their colors and texture, lie upon the floor. The room is finished in Grinling Gibben style.

In the east wing of the house is the swimming pool, which is so finished that the water in it is of Mediterranean blue and appears to be of unusual depth. A fountain spouting sparkling green water is at one end of the pool. In designing the pool every effort was made to do away with the appearance of an athletic club. The ceiling is finished in mottled blue sky effect, and the walls are in washable stone and fine marbles. Flower boxes are hung under the high window and placed along the side of the pool. A palm room adjoins the pool.

From the garden level entrance is made into the garden hall. This room is in formal treatment of stone, marble and massive oak doors. A staircase of Levanto marble leads from the garden hall to the main hall, which is given Elizabethian treatment and finished in blue, with wooden lighting fixtures.

In the library is a ceiling taken from an old English manor house. The library has cases for 400 volumes. Hazel brown oak is used for the panels. A fireplace and an especially fine Khiva Bokhara rug in a great variety of rare red color further distinguish this room.

The living room is finished in French walnut, inlaid in marquetry of a

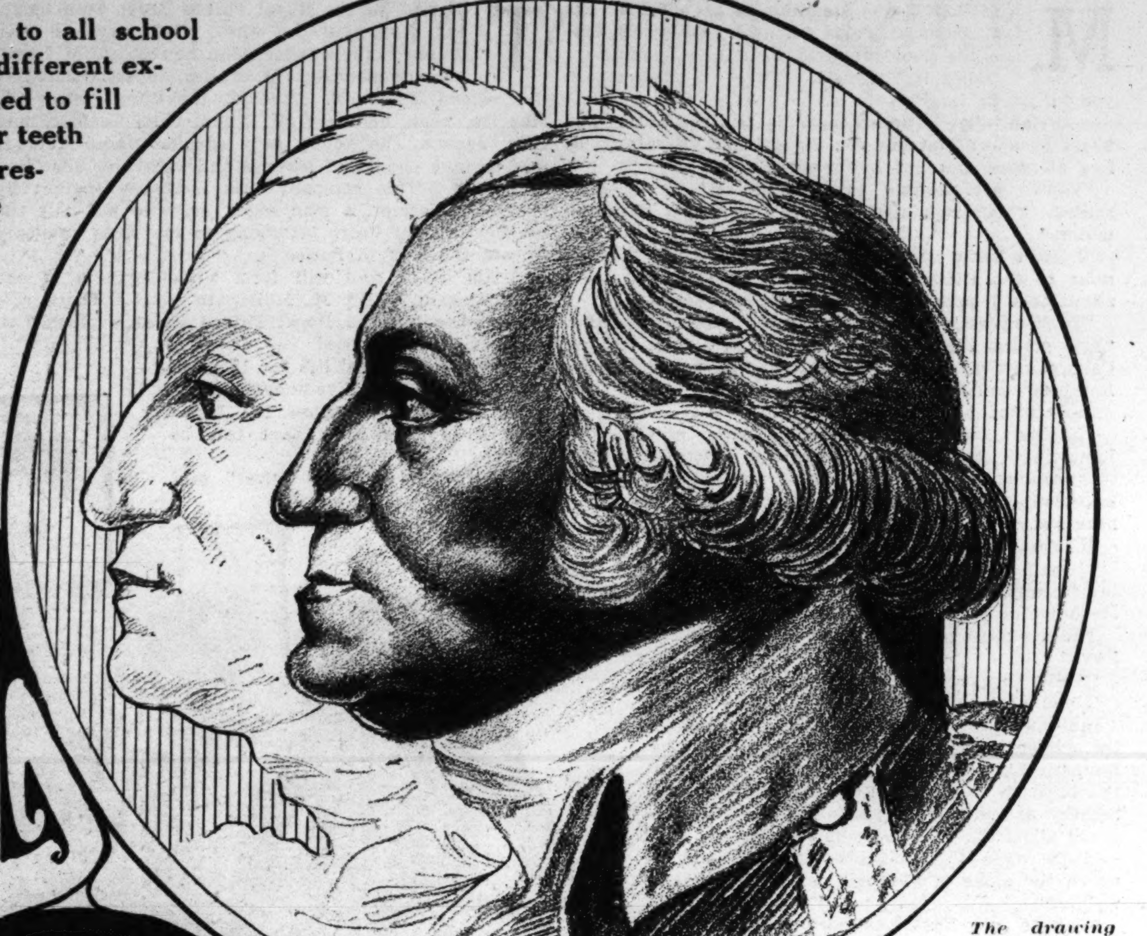
George Washington's Troubles With His Teeth

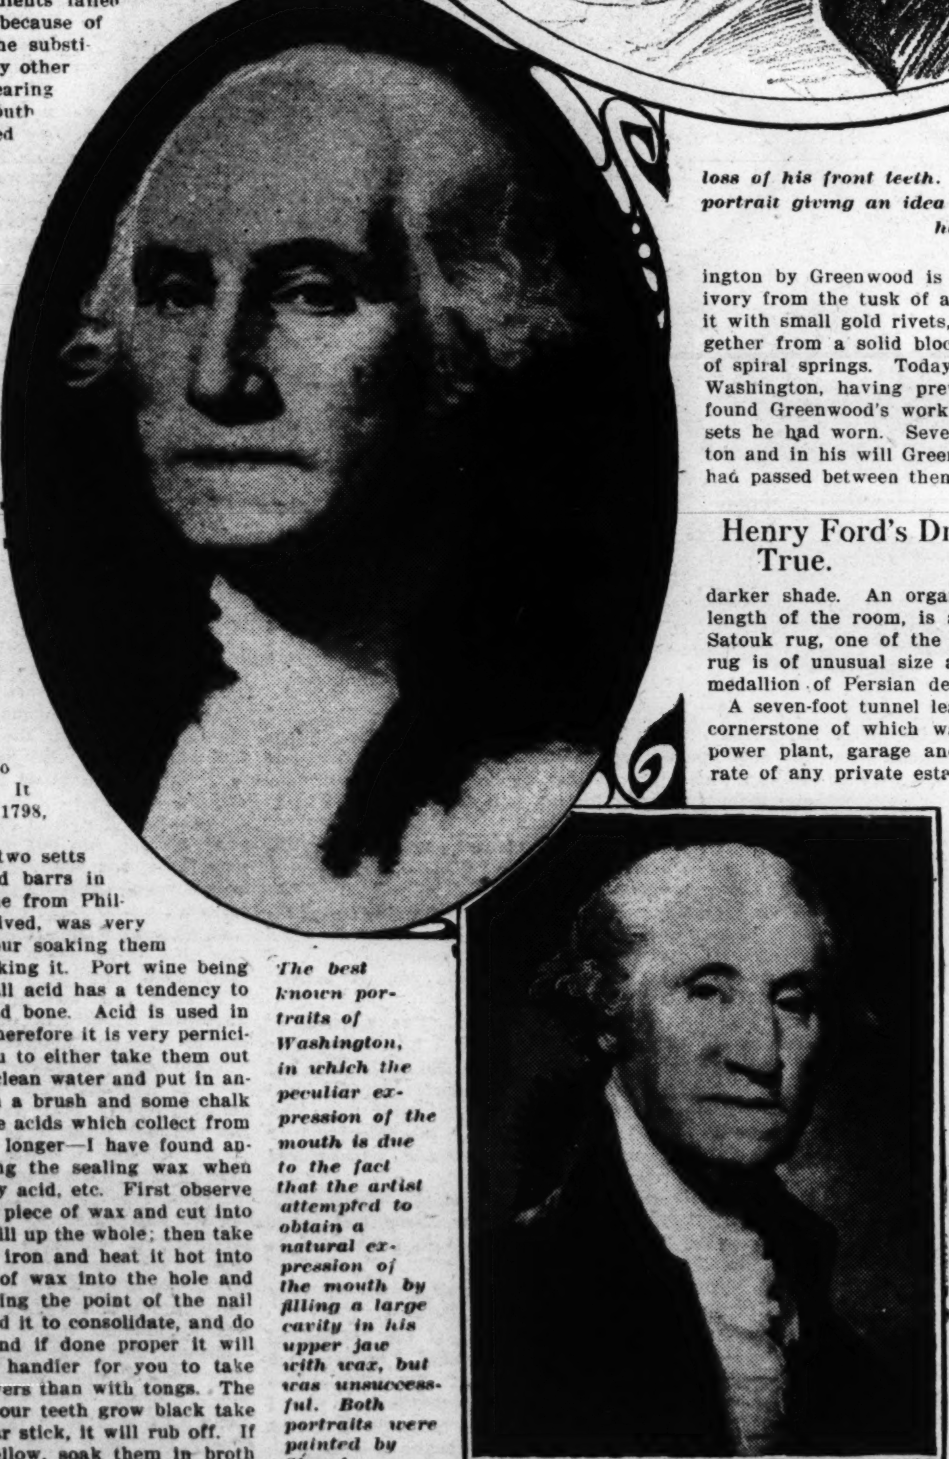
In the portraits of him which are familiar to all school children he would have had an entirely different expression if artists had not been compelled to fill the cavity caused by the loss of his upper teeth with wax, giving him an unnatural expression because of his efforts to hold the substitute in place—Late in life he wore false teeth made from the tusk of a hippopotamus—Letters which passed between him and his dentist, in which the latter chides him for allowing his false teeth to come in contact with port wine :: ::



The drawing at the right, from the St. Memin crayon of Washington, strikingly shows his sunken upper lip, caused by the loss of his front teeth. The one at the left is a reconstructed portrait giving an idea of how Washington would have looked had he had all his teeth.

THE placing on exhibition in Philadelphia the other day of a set of false teeth owned by George Washington called attention to the fact, which has been freely discussed in dental histories, that from early life the first President suffered with his teeth. He lost his front ones when a young man and in his declining days wore the crude and for the most part ill-fitting sets which represented the best efforts of the first dentists of America. In the head of Washington, in the tomb at Mount Vernon today, is a pair of artificial incisors fashioned for him by John Greenwood, who for several years was his personal dentist.

Washington's facial defects are strikingly exemplified in most portraits of him, although some of the artists tried their best to conceal them. It is said that Charles Peale, for whom he often sat, tried to remedy the distortion of features of his distinguished sitter by replacing the missing teeth with wax, as did also Gilbert Stuart, but these expedients failed to produce an easy expression because of Washington's efforts to keep the substitute in position. In paintings by other artists, made when he was wearing clumsily-made dentures, the mouth distortion is even more marked. It was not until he sat for Rembrandt Peale, a son of Charles, that the mouth assumed a more natural position, and this is explained by the fact that he then was wearing a very satisfactory set of false teeth which had been made for him by Greenwood.



The best known portraits of Washington, in which the peculiar expression of the mouth is due to the fact that the artist attempted to obtain a natural expression of the mouth by filling a large cavity in his upper jaw with wax, but was unsuccessful. Both portraits were painted by Stuart.

A history of dentistry in America, compiled by Burton Lee Thorpe of St. Louis, contains an interesting series of letters which passed between Washington and Greenwood, in whom the "Father of His Country" seems to have found all that a dentist should be for those days. In the first, from Greenwood to Washington, which also was part of the Philadelphia exhibition, the practitioner chides his patient for allowing his teeth to become black and voices his suspicion that it was due in large measure to their contact with port wine. It is dated New York, Dec. 28, 1798, and is as follows:

"Sir: I send you enclosed two setts of teeth, one fixed on the old barrs in part, and the sett you sent me from Philadelphia, which, when I received, was very black, occasioned either by your soaking them in port wine, or by your drinking it. Port wine being sour takes off all polish and all acid has a tendency to soften every kind of teeth and bone. Acid is used in coloring every kind of ivory, therefore it is very pernicious to the teeth. I advise you to either take them out after dinner and put them in clean water and put in another sett, or clean them with a brush and some chalk scraped fine. It will absorb the acids which collect from the mouth and preserve them longer—I have found another and better way of using the sealing wax when holes are eaten in the teeth by acid, etc. First observe and dry the teeth, then take a piece of wax and cut into small pieces as you think will fill up the whole; then take a large nail or other piece of iron and heat it hot into the fire, then put your piece of wax into the hole and melt it by means of introducing the point of the nail to it. I have tried it and found it to consolidate, and do better than the other way, and if done proper it will resist the saliva. It will be handier for you to take hold of the nail with small piyers than with tongs. The wax must be very small. If your teeth grow black take some chalk and a pine or cedar stick, it will rub off. If you want your teeth more yellow, soak them in broth or pot liquor, but not in tea or acids. Porter is a good thing to color them and will not hurt but preserve them, but it must not be in the least pricked; you will find I have altered the upper teeth sent me from Philadelphia. Leaving the enamel on the teeth don't preserve them any longer than if it was off, only holds the color better, but to preserve them they must be very often changed and cleaned, for whatever attacks them must be repelled as often, or it will gain ground and destroy the works. The two setts I repaired is done on a different plan when they are done when made entirely new, for the teeth are screwed on the barrs, instead of having the barrs cast redhot on them, which is the reason, I believe, they destroy or dissolve so soon near the barrs.

"Sir, after hoping you will not be obliged to be troubled very soon in the same way, I subscribe myself, Your very humble servant, JOHN GREENWOOD.

"Sir, the additional charge is fifteen dollars.

"P. S.—I expect next spring to move my family into Connecticut State. If I do I will write and let you know, and whether I give up my present business or not, I will, as long as I live, do anything in this way for you if you require it."

To which Washington replied from Mount Vernon, Jan. 6, 1799, just a short time before his death:

"Sir: Your letter of the 28th ult., with the parcel that accompanied it, came safe to hand, and I feel obliged for your attention to my requests, and for the directions you have given me.

"Enclosed you have bank-notes for fifteen dollars, which I shall be glad to hear has got safe to your hands. If you should remove to Connecticut, I should be glad to be advised of it; and to what place, as shall always prefer your services to that of any other, in the line of your present profession. I am, sir, Your very humble servant, G. WASHINGTON."

The upper dentures of the set constructed for Washington by Greenwood is said to have been carved from a block of ivory from the tusk of a hippopotamus, the teeth being riveted to it with small gold rivets, and the lower plate and teeth carved together from a solid block, both dentures being secured by means of spiral springs. Today this work would be considered crude, but Washington, having previously tried other dentists, apparently found Greenwood's work most comfortable compared with other sets he had worn. Several of these sets were made for Washington and in his will Greenwood bequeathed one of the letters which had passed between them to each of his children.

darker shade. An organ screen, covering one-third of the entire length of the room, is a splendid example of wood carving. A Satouk rug, one of the finest Persian weaves, is on the floor. The rug is of unusual size and is of ebony blue with an irregular medallion of Persian design.

A seven-foot tunnel leads to the garage and power plant, the cornerstone of which was laid by Thomas A. Edison. The private power plant, garage and laboratory are probably the most elaborate of any private estate in the country. The power is developed from a 1[illegible]-foot fall in the River Rouge. The turbines and generators are the most efficient that can be obtained. This building received special attention from Ford, and it is said that he delayed its construction for four months in order to have everything just as he wanted it. His laboratory is on the third floor of the building.

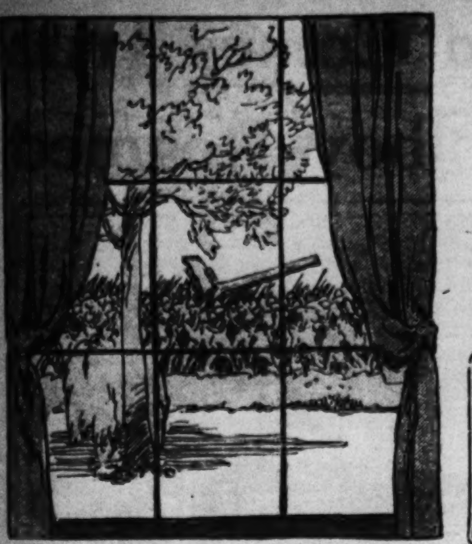
More than 135 miles of electrical conduit, with from seven to twenty-four wires in each conduit, are used about the premises. The plumbing and heating are carried through conduits to the residence. The plumbing installation is the second largest of its kind in the country. More than 40,000 feet of brass tubing were used in the hot-water apparatus and plumbing.

The refrigerating plant is unusual in residential work. It supplies zero temperature in storage closets and in the butler's pantry freezes inch units of ice for table use, all forms and shapes of dessert, and provides a system for keeping ice cream and desserts in their original condition for months. The pantry has both hot and cold slabs.

All of the ornamental metal work was done on the grounds. One of the features is lightning protection by invisible means. The copper work of the roof and cornices are all parts of the system and are connected by a copper pan of water and a copper coil, by which any electric shock would be directed to a damp cesspool some distance from the building.

The entire house and all its furnishings are marked by harmony, and a symphony of color, tone and proportion has been obtained that is in keeping with the simple tastes of the owner.

Ford intends to make his place an asylum for birds, making it so attractive for them that great colonies of feathered friends will settle there. He also plans in time to give it some of the features of a public park, open for tourists to admire its landscape gardening. Upon the house, its furnishings and equipment, he has already spent $1,500,000, and the grounds could not have cost less than half-million. Before the project is completed still another $[illegible]00,000 will be expended.



SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE

By RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

THE following article is one of a series written by the late Richard Harding Davis when that noted war correspondent had completed his first journey through the battle-stricken territory of France and Belgium. Some of the best work for which his name stands was done at this time and of all he wrote nothing is superior to this one, "Somewhere in France."

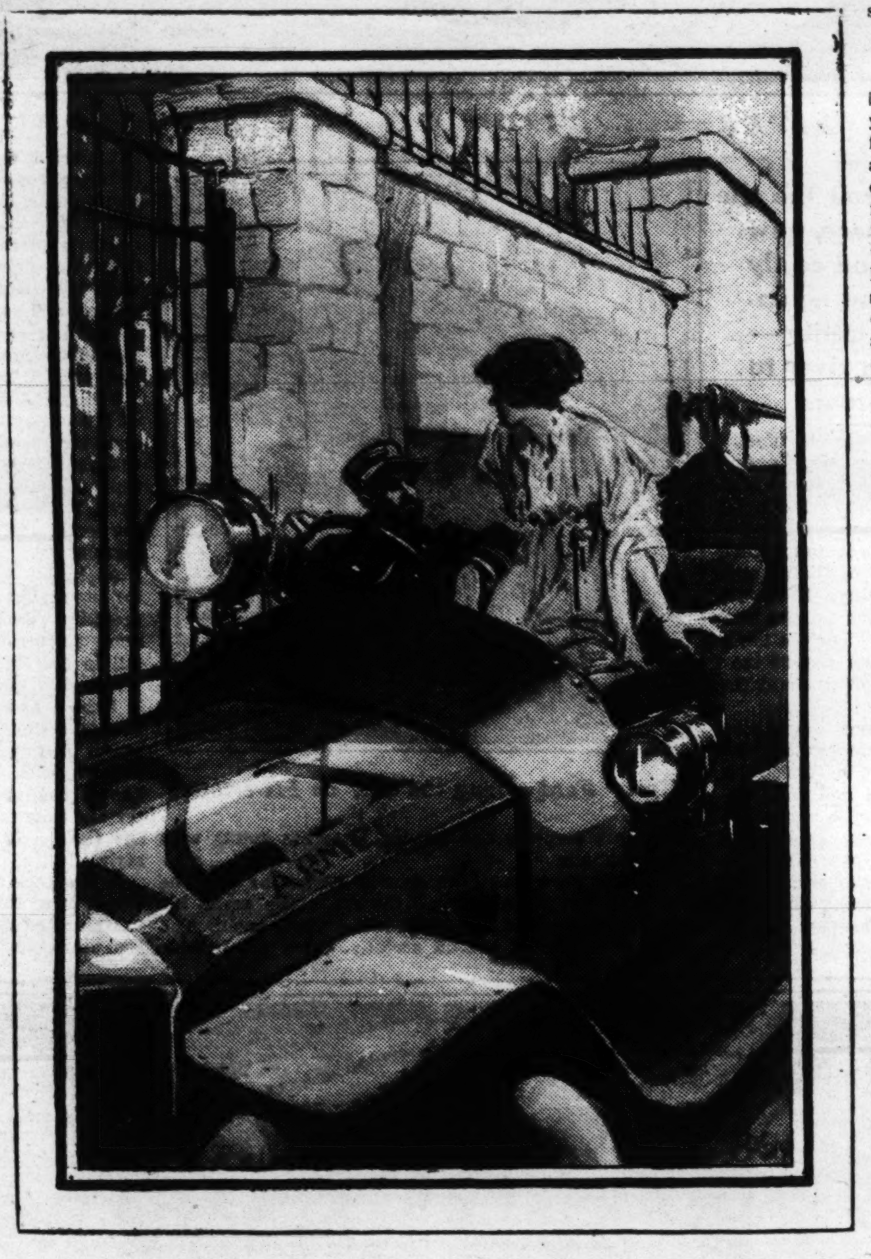
MARIE GESSLER, known as Marie Chaumontel, Jeanne d'Avrechy, the Countess d'Aurillac, was German. Her father, who served through the Franco-Prussian War, was a German spy. It was from her mother she learned to speak French sufficiently well to satisfy even an Academician and, among Parisians, to pass as one. Both her parents were dead. Before they departed, knowing they could leave their daughter nothing save their debts, they had had her trained as a nurse. But when they were gone, Marie in the Berlin hospitals played politics, intrigued, indiscriminately misused the appealing, violet eyes. There was a scandal; several scandals. At the age of 25 she was dismissed from the Municipal Hospital, and as now—save for the violet eyes—she was without resources, as a compagnon de voyage with a German doctor she traveled to Monte Carlo. There she abandoned the doctor for Henri Ravignac, a Captain in the French Aviation Corps, who, when his leave ended, escorted her to Paris.

The duties of Capt. Ravignac kept him in barracks near the aviation field, but Marie he established in his apartments on the Boulevard Haussmann. One day he brought from the barracks a roll of blueprints, and as he was locking them in a drawer, he said: "The Germans would pay through the nose for those!" The remark was indiscreet, but then Marie had told him she was French, and anyone would have believed her.

The next morning the same spirit of adventure that had exiled her from the Berlin hospitals carried her with the blue prints to the German embassy. There, greatly shocked, they first wrote down her name and address, and then, indignant at her proposition, ordered her out. But the day following a strange young German who was not at all indignant, but, on the contrary, quite charming, called upon Marie. For the blue prints he offered to pay her a very large sum, and that same hour, with them and Marie, departed for Berlin. Marie did not need the money. Nor did the argument that she was serving her country greatly impress her. It was rather that she loved intrigue. And so she became a spy.

Henri Ravignac, the man she had robbed of the blueprints, was tried by courtmartial. The charge was treason, but Charles Ravignac, his younger brother, promised to prove that the guilty one was the girl, and to that end obtained leave of absence and spent much time and money. At the trial he was able to show the record of Marie in Berlin and Monte Carlo; that she was the daughter of a German secret agent; that on the afternoon the prints disappeared Marie, with an agent of the German embassy, had left Paris for Berlin. In consequence of this the charge of selling military secrets was altered to one of "gross neglect," and Henri Ravignac was sentenced to two years in the military prison at Tours. But he was of an ancient and noble family, and when they came to take him from his cell in the Cherche-Midi, he was dead. Charles, his brother, disappeared. It was said he also had killed himself; that he had been appointed a military attache in South America; that to revenge his brother he had entered the secret service; but whatever became of him no one knew. All that was certain was that, thanks to the act of Marie Gessler, on the rolls of the French army the ancient and noble name of Ravignac no longer appeared.



"'It is the prison of St. Lazare,' he said."

In her chosen profession Marie Gessler found nothing discreditable. Of herself her opinion was not high, and her opinion of men was lower. For her smiles she had watched several sacrifice honor, duty, loyalty; and she held them and their kind in contempt. To lie, to cajole, to rob men of secrets they thought important, and of secrets the importance of which they did not even guess, was to her merely an intricate and exciting game.

She played it very well. So well that in the service her advance was rapid. On important missions she was sent to Russia, through the Balkans; even to the United States. There, with credentials as an army nurse, she inspected our military hospitals and unobtrusively asked many innocent questions.

When she begged to be allowed to work in her beloved Paris, "they" told her when war came "they" intended to plant her inside that city, and that, until then, the less Paris knew of her the better.

But just before the great war broke, to report on which way Italy might jump, she was sent to Rome, and it was not until September she was recalled. The telegram informed her that her Aunt Elizabeth was ill, and that at once she must return to Berlin. This, she learned from the code book wrapped under the cover of her thermos bottle, meant that she was to report to the General commanding the German forces at Soissons.

From Italy she passed through Switzerland and, after leaving Basle, on military trains was rushed north to Luxemburg, and then west at Laon. She was accompanied by her companion, Bertha, an elderly and respectable, even distinguished-looking female. In the secret service her number was 528. Their passes from the war office described them as nurses of the German Red Cross. Only the Intelligence Department knew their real mission. With her also, as her chauffeur, was a young Italian soldier of fortune, Paul Anfossi. He had served in the Belgian Congo, in the French Foreign Legion in Algiers, and spoke all the European languages. In Rome, where as a wireless operator he was serving a commercial company, in selling Marie copies of messages he had memorized, Marie had found him useful, and when war came she obtained for him, from the Wilhelmstrasse, the number 292. From Laon, in one of the automobiles of the General Staff, the three spies were driven first to Soissons, and then along the road to Meaux and Paris, to the village of Neufchelles. They arrived at midnight, and in a chateau of one of the champagne Princes, found the Colonel commanding the Intelligence Bureau. He accepted their credentials, destroyed them, and replaced them with a laisser-passer signed by the Mayor of Laon. That dignitary, the Colonel explained, to citizens of Laon fleeing to Paris and the coast had issued many passes. But as now between Laon and Paris there were three German armies, the refugees had been turned back and their passes confiscated.

"From among them," said the officer, "we have selected one for you. It is issued to the wife of Count d'Aurillac, a Captain of reserves, and her aunt, Mme. Benet. It asks for those ladies and their chauffeur Briand, a safe-conduct through the French military lines. If it gets you into Paris you will destroy it and assume another name. The Count d'Aurillac is now with his regiment in that city. If he learned of the presence there of his wife he would seek her, and that would not be good for you. So, if you reach Paris, you will become a Belgian refugee. You are highborn and rich. Your chateau has been destroyed. But you have money. You will give liberally to the Red Cross. You will volunteer to nurse in the hospitals. With your sad story of ill treatment by us, with your high birth, and your knowledge of nursing, which you acquired, of course, only as an amateur, you should not find it difficult to join the Ladies of France or the American Ambulance. What you learn from the wounded English and French officers and the French doctors you will send us through the usual channels."

"When do I start?" asked the woman.

"For a few days," explained the officer, "you remain in this chateau. You will keep us informed of what is going forward after we withdraw."

"Withdraw?" It was more of an exclamation than a question. Marie was too well trained to ask questions.

"We are taking up a new position," said the officer, "on the Aisne."

The woman, incredulous, stared.

"And we do not enter Paris?"

"You do," returned the officer. "That is all that concerns you. We will join you later—in the spring. Meanwhile, for the winter, we intrench ourselves along the Aisne. In a chimney of this chateau we have set up a wireless outfit. We are leaving it intact. The chauffeur, Briand—who, you must explain to the French, you brought with you from Laon, and who has been long in your service—will transmit whatever you discover. We wish especially to know of any movement toward our left. If they attack in front from Soissons, we are prepared; but of any attempt to cross the Oise and take us in flank you must warn us."

The officer rose and hung upon himself his field glasses, map cases and sidearms.

"We leave you now," he said. "When the French arrive you will tell them your reason for halting at this chateau was that the owner, Monsieur Iverney, and his family are friends of your husband. You found us here and we detained you. And so long as you can use the wireless make excuses to remain. If they offer to send you on to Paris, tell them your aunt is too ill to travel."

"But they will find the wireless," said the woman. "They are sure to use the towers for observation, and they will find it."

"In that case," said the officer, "you will suggest to them that we fled in such haste we had no time to dismantle it. Of course, you had no knowledge that it existed, or, as a loyal French woman, you would have at once told them." To emphasize his next words the officer pointed at her: "Under no circumstances," he continued, "must you be suspected. If they should take Briand in the act, should they have even the least doubt concerning him, you must repudiate him entirely. If necessary, to keep your own skirts clear, it would be your duty to yourself to denounce him as a spy."

"Your first orders," said the woman, "were to tell them Briand had been long in my service; that I brought him from my home in Laon."

"He might be in your service for years," returned the Colonel, "and you not know he was a German agent."

"If to save myself I inform upon him," said Marie, "of course you know you will lose him."

The officer shrugged his shoulders. "A wireless operator," he retorted, "we can replace. But for you, and for the service you are to render in Paris, we have no substitute. You must not be found out. You are invaluable."

The spy inclined her head. "I thank you," she said.

The officer sputtered indignantly.

"It is not a compliment," he exclaimed; "it is an order. You must not be found out!"

Withdrawn some 200 yards from the Paris road the chateau stood upon a wooded hill. Except directly in front, trees of great height surrounded it. The tops of their branches brushed the windows; interlacing, they continued until they overhung the wall of the estate. Where it ran with the road the wall gave way to a lofty gate and iron fence, through which those passing could see a stretch of noble turf, as wide as a polo field, borders of flowers disappearing under the shadows of the trees; and the chateau itself, with its terrace, its many windows, its high-pitched, sloping roof, broken by towers and turrets.

Through the remainder of the night there came from Magistrate and Detective.

M. FUSELIER was standing in his office in the law courts at Paris when three discreet taps on the door broke in upon his thoughts.

"Come in," he said. "Juve! I haven't seen you for ages. Busy?"

"Frightfully. The calendar is terribly heavy and won't be a brilliant one for the police. There may be lots of cases, but not lots worked out."

"You've got nothing to grumble at," M. Fuselier smiled. "Your reputation isn't in any danger of diminishing."

"I don't know what you mean," Juve said. "If you refer to the Beltham and Langrune cases, you must admit that I have achieved no definite result."

"Your modesty is delightful, Juve," said M. Fuselier. "You solved the Langrune case. You were at the Cahors Assizes. What was your impression of Etienne Rambert's guilt or innocence?"

Juve faced his friend.

"Anybody but you I would not answer at all. The Langrune case is only just beginning. Nothing certain is known at all. I've got lots of ideas, all vague and improbable; my imagination seems to be running away with me."

M. Fuselier wagged a mocking finger.

"Juve," he said, "I charge you with attempting to implicate Fantomas in the murder of the Marquise de Langrune!"

The detective replied in the same tone of raillery.

"Guilty, my lord!"

"Good Lord, man!" the Magistrate exclaimed, "Fantomas is a perfect obsession with you. I, too, am beginning to have an obsession for that fantastic miscreant! And I want to know why you have not come to me about that sensational robbery at the Royal Palace Hotel? You have heard about the card the man left, haven't you?—blank when the Princess found it, and on which the name of Fantomas afterward became visible?"

"There's no Fantomas about that. What emerges from this Royal - Palace story is some common hotel thief's idea of casting suspicion on Fantomas; it was a trick to mislead the police."

But M. Fuselier declined to be convinced.

"No common hotel thief stole Mme. Van den Rosen's necklace and Princess Sonia's 120,000 francs. The audacity of the crime is suggestive. What coolness to get clear away in spite of all the precautions taken!"

"Tell me about it, said Juve.

The Magistrate told everything he had been able to elicit.

"The amazing thing, he said in conclusion, "is the way the fellow contrived to get into the lift, get into livery and make his first attempt to escape. When the hall porter stopped him he did not lose his head, but sent the lift up to the top of the hotel with the clothes that would have betrayed him, contrived to be told to go for the police, and so marched off as easy as you please. A man capable of carrying through such a comedy deserves to be taken for Fantomas!"

Juve sat in deep consideration.

"What interests me most," he said, "is the means he took to prevent the Princess from screaming when he was leaving her rooms. To take her to the door opening on the corridor where the faintest cry might have involved the worst possible consequences, and assume that the victim was so everwrought she could do nothing—that is quite admirable psychology! Fine work! You have inspected the scene of the crime; where was the rascal hidden?"

"The Princess' suite of rooms ends in the bathroom and the chief things there are the bath, some cupboards, and a shower bath. The shower bath has a waterproof curtain hanging from the top right down to the tub at the bottom. There were footmarks on the enamel of the tub. The thief hid there, behind the curtain."

"And the shower bath is near the window?" Juve went on. "It's quite interesting! The man had succeeded in stealing the necklace from Mme. Van den Rosen, whose rooms are next to Princess Sonia's. He had not been able to escape through the corridor. He got into the Princess' suite, stepping over the railing on the balcony and walking in through the window and hid in the shower bath to wait for the Princess."

"But he did not want her!" Fuselier retorted. "All he had to do was take the pocketbook and go!"

"Not a bit of it!" said Juve. "At the end of the month the Princess would have big bills to meet. The thief found out she had withdrawn money from the custody of the hotel. But he must have been ignorant of where she had placed the portfolio. She told him."

"That's a tall yarn!" M. Fuselier protested.

"She did!" said Juve. "He hid in the shower bath and waited. When the lady appeared he threatened her, hit on the dodge of putting out the electric light and got a chance to search through her clothes. If he had found the pocketbook then he would have bolted. But he didn't find it. So he went to the next room and waited for the Princess to come to him there. He watched her eyes and saw them go automatically toward the drawer. He slipped his card in, abstracted the pocketbook, and took leave, driving his impudence and skill to the length of making her see him to the door. I must go. I shall very likely come again in a day or two for another talk."

CHAPTER XII.

A Knockout Blow.

THE staff of the Royal Palace Hotel were finishing dinner in the white tiled servants' hall. At one table, smaller than the rest, sat M. Louis, general manager; M. Muller, superintendent of the second floor; M. Ludovic, the chief valet; M. Maurice, head footman; M. Naud, chief cashier, and Mlle. Jeanne, the young lady cashier whose duty it was to take charge of moneys and valuables deposited by guests. This company was increased tonight by M. Henri Verbier, a man about 40, who had left the branch hotel at Cairo belonging to the same company to join the staff in Paris.

"I am afraid you will form a bad opinion of our establishment," said M. Muller to him. "These robberies have put the Royal Palace under a cloud."

Henri Verbier smiled.

"I've been in hotel life for 15 years now," he said, "and I've known similar cases before. I suppose the board have done everything that can be done?"

"I should think they have!" said M. Louis. "They even upbraided me for having had the door opened for the thief. I had a good friend in Muller, who admitted that he had been imposed upon and given the order for the fellow to be allowed to go out. I knew nothing about it."

"The Magistrate does not suspect anybody?" Verbier asked.

M. Louis smiled.

"Yes, Verbier," he said, "your charming neighbor Mlle. Jeanne there."

Verbier turned toward the young cashier.

"Did the Magistrate cross-examine you so much?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

"I will tell you the whole story. The morning of the day the robbery was committed I had returned to Princess Sonia the pocketbook she had given into my custody a few days before. Customers deposit their valuables and I hand them a receipt; they give back the receipt when they demand their valuables, and all I have to do is comply with their request, without asking questions. Isn't that so?"

"Yes," M. Muller broke in, "but only a few minutes before the robbery Mme. Van den Rosen had asked Mlle. Jeannete to take charge of her diamond necklace and Mlle. Jeanne had refused!"

The girl took no notice of the interruption, but went on with her explanation to Henri Verbier.

"What happened was this: I am at the disposal of customers until 9 p. m. only. After that, I have to lock my safe until 9 o'clock next morning. When Mme. Van den Rosen came with her diamond necklace at 9:30 I was perfectly within my rights in refusing to accept the deposit. When there is a rule it ought to be obeyed. I should do the same again, if the same thing happened. I gave the magistrate this explanation and no fault at all was found with me." As she spoke Mlle. Jeanne pushed back her chair. "Good-night," she said. "I am going up to bed."

Mlle. Jeanne had hardly left the room before Henri Verbier also rose.

Mlle. Jeanne had reached her room on the fifth floor and flung open her window when a tap fell upon the door and Henri Verbier entered.

"My room is next to yours," he said. "Would you condescend to smoke an Egyptian cigarette?"

The girl laughed.

"It is very kind of you," she said.

"If I have been kind," Henri Verbier replied; "allow me to smoke a cigarette with you. Have you been in the hotel business long? I only ask because I fancy I recognize your eyes!" Henri Verbier looked meaningly at the girl. "Mlle. Jeanne, on summer nights like this there are times when I feel as if love were an absolute necessity."

He put out his arms as he spoke, when the girl, furious with rage, dealt him a tremendous blow right on the temple. With a groan, Henri Verbier dropped to the floor.

Mlle. Jeanne stared at him for a moment.

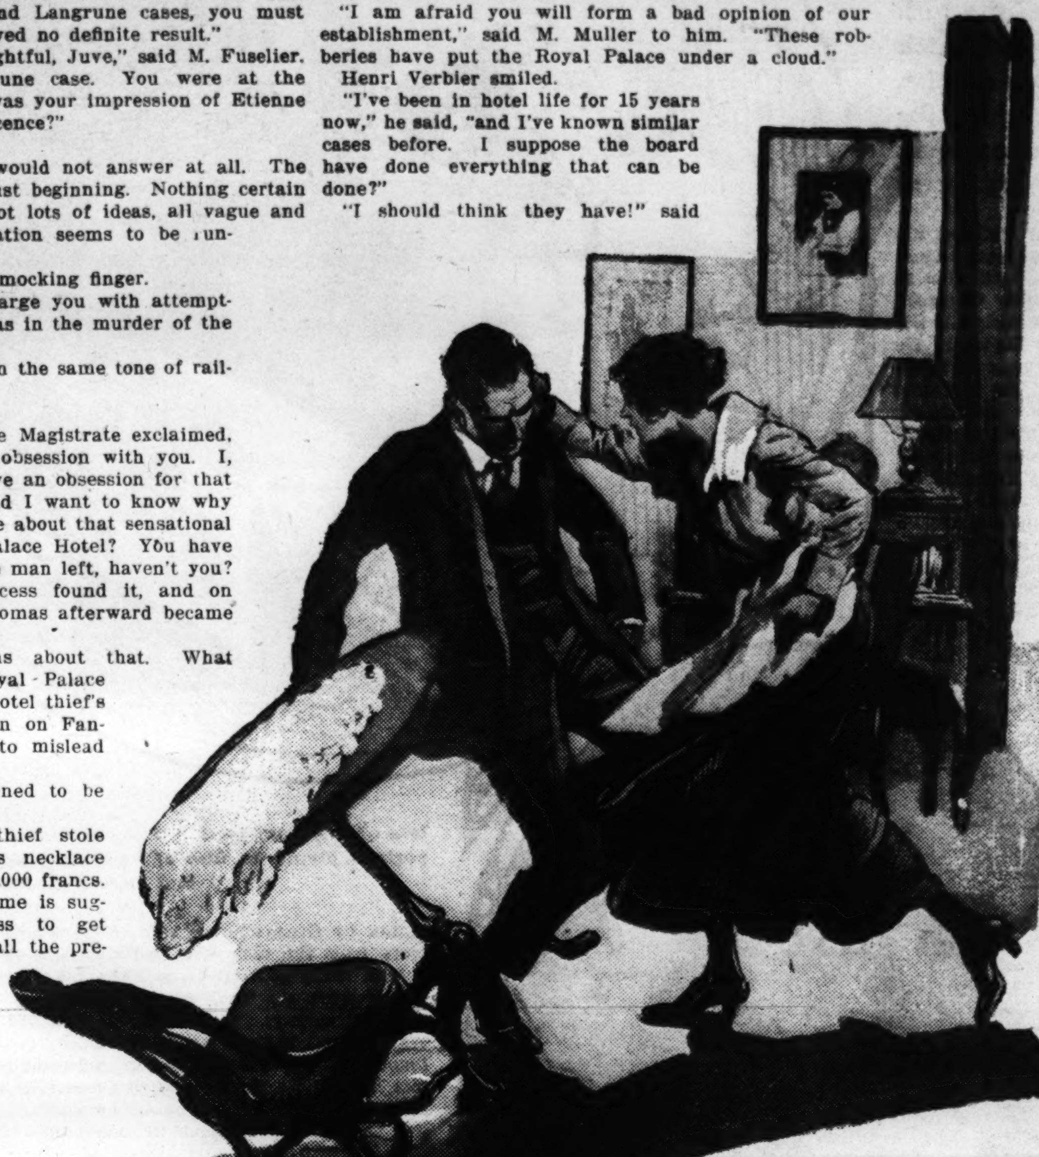
Two minutes later she smilingly passed the porter on duty and wished him good-night.

"By-bye," she said. "I'm going out to get a little fresh air!"

* * * * * * * *

Slowly Henri Verbier struggled into a sitting posture and looked around the room.

In the mirror over the mantelpiece he caught sight of his reflection and saw the bruise on his forehead. "Juve though I am," he murmured, "I've let myself be knocked out by a woman. Confound it all, I'll take my oath that blow was never dealt by any woman!"



"The girl, furious with rage, dealt him a tremendous blow on the temple."

CHAPTER XIII.

Therese's Future.

M. ETIENNE RAMBERT was in the smoking room of the house which he had purchased a few months previously in the Place Pereire, Rue Eugene-Flachet, smoking and chatting with his old friend Barbey, who also was his banker. The two had been discussing investments, and the wealthy merchant had displayed considerable indifference to the banker's recommendation of various gilt-edged securities.

"To tell you the truth, my dear fellow," he said at length, "these things interest me very little; I've got used to big enterprises—am almost what you would call a plunger. I've got the sporting instinct."

"It's a fine one," M. Barbey said with some enthusiasm. "If I were your banker I should put a scheme before you that has been running in my head. You will understand my hesitation when I tell you that it isn't any ordinary speculation. I am interested personally. I want to increase my house into a really large concern."

"Oh-ho!" said M. Etienne Rambert, half to himself. "Well, I need not say that I shall regard any information you give me as confidential."

The two men plunged into the subject for a good half-hour. At last M. Rambert threw down his pen.

"I'm accustomed to the American method of hustle, Barbey. I know what is in your mind; you are wondering where I shall get the million sterling that you want. Well, the last year or two have been very good for me. My capital has been increased in some lotteries which have turned out right quite lately. One can't always be unlucky in everything, though money can't cure, or even touch, the wounds in one's heart."

The banker made no answer; he shrank from waking the sad memories dormant in the old man's mind. He looked toward the mantelpiece; M. Rambert understood the instinctive action and drew out his watch.

"Twenty minutes to 11, Barbey; late hours for you. I am turning you out quite unceremoniously. As you know, I'm not lonely tonight, as I generally am. I have a young and very charming companion I am going to join."

M. Etienne Rambert conducted his friend to the hall door and then turned into the drawing room, where the shaded light from an electric lamp fell upon the bent head, oval face and delicate features of Therese Auvernois, intent upon a book. The girl looked around toward Etienne Rambert when she heard him coming.

"I am sure I am keeping you up most dreadfully late, dear M. Rambert," she said apologetically, "but what am I to do? I must wait for the Baronne de Vibray, and the dear thing is so often late!"

The Baronne de Vibray had not desisted from her first generous efforts until she had persuaded the family council to appoint her guardian of the orphaned Therese Auvernois. At first she had installed the child at Querelles, but Paris called to the Baronne and she brought her ward to the capital and settled in a little flat in the Rue Boissy d'Anglais. By degrees she accepted invitations, though deploring the necessity of leaving Therese alone.

Happily there was Etienne Rambert, also staying in Paris now. It had become the custom when the Baronne was dining out to intrust Therese to him.

After the murder of the Marquise the unpleasant discovery had been made that her fortune was by no means considerable. The estate was mortgaged and it was doubtful whether the assets would exceed the liabilities.

M. Rambert looked at her thoughtfully.

"My dear child," he said, "I have an idea. For many years I have been on friendly terms with a lady who belongs to the very best English society, Lady Beltham. A few months ago she lost her husband in strange circumstances. She is immensely rich and very charitable. She has with her several young English ladies, not as companions, but secretaries. She treats them like friends or relatives, and they all belong to the very best social class. If Lady Beltham would admit you into her little company you would be in a most delightful milieu, and she would almost certainly interest herself in your future."

"Dear M. Rambert!" murmured Therese, much moved, "I should be so glad!"

the road to those in the chateau the roar and rumbling of the army in retreat. It moved without panic, disorder or haste, but unceasingly. Not for an instant was there a breathing spell. And when the sun rose, the three spies—the two women and the chauffeur—who in the great chateau were now alone, could see as well as hear the gray column of steel rolling past below them.

The spies knew that the gray column had reached Claye, had stood within 15 miles of Paris, and then upon Paris had turned its back. They knew also that the reverberations from the direction of Meaux, that each moment grew more loud and savage, were the French “75s” whipping the gray column forward. Of what they felt the Germans did not speak. In silence they looked at each other, and in the eyes of Marie was bitterness and resolve.

Toward noon Marie met Anfossi in the great drawing room that stretched the length of the terrace and from the windows of which, through the park gates, they could see the Paris road.

“This, that is passing now,” said Marie, “is the last of our rear guard. Go to your tower,” she ordered, “and send word that except for stragglers and the wounded our column has just passed through Neufchelles, and that any moment we expect the French.” She raised her hand impressively. “From now,” she warned, “we speak French, we think French, we are French!”

Anfossi, or Briand, as now he called himself, addressed her in that language. His tone was bitter, “Pardon my lese majesty,” he said, “but this chief of your Intelligence Department is a dummer Mensch. He is throwing away a valuable life.”

Marie exclaimed in dismay. She placed her hand upon his arm, and the violet eyes filled with concern.

“Not yours?” she protested.

“Absolutely!” returned the Italian. “I can send nothing by this knapsack wireless that they will not learn from others; from airmen, Uhlans, the peasants in the fields. And certainly I will be caught. Dead I am dead, but alive and in Paris the opportunities are unending. From the French Legion Etranger I have my honorable discharge. I am an expert operator and in their Signal Corps I can easily find a place. Imagine me, then, on the Eiffel Tower. From the air I snatch news from all of France, from the channel, the North Sea. You and I could work together, as in Rome. But here, between the lines, with a pass from a village sous prefet, it is ridiculous. I am not afraid to die. But to die because someone else is stupid, that it hard.”

Marie clasped his hand in both of hers.

“You must not speak of death,” she cried; “you know I must carry out my orders, that I must force you to take this risk. And you know that thought of harm to you tortures me!”

Quickly the young man disengaged his hand. The woman exclaimed with anger.

“Why do you doubt me?” she cried.

Briand protested vehemently.

“I do not doubt you.”

“My affection then?” In a whisper that carried with it the feeling of a caress, Marie added softly: “My love?”

The young man protested miserably. “You make it very hard, mademoiselle,” he cried. “You are my superior officer, I am your servant. Who am I that I should share with others”——

The woman interrupted eagerly.

“Ah, you are jealous!” she cried. “Is that why you are so cruel? But when I tell you I love you, and only you, can you not feel it is the truth?”

The young man frowned unhappily.

“My duty, mademoiselle!” he stammered.

With an exclamation of anger Marie left him. As the door slammed behind her the young man drew a deep breath. On his face was the expression of ineffable relief.

In the hall Marie met her elderly companion, Bertha, now her aunt, Mme. Benet.

“I heard you quarreling,” Bertha protested. “It is most indiscreet. It is not in the part of the Countess d'Aurillac that she makes love to her chauffeur.

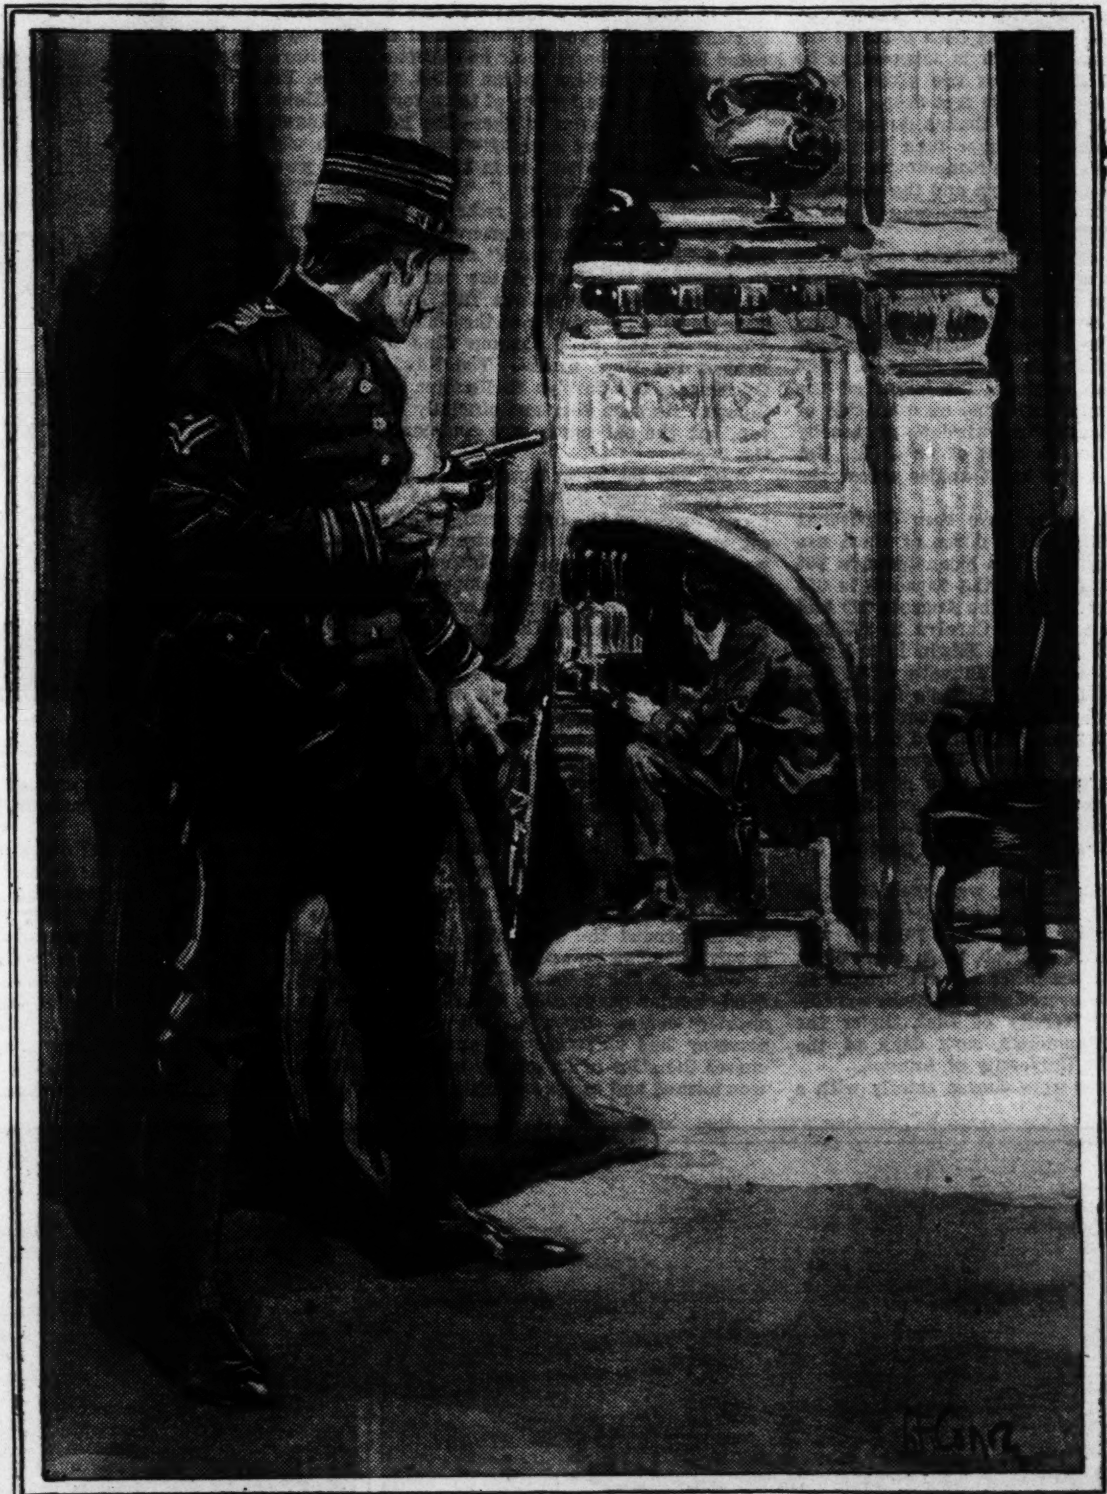
Marie laughed noiselessly and drew her farther down the hall. “He is imbecile!” she exclaimed. “He will kill me with his solemn face and his conceit. I make love to him—yes—that he may work the more willingly. But he will have none of it. He is jealous of the others.”

Mme. Benet frowned.

“He resents the others,” she corrected. “I do not blame him. He is a gentleman!”

“And the others,” demanded Marie; “were they not of the most able families of Rome?”

“I am old and I am ugly,” said Bertha, “but to me Anfossi is always so considerate as he is to you who are so beautiful.”



“With his revolver poised, he had drawn aside the portier, and his eye was fixed upon Briand.”

“An Italian gentleman,” returned Marie, “does not serve in Belgian Congo unless it is the choice of that or the marble quarries.”

“I do not know what his past may be,” sighed Mme. Benet, “nor do I ask. He is only a number, as you and I are only numbers. And I beg you to let us work in harmony. At such a time your love affairs threaten our safety. You must wait.”

Marie laughed insolently. “With the Du Barry,” she protested. “I can boast that I wait for no man.”

“No,” replied the older woman; “you pursue him!”

Marie would have answered sharply, but on the instant her interest was diverted. For one week, by day and night, she had lived in a world peopled only by German soldiers. Beside her in the railroad carriage, on the station platforms, at the windows of the trains that passed the one in which she rode, at the grade crossings, on the bridges, in the roads that paralleled the tracks, choking the streets of the villages and spread over the fields of grain, she had seen only the gray-green uniforms. Even her professional eye no longer distinguished regiment from regiment, dragoon from grenadier. Uhlan from Hussar or Landsturm. Stripes, insignia, numerals, badges of rank, had lost their meaning. Those who wore them no longer were individuals. They were not even human. During the three last days the automobile, like a motorboat fighting the tide, had crept through a gray-green river of men, as though from the banks, by mud and yellow clay. And for hours, while the car was blocked, and in fury the engine raced and purred, the gray-green river had rolled past her, slowly but as inevitably as lava down the slope of a volcano, bearing on its surface faces with staring eyes, thousands and thousands of eyes, some fierce and bloodshot, others filled with weariness, homesickness, pain. At night she still saw them: the white faces under the sweat dust, the eyes dumb. inarticulate, asking the answer. She had been suffocated by German soldiers, by the mass of them, engulfed and smothered; she had stifled in a land inhabited only by gray-green ghosts.

And suddenly, as though a miracle had been wrought, she saw upon the lawn, riding toward her, a man in scarlet, blue and silver. One man riding alone.

Approaching with confidence, but alert; his reins fallen, his hands nursing his carbine, his eyes searched the shadows of the trees, the empty windows, even the sun-swept sky. His was the new face at the door, the new step on the floor. And the spy knew had she beheld an army corps it would have been no more significant, no more menacing, than the solitary chasseur a cheval scouting in advance of the enemy.

“We are saved!” exclaimed Marie, with irony. “Go quickly,” she commanded, “to the bedroom on the second floor that opens upon the staircase, so that you can see all who pass. You are too ill to travel. They must find you in bed.”

“And you.” said Bertha.

“I,” cried Marie rapturously, “hasten to welcome our preserver!”

The preserver was a peasant lad. Under the white dust his cheeks were burned a brown-red, his eyes, honest and blue, through much staring at the skies and at horizon lines, were puckered and encircled with tiny wrinkles. Responsibility had made him older than his years, and in speech brief. With the beautiful lady who, with tears of joy, ran to greet him, and who in an ecstasy of happiness pressed her cheek against the nose of his horse, he was unimpressed. He returned to her her papers and gravely echoed her answers to his questions. “This chateau,” he repeated, “was occupied by their General Staff; they have left no wounded here; you saw the last of them pass a half-hour since.” He gathered up his reins.

Marie shrieked in alarm. “You will not leave us?” she cried.

For the first time the young man permitted himself to smile. “Others arrive soon,” he said.

He touched his shako, wheeled his horse in the direction from which he had come, and a minute later Marie heard the hoofs echoing though the empty village.

When they came the others were more sympathetic. Even in times of war a beautiful woman is still a beautiful woman. And the staff officers who moved into quarters so lately occupied by the enemy found in the presence of the Countess d'Aurillac nothing to distress them. In the absence of her dear friend, Mme. Iverney, the chatelaine of the chateau she acted as their hostess. Her chauffeur showed the company cooks the way to the kitchen, the larder and the charcoal box. She, herself, in the hands of Gen. Andre, placed the keys of the famous wine cellar and to the surgeon, that the wounded might be freshly bandaged, intrusted those of the linen closet. After the indignities she had suffered while “detained” by les Boches, her delight and relief at again finding herself under the protection of her own people would have touched a heart of stone. And the hearts of the staff were not of stone. It was with regret they gave the Countess permission to continue on her way. At this she exclaimed with gratitude. She assured them, were her aunt able to travel, she would immediately depart.

“In Paris she will be more comfortable than here,” said the kind surgeon. He was a reservist, and in times of peace a fashionable physician and as much at ease in a boudoir as in a field hospital. “Perhaps if I saw Mme. Benet?”

At the suggestion the Countess was overjoyed. But they found Mme. Benet in a state of complete collapse. The conduct of the Germans had brought about a nervous breakdown.

“Though the bridges are destroyed at Meaux,” urged the surgeon, “even with a detour, you can be in Paris in four hours. I think it is worth the effort.”

But the mere thought of the journey threw Mme. Benet into hysterics. She asked only to rest, she begged for an opiate to make her sleep. She begged also that they would leave the door open, so that when she dreamed she was still in the hands of the Germans and woke in terror the sound of the dear French voices and the sight of the beloved French uniforms might reassure her. She played her part well. Concerning her Marie felt not the least anxiety. But toward Briand, the chauffeur, the new arrivals were less easily satisfied.

The General sent his adjutant for the Countess. When the adjutant had closed the door Gen. Andre began abruptly:

“The chauffeur Briand,” he asked; “you know him; you can vouch for him?”

“But, certainly!” protested Marie. “He is an Italian.”

As though with sudden enlightenment Marie laughed. It was as if now in the suspicion of the officer she saw a certain reasonableness. “Briand was so long in the Foreign Legion in Algiers,” she explained, “where my husband found him, that we have come to think of him as French. As much French as ourselves, I assure you.”

The General and his adjutant were regarding each other questioningly.

“Perhaps I should tell the Countess,” began the General, “that we have found”——

The signal from the adjutant was so slight, so swift, that Marie barely intercepted it.

The lips of the General shut together like the leaves of a book. To show the interview was at an end he reached for a pen.

You, reader, have the same facts to work on that Detective Juve has. It is even within possibility that you may beat him to the solution of this complicated mystery. Bear in mind these points: Etienne Rambert, the night of the murder of the Marquise, traveling to Beaulieu by a slow train, in preference to the express. His son Charles, who was already one of her guests, knew the Marquise had in her desk lottery tickets that might win a fortune. Did anyone else know this? Is the information in Juve's possession even now? A trace of blood was found in Charles Rambert's room. A fragment torn from a map of the district was picked up between the chateau of Beaulieu and the railroad station. Someone jumped from a window of the chateau on the night of the murder—yet everyone who had a right to be there was accounted for.

As to motives, the Marquise had no known enemies; her money and jewels were not taken. The door of her room had not been forced, so she must have opened it herself, presumably to someone she did not fear.

Etienne Rambert practically accuses his now (legally) dead son, alleging insanity. Detective Juve is haunted with the thought of Fantomas, and the semi-supernatural. Choose for yourself between these two clashing theories.

"Mlle. Jeanne, on summer nights like this I feel as if love were an absolute necessity."

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS.

AT the chateau of Beaulieu, some hours' railway journey from Paris, the Marquise de Langrune has been brutally and mysteriously murdered during the night after a dinner party. Her guests were: President Bonnet, a retired magistrate; Abbe Sicot, the local priest; the Baronne Vibray, a wealthy young widow; Mlle. Therese Auvernois, the Marquise's granddaughter; and Charles Rambert, aged eighteen, son of M. Etienne Rambert. The last-named, an old friend of the murdered Marquise, arrived at Beaulieu the morning after the tragedy. In a dramatic scene, he reveals the taint of insanity in his family, and accuses his son of the crime, despite the young man's passionate protest of innocence. Some weeks later, the body of young Charles Rambert is found in the river. The father is accused of his murder, tried before the assizes, and acquitted.

Inspector Juve, the famous Paris detective, is investigating the Beaulieu tragedy, and simultaneously the unaccountable disappearance of Lord Beltham—in both cases, thus far, without definite result. The clews are many, but contradictory and baffling in the extreme.

"FANTOMAS crimes, both" is Juve's persistent theory. Others deny the very existence of Fantomas, the dread and mysterious, whose deadly trail is everywhere, but of whose material identity no human being has discovered the least sign.

CHAPTER X.

Princess Sonia.

FOUR months passed. The world was beginning to forget the Beaulieu tragedy as it had already almost forgotten the mysterious murder of Lord Beltham. Juve alone did not allow his daily occupation to put the two cases out of his mind.

It was the end of June, but the spring had been late and cold, and society had lingered on in the capital. Luxuriously appointed carriages still swept along the Champs Elysees, and fashionably attired people still thronged the broad pavements and gathered before the cafes on the Rond-Point; even at that late hour the Champs Elysees were animated.

At the Royal Palace Hotel the greatest animation prevailed, for it was the hour when the guests were returning from their evening's amusements.

A young and fashionable woman got out of a perfectly appointed victoria, and M. Louis, the manager, bowed as he only did to clients of the very highest distinction, and called a servant.

"The lift for Mme. la Princess Sonia Danidoff," and the next moment the beautiful vision had disappeared within the lift and was borne to her apartments.

Princess Sonia belonged to one of the greatest families in the world, being, by her marriage with Prince Danidoff, cousin to the Emperor of Russia and, so, connected with many royal personages. Still barely 30 years of age, she was remarkably lovely, with wonderful blue eyes which formed a bewitching contrast to the heavy masses of black hair that framed her face. Of immense wealth, and typically a woman of the world, she spent six months of the year in Paris, where she was well known and much liked in the most exclusive circles; she was clever and cultivated, a first-rate musician. Her reputation was spotless, although it was very seldom that she was accompanied by her husband, whose duties as Grand Chamberlain to the Tsar kept him almost continuously in Russia. When in Paris she occupied a suite of four rooms on the third floor of the Royal Palace Hotel, a suite identical in plan and in luxury with that reserved for sovereigns who came there incognito.

The Princess passed through her drawing room, a vast, round room, with a superb view over the Arc de Triomphe, and went into her bedroom where she switched on the electric light.

"Nadine," she called, in her grave, melodious voice, and a young girl, almost a child sprang from a low divan hidden in a corner. "Nadine, take off my cloak and unfasten my hair. Then you can leave me. It is late, and I am tired."

The little maid obeyed, helped her mistress to put on a silken dressing gown, loosened the masses of her hair, and then withdrew.

A few minutes passed, and Princess Sonia was just going into her dressing room when suddenly she turned and went back to the middle of the bedroom.

"Nadine," she called, "are you still there?" No answer came. "I must have been dreaming," the Princess murmured.

Sonia Danidoff was not nervous, but like most people who live in large hotels, she was wont to be careful. She made a rapid survey of her bedroom, glanced into the brilliantly lighted drawing room and then moved to her bed and saw that the electric bell board, which enabled her to summon any of her own or of the hotel's servants, was in perfect order. Then, satisfied, she went into her dressing room.

On a table she had placed a volume of old Muscovite folk tales, and she was glancing through these by the shaded light from a lamp above her, when a fresh sound made her start. She looked around her. There was nothing there. She was just beginning to read once more when suddenly a strange voice, with a ring of malice in it, sounded in her ear. Someone was looking over her shoulder and reading aloud the words she had just begun!

Before Sonia Danidoff could utter a cry a strong hand was over her lips. Another gripped her wrist, preventing her from reaching the button of the electric bell fixed near her. The pressure gradually relaxed and the mysterious individual moved around and stood in front of her.

He was about 40, extremely well dressed. A dinner jacket proved him no unclean dweller in the Paris slums; no apache. The hands which had held her motionless were white, well manicured, adorned with a few plain rings. The man wore a very fine black beard. What struck the Princess most was the abnormal size of his head and the number of wrinkles that ran right across his temples.

Sonia Danidoff made an effort again to reach the electric bell, but the man caught her shoulder.

"Do not call out or you are a dead woman!" said the stranger harshly. "As for ringing—I object."

"If it is money or rings you want," said the Princess, "take them!"

She had laid several rings and bracelets on the table. The man glanced at them.

"Not bad," he said, "but your signet ring is much finer."

Princess Sonia held up her ring finger.

"I cannot take this ring off; it fits too tight."

The man laughed grimly and produced a minature razor. "With this a skillful man could cut off a finger in a couple of seconds. Seeing the Princess in fresh panic he laid the palm of his hands over her lips. "Do not be so terrified. You take me for some common hotel thief? I know who you are. You do not know me. Well on very many occasions I have mingled with the company of your adorers!"

Princess Sonia tried to force a smile. She was exercised by the idea that she was alone with a lunatic. The man, too, smiled a little.

"I am glad to see, Princess, that you have more confidence now. It is quite five minutes since you tried to ring for help. We are getting on. I somehow can't picture the Princess Sonia Danidoff allowing herself to be surprised alone with a man whom she did not know."

"But tell me," pleaded the unhappy woman, "how did you get in here?"

"That is not the question," the stranger replied. "The problem before us is, how am I to get out? It is very embarrassing. We will put out the light, and then"—he was on the point of turning off the switch when he stopped abruptly—"I was forgetting that exasperating bell," he said, and with a quick cut with his razor severed the two electric wires. "That is excellent. I don't know where these other two wires go. It is best to be on the safe side." The steel blade cut the insulator and an alarming flash of light resulted. The man dropped his razor. "Good Lord!" he growled, "I have burnt my hand most horribly! These must be wires for the light. But you can press the button of your bell, it won't ring."

Suddenly darkness fell upon the room. Sonia Danidoff stood motionless for just a second and then moved to the switch by the door and turned on the light.

The man had gone from the dressing room, but taking two steps toward her bedroom Sonia Danidoff saw him smiling at her from its far end.

"Sir," she said, "this—pleasantry—has lasted long enough. You must go. You shall!"

"Shall?" the stranger echoed. "But what is in your mind now?"

Between them was a little escritoire, on the top of which was lying a tiny inlaid revolver. Also, in the drawer of that escritoire, which she could see half open, she had placed a pocketbook filled with bank notes for 120,000 francs, money withdrawn from the strong room to meet some bills next day The man had followed her eyes to the revolver.

"That is an unusual knick-knack," and he took possession of the revolver. "Do not be alarmed," he added, "I shall give this back in a minute." He slipped the six cartridges out of the cylinder and handed the useless weapon to the Princess.

In vain she tried to get near her escritoire to ascertain if the drawer had been tampered with; the man kept between her and it all the time, still smiling, still polite, but watching every movement that she made. Suddenly he took his watch out.

"Two o'clock! I shall take my departure. Possibly some unpleasant discovery, made after my departure, will raise animosity. You might alarm the staff without paying any attention to the subsequent scandal."

The Princess' eyes turned once more to the drawer. But the man broke in again upon her thoughts. "Just fancy my not having presented myself. I do not want to tell you my name out loud; it is romantic—out of keeping with this typically modern environment—a positive anachronism!" He took a card out of his pocket and drew near the escritoire. "Allow me to slip my card into this drawer, left open on purpose, it would seem. And now," he went on, compelling her to retreat before him to the door of the anteroom opening on the corridor, "you wish to conduct your visitor to the door." His tone altered. "Not a word, not a cry, until I am outside, or I will kill you!"

Summoning all her strength to prevent herself from swooning, Sonia Danidoff slowly unlocked the door. The man stepped quietly through.

Leaping back into her bedroom Sonia Danidoff telephoned down to the hall porter: "Don't let anybody go out! I have been robbed!" and pressed the special button that set the alarm bell clanging. Footsteps and voices resounded in the corridor; the Princess ran to open her door. The night watchman and the manager of the third floor came running up.

"Stop him!" the Princess shouted. "A man in a dinner jacket, with a great black beard!"

A lad came hurrying out of the lift.

"Where are you going? What is the matter," inquired the hall porter, whose lodge was next to the courtyard, the door into which he had just closed.

"There's a thief in the hotel," he answered. "They are calling from the other side."

"What floor are you on?"

"The second."

"It's the third floor they are calling from. Go up and see what is wrong."

The lad turned to the passenger lift, hurried back into it and upstairs again. He was stoutly built, with a smooth face and red hair. On the third floor he stopped, immediately opposite Sonia Danidoff's suite. The Princess was standing at her door, twisting between her fingers the blank visiting card left in place of her pocketbook and the 120,000 francs.

"Well," said Muller, the watchman, to the red-headed lad, "where do you come from?"

"I'm the new man on the second floor. The hall porter sent me to find out what was the matter."

"Matter!" said Muller. "Somebody has robbed the Princess. Send for the police."

"I'll run, sir," and as the lift had carelessly been sent up to the top floor, the young fellow ran down the staircase at full speed.

Through the telephone, Muller was ordering the hall porter to send for the police, when the second-floor servant caught him by the arm, dragging him away from the instrument.

"Open the door! I'm off to the police station."

On the top floor the servants, surprised to see the lift open and nobody get out, opened the door and found a heap of clothing, a false beard, and a wig. Meantime the manager, M. Louis, had reached the third floor when he was stopped by the Baronne Van den Rosen, one of the hotel's oldest patronesses.

"M. Louis!" she exclaimed, "I have been robbed of my diamond necklace."

M. Louis was too dazed to reply. Muller ran up to him.

"Princess Sonia Danidoff's pocketbook has been stolen," he announced; "but I have had the doors shut, we shall catch the thief."

At that moment the servants came down from upstairs, bringing with them the articles which they had found in the lift. Muller had a sudden inspiration.

"M. Louis, what is the new man on the second floor like?"

"Middle-aged, with white whiskers and a bald head. There he is, coming toward us," M. Louis replied. "His name is Arnold."

"Good God!" cried Muller; "and the carroty chap?" M. Louis shook his head, and Muller rushed down to the hall porter. "Has he gone out? Has anyone gone out?"

"No one," said the porter, "except the servant you sent for the police."

"The carroty chap?" Muller inquired.

"Yes, the carroty chap."

Princess Danidoff still held in her hands the card left by the mysterious stranger. As she gazed upon the card, hitherto immaculately white, marks and letters were gradually becoming visible. The Princess read:

"Fan—to—mas!"

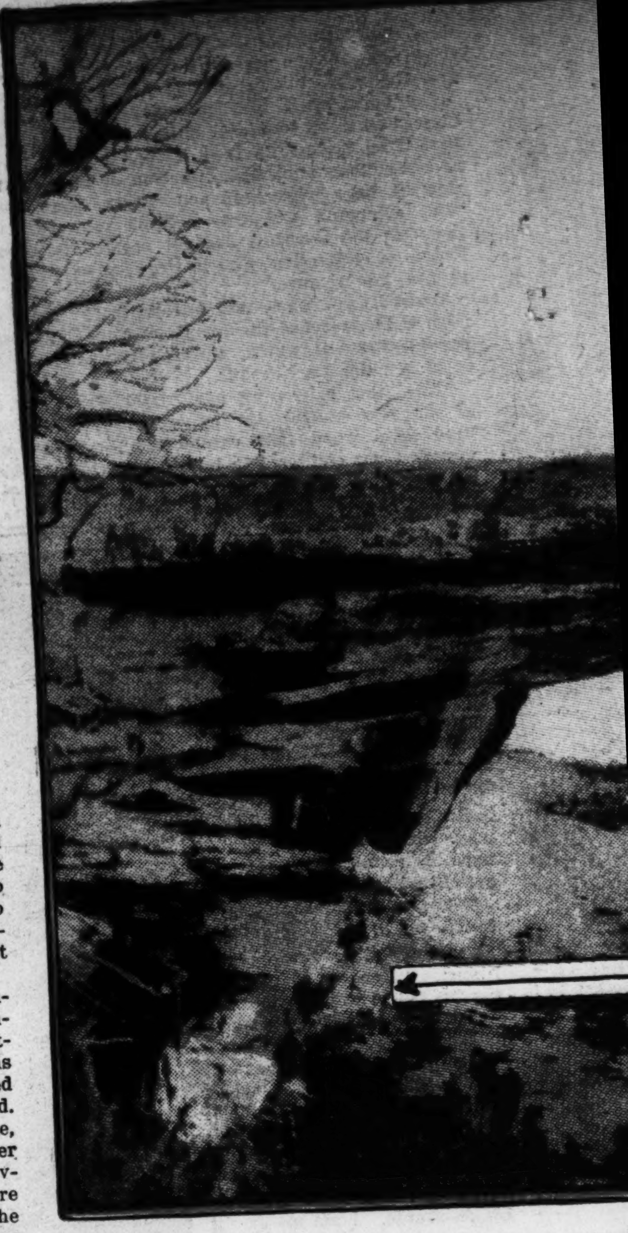
Geologists have found great spans in comparison with which the famous one of Virginia appears small—Some of them now photographed for the first time—Nonnezoshe, the largest, could easily cover the Railway Exchange building with its arch, while it is more than twice as high as the La Salle building :: :: :: :: :: :: ::



WITH each recurring year since 1908 geological explorations into Southern Utah have revealed new natural bridges, some of which, in size and beauty, far surpass any similar formations known before. In that wilderness of mountain and rock where the Grand Canyon of the Colorado has its beginning, there are more amazing geological "accidents," perhaps, than in any other part of the world.

Every schoolboy in the United States remembers the picture of the Virginia natural bridge in his geography. The wonders of this great span have been extolled for generations and the geography reader is supposed to be duly impressed when its dimensions are given as 90 feet in length, spanning a chasm 200 feet deep.

Southern Utah can boast of more than a dozen great natural arches, five of which are larger than Virginia's wonder. The five larger ones are the Nonnezoshe, northwest of Navajo Mountain; the Carolyn and the Augusta, in White Canyon; the Edwin, in Armstrong Canyon, and the Sansosie, in Monument Park.

Under Nonnezoshe, the greatest of Utah's arches and the greatest yet reported to the world, could be placed two of the Virginia bridge with room to spare. Under its mighty span the tallest spires of the St. Louis City Hall could stand, with room to spare. With greater ease could they stand under the arch of the Sansosie. The supporting columns of the Augusta, the larger of the White Canyon bridges, could stand one on each side of Twelfth street, and the eighth-story windows on nearby buildings would peep under the crest of its arch. Yet the Nonnezoshe could be set at right angles across the Augusta.

In all about 15 natural arches have been discovered in Southern Utah. Possibly half a dozen of them are classed as small and imperfect. The Nonnezoshe is 308 feet high, with a span of 275 feet; the Sansosie is 350 feet high, but it spans only 75 feet; the Augusta 222 feet high, with a span of 261 feet; the Carolyn is 205 feet high, with a span of 186 feet; the Edwin is 104 feet high, with a span of 198 feet; the Pikyabo is 62 feet high, with a span of 122 feet; the Sitsosie is 143 feet high, with a span of 147 feet. The two other more important bridges have not yet been named and their exact measurements have not been taken. However, one of them is about 250 feet high, with a span of about 60 feet. In company with their more lofty and massive neighbors, these and the other smaller arches lose prestige, but would be wonders in any other part of the world.

The Edwin, Augusta and Carolyn were discovered in the early '80s by Cass Hite, one of the pioneers and picturesque figures of Southern Utah. The Pikyabo was first reported by Dr. Williams of Moab, Utah, about eight years ago. Practically all the other natural bridges in that section have been discovered since 1908 by expeditions sent out by the University of Utah under the charge of Prof. Byron Cummings, now dean of the school of archeology of the University of Arizona.

The names of the bridges were chosen chiefly with a view to preserving the names and traditions associated with the arches by the Indians. Nonnezoshe (Non-nee-zo'-shee) is a Pah-Ute word meaning "big arch;" Pikyabo (Peek-a-ya'-boo) comes from the Ute language and means "water tank" or "big cistern;" Sansosie (San-so-see') is a Navajo word meaning "tall and slim;" Sitsosie (Seet-so-see') was the name of the Navajo guide with the party who first sighted the bridge. The Edwin, Augusta and Carolyn have been rechristened with Hopi names by the Government, but the old names still cling.

That these great natural wonders were known to the ancient cliff and pueblo dwellers of the section is indicated by the ruins of their habitations and altars found nearby. The modern Indian tribes, the Utes, Pah-Utes and Navajos, have known of them for generations.

The White Canyon bridges—the Edwin, Augusta and Carolyn—were first seen by white men when visited by Cass Hite and Indian Joe in 1883. Mr. Hite gave them the names of "President," "Senator" and "Congressman." The bridges were rechristened in 1905 by members of the Salt Lake Commercial Club expedition. The names "Edwin," "Augusta" and "Carolyn" were given in honor of members of the party and their friends. Four years later President Taft issued a proclamation changing the boundaries of the Natural Bridges National Monument and at the same time officially gave the bridges the Hopi names. The Edwin was changed to Owachomo, the Carolyn to Kachina and the Augusta to Sipapu. As such they are officially known in Washington, but the old names are commonly used throughout the West.

Ages ago the great sandstone beds overlying the entire region must have been pushed upward by the internal forces of the earth until, at places of their greatest elevation, the various strata separated, mountains were formed and large cracks opened up that extended in zig-zag lines through the slopes of the vast table land. This process of elevation was undoubtedly a gradual one, and, as the water of the mountains sought the lower level, they took their courses through irregular crevices. Their rushing currents and surging eddies wore off the sharp corners, sought out the soft places in the yielding sandstone, dug out deep caverns and recesses in the cliffs, and left behind them a series of graceful curves and fantastic forms to amaze and delight the visitor at every turn.

The elevation and opening of the formation often left a narrow section of cliff extending out into the gorge, around which the stream made its way. The constant surging of the water against the barrier revealed a soft place in the sandsone, where it gradually ate out a half-dome-shaped cave. In a few instances, as the water swirled around the other side of the barrier, it reached a corresponding soft place and ground out another cave.

When, in the course of time, the backs of the two semi-circular caves came together, the waters found a shorter course through that opening; enlarged the archway and smoothed off and rounded into graceful curves the sides of its mighty buttresses. Thus a bridge was formed and became a mighty span of enduring rock, whose foundations and graceful superstructures were built by ages. All of the White Canyon bridges and the great arch of Nonnezoshe seem to have been formed in this manner. So do the majority of the smaller arches.

The Edwin is a graceful structure. The long arch of sandstone is only 10 feet thick in the center and the proportions give an impression of lightness that is very pleasing. Near it are domes and turrets fashioned by the same means that produced a bridge and, nestling in a cave worn in the sunny side of the cliff near one end, are the deserted homes of a Cliff Dweller's village.

Three miles below the way was almost blocked by a cliff which rises in amazing proportions. Seventy-five feet above, at the right, the barrier has been worn away and plainly visible is the course of a great stream that once pursued its winding way among the mighty cliffs. A little further to the left is the end of Armstrong Canyon and there one stands in the shadow of a great archway which the waters of White Canyon have cut through the barrier that seems to block the course. This is the Carolyn (Kachina).

Sharp corners and broken lines show the unfinished work of the natural artisan. Nature has not yet given the final touches, but wind and storm and driving sand will continue to chisel and polish until the lines are all graceful curves.

Passing to the right up the main fork of White Canyon, winding between lofty cliffs, in the hollow of whose seamed and scarred sides are the homes, the fortifications and the granaries of an ancient population, after a walk of about two miles one stands under the arch of the world's most massive and graceful natural bridge—the Augusta (Sipapu). The Augusta is the crowning glory of the three spans. It combines massiveness with a gracefulness of proportions that is equaled by no other natural arch.

Nonnezoshe, in appearance, is not so much a real bridge as the structures in the White Canyon district because the top of the span is not level. Here the sandstone has been more yielding and the forces at work, perhaps, more constant, so that erosion has progressed much farther and left only a curving arm of harder rock stretched gracefully across the canyon.

Another of the larger bridges is south of Moab. Caves have been hollowed out of the cliffs at various points and numerous natural reservoirs are found scattered on the surface of the bare rocks where soft places have been found in the stone, or where whirling eddies of former ages have ground out cisterns. Some of these are shallow tanks, while others reach down 20 feet and more through solid sandstone. Some are irregular and winding in their course, while others look as though they had been sunk by some titanic drill when the gods were playing with the earth's crust.

A few drain considerable areas. In a few instances reservoirs have been formed directly behind a cave that was being hollowed out of the side of the cliff. As the walls of the cave extended farther and farther backward, the reservoir sunk deeper and was enlarged little by little, until its bottom broke through into the back of the cave. Then the waters surged through and lost themselves in the valley below. Every downpour of rain and every driving wind carried the work a little farther until the former roofs of the cave became an arch. When the reservoir held the waters until its depth about equaled that of the cave, then the arch became a real bridge, as in the case of the big one in Grand County, which has been christened "Pikyabo."

The same mighty hand carved the structures in Monument Park and in other sections of this broken country, and carved them much in the same fashion as the two types represented in the White Canyon bridges and in the Pikyabo. The Sansosie and the Sitsosie are only recent discoveries and when they were found lack of time prevented the collection of complete data. It is probable that they will be examind more carefully this summer.

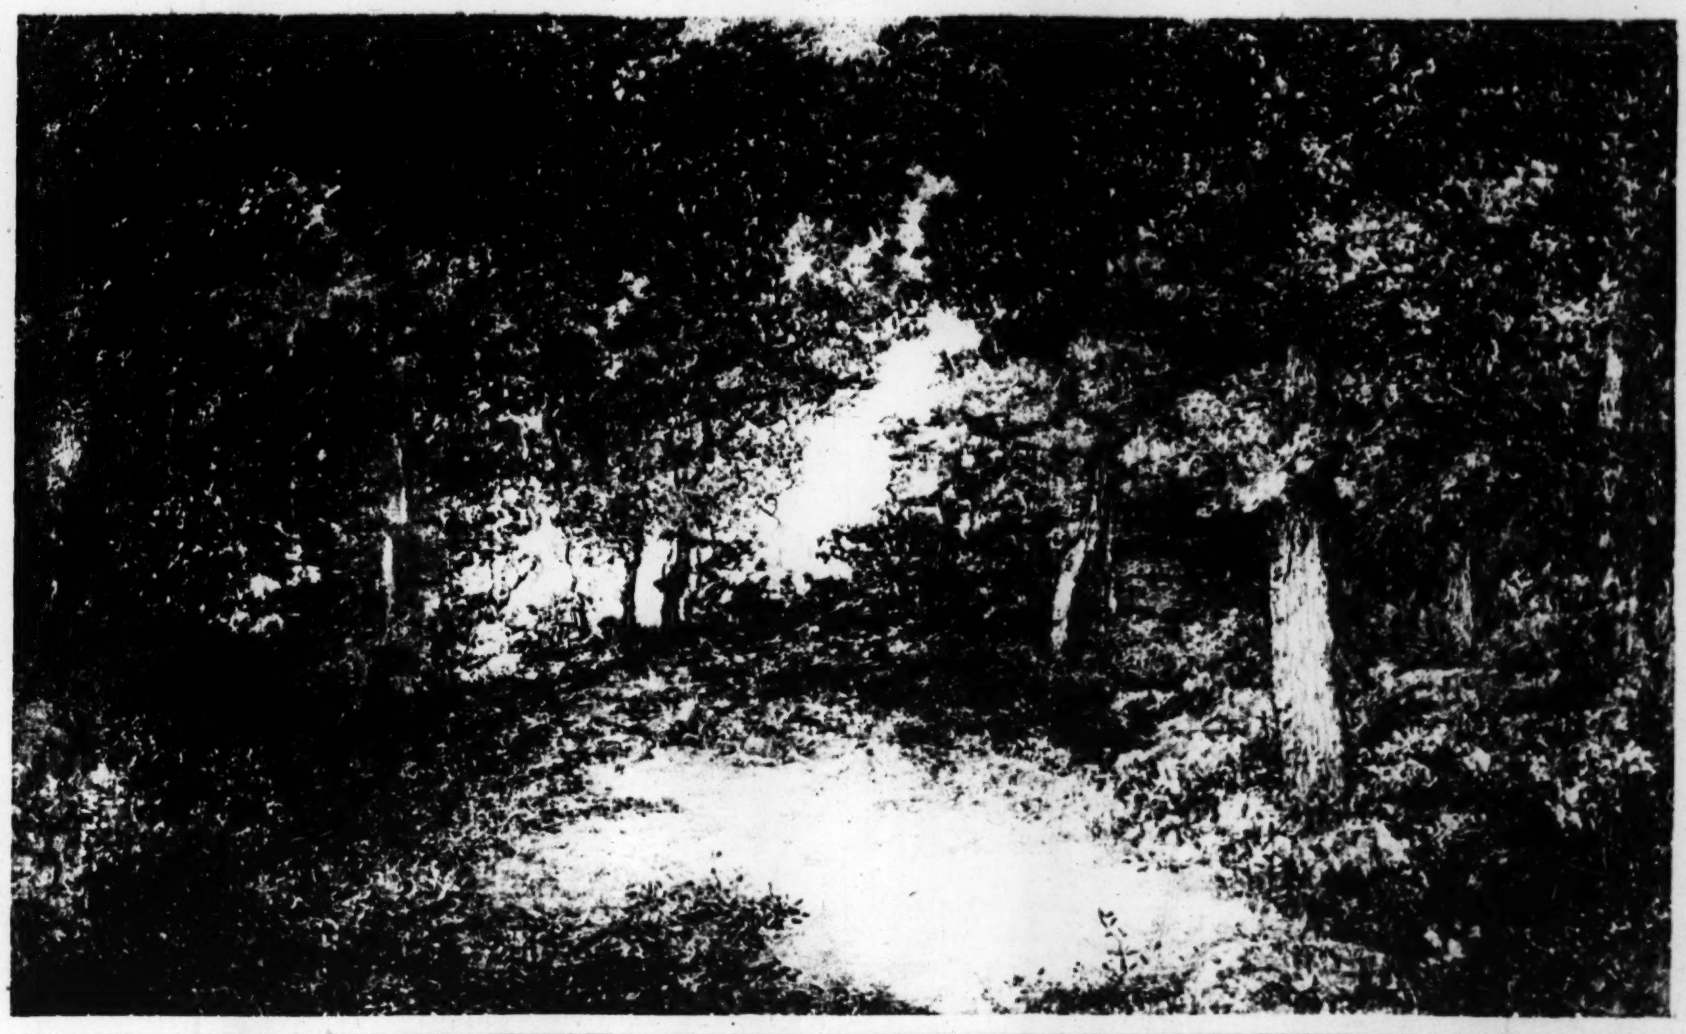
During recent firing practice in Guantanamo Bay, one of the 12-inch rifles of the battleship "Michigan" cracked almost from end to end. As a result, four big guns in the forward turrets were condemned, and new ones are being mounted.



This masterpiece, entitled "Wood Interior," by Ralph A. Blakelock, American landscape painter of tragic fate, has been in the possession of the St. Louis Art Museum since 1914. Fame and high prices for his pictures came after the artist had been driven by misfortune into an insane asylum, from which he was recently released.
